WASHINGTON.

Statements of Whitley and Hayes Regarding the Safe Burglary.

FURTHER IMPLICATION OF BABCOCK.

The Cardinal Point in the Defence of General Belknap.

ONE PRESENT TAKER AS GOOD AS ANOTHER.

Republican Fear of Establishing an Unpleasant Precedent.

PENNSYLVANIA AND THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1876.

GENERAL BELKNAP'S DEFENCE—AN OFFENCE AGAINST PROPRIETY SIMPLY—REPUBLICAN FEARS OF AN INCONVENIENT PRECEDENT—WILL THE ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT BE ENTERTAINED?

It is understood that the chief points which will be made in defence of Belknap by his counsel on the impeachment trial will be:—First, that his resignation placed him beyond the reach of impeachment, on the ground that this process is designed to remove a criminal from office and not to punish one who has already abandoned his place; and second, that the charges in the articles of impeachment, even if fully proved, do not constitute a high crime or a misdemeanor. It will be contended in behalf of General Belknap that all that is charged in the articles of impeachment is a matter of taste and propriety, not of criminality, and that the Senate has no jurisdiction to try a citizen for an infraction of mere decorum or official propriety.

A republican alarmist remarked to-day that the consequences of submitting Mr. Belknap to trial by impeachment might become very serious, as, he said, the democrats could and perhaps would in that case go on and impeach other persons. He said:—

"If they can induce the Senate to hold that a citizen may be impeached after he is out of office for malfeasance in office they will impeach ex-Attorney General Williams and several other ex-officials; and if they can induce the Senate to hold that the articles of impeachment against Belknap are sustainable they will impeach General Grant." He added:—

"The articles against Belknap, when carefully analyzed, amount simply to this, that he, as a superior officer, accepted presents from an inferior subject to his removal. If the Senate shall hold this to be an impeachable offence then the House could impeach the President for the present of a gold watch from General Ingalls to Mrs. Grant, and it remains to be seen whether the Senate will decide that receiving a present under these circumstances is a high crime and misdemeanor within the meaning of the constitution. If not Belknap must be acquitted; but if the Senate decides this question in the affirmative the democrats can impeach Grant. What are high crimes and misdemeanors the constitution does not declare, but all contemporary history and all commentators upon the constitution declare that the high crimes and misdemeanors contemplated by the constitution are those flagrant and enormous offences which endanger the life of the government and the security of the community, and it may well be contended that the offence charged against General Belknap does not rise to the magnitude and importance to justify an impeachment."

But it can be safely said that nothing is further from the thoughts of the democrats than to impeach the President, no matter how good a case they might be able to make against him. They hold that he is a burden upon the republicans, of which they do not mean to relieve them, and that, for this and higher causes, they would regard it as a calamity even to have to discuss the propriety of impeaching him.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION—GROWING FEELING IN FAVOR OF A FOUR PER CENT LONG BOND.

The currency question is not likely to be settled until late in the session, but there is good reason to believe that a bill substantially providing for the issue of a four per cent long bond, with which to extinguish the greenbacks, at a very moderate rate of a million or perhaps two millions per month, will become a law at this session. There is a growing feeling in favor of such a measure, and a belief that, while it would be very successful and cause no monetary derangement, but the reverse, the enactment of such a law would at once restore confidence all over the country and do very much to revive business and industry everywhere. There is no doubt that the plan is approved by prominent business men all over the country, a great many of whom are writing here to urge its adoption on the grounds above stated. They urge that such a measure, mild, yet effective, would improve our credit at once, give confidence to capitalists and lead them to begin new enterprises and thus give employment to labor.

THE NEW TARIFF BILL—USELESS ALARM OF MERCHANTS AND IMPORTERS.

Importers and other merchants from different parts of the country are showing a good deal of anxiety about the tariff, and so many inquiries are made here about the shape in which this measure is likely to pass that it is evident commerce is already disturbed by the fear and anticipation of coming changes. These fears are needless. It is not probable that any Tariff bill will be passed at this session. It is quite possible that the bill reported from the Committee of Ways and Means may, with further amendments, pass the House, but the republicans in the Senate are not likely to act upon it this session. They will probably lay it over until next December, when they can take it up as unfinished business and then do what shall at that time seem expedient to them. There is but little cause, therefore, for business men to make themselves uneasy about tariff changes, for it is not likely that the new Tariff bill can become a law.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1876.

THE SAFE BURGLARY CASE—CAREER OF THE CONVICT MILES—INTERESTING INTERVIEW WITH COLONEL WHITLEY—REITERATION OF THE STORY OF BABCOCK'S GUILT—MIKE HAYES' STORY.

The confession of the convict Miles in this morning's HERALD was deeply entertaining reading here in Washington, where the safe burglary case possesses such great local interest, and the account was devoured from beginning to end. Miles is a character in his own way, outside of his connection with the safe burglary conspiracy. He is a wealthy man, according to report, and is said to own about $100,000 worth of real estate in New York, including a brown stone house on one of the uptown fashionable avenues. He is known to fame and the police under the five different names of Miles, Bliss, White, Wilson and Williams. Under the name of Bliss he was convicted of complicity in the Ocean Bank robbery in New York a good many years ago, and was serving his time in Sing Sing when Whitley had him pardoned out to go to Washington and operate the safe burglary. This pardon was procured from Governor Dix, who was moved to grant it on a letter of Whitley and indorsed successively by Solicitor Banfield and Attorney General Williams, Whitley telling Governor Dix that Miles was wanted as a witness in some government cases of great importance warranting the exercise of clemency. Whitley had the pardon sent to himself and held it, as alleged, to stimulate Miles to perform the safe burglary. He got away from Washington, but was not long at liberty, one of his confederates in the Barre Bank robbery, in Vermont, giving him up as the principal in the transaction, and which led to his arrest and present incarceration.

Whitley was interviewed at the St. James Hotel to-night and made the following statement:—

The story that is told by Hayes is a'l a lie fixed up by Hayes in the first place, and he will say that he can back it up; but I will break it down by documentary evidence. My papers are not here, but I will get them. I want to say that I never keep dates, but in this case it is a matter of record and can be proved. I never saw Hayes in New York to my recollection. I only met him once and hardly know him, and do not know that I would be able to recognize him now. I did not come to Washington to back up Hayes's stories. I came to tell the truth and have no object in keeping anything back. All that he asserts about my being in New York with him is an intentional mistake. The dinner referred to by Collector Simmons was given by me at my house in Cambridge, and I was not in New York at all at that time. At first I did not remember about it, but when I went to work and got the facts and refreshed my recollection, as any detective would, I found there could be no doubt about the dinner and my presence at it. The guests must have stayed late after the dinner and it was utterly impossible for me to have got away. If I had taken the first train that leaves Boston in the morning I could have reached New York at five o'clock in the afternoon. I do not remember of meeting Mr. Hayes, but if I did it was later than five o'clock and could not have been in the morning as he says. But, to tell the truth, I do not remember of meeting him at all.

Whitley then went on to explain the difference between his statement of two years ago and the one made the other day. He said:—

My testimony in 1874 was a technical evasion, with a mental reservation made while I was under actual duress. I could not have testified to anything else. I was threatened that if I came out I would be made to suffer the severest penalties. I was obliged to testify as I did just as you would be to save your neck from the halter. When I first heard of the safe burglary I I thought it was in Shepherd's office. I got that idea from some of his connections, but not from Shepherd personally; and it was on this that I had ground for evasion, so that when they asked me in regard to the burglary I could save myself by technically evading it.

Whitley was asked in regard to Miles, the burglar, now in prison in New Hampshire, and whose statement implicating Babcock appeared in the HERALD yesterday. Whitley said:—

I know Miles. I believe that his statement is materially true. Of course I do not recollect his coming into my office in Bleecker street, New York. There is no use in hiding the facts, Babcock has been playing a double game all along. My testimony can be corroborated in more than twenty different ways. I want to say that the HERALD has been the best friend the Secret Service ever had, and it is the only paper that has recognized it. It will make a great mistake if it thinks that Babcock is innocent. I know what I am talking about. My record is good and can be sustained. I have dined and been intimate with the leading members of the government here, and they all know me. When I worked for them they called me an honest man and I was feasted and made much of, but now that I am telling all the truth they call me a States' Prison bird. I made more than 300 arrests while I was in New York, and the HERALD repeatedly published lists of them and acknowledged the value of my services. Babcock was one of the chief leaders of the safe burglary enterprise. Bluford Wilson came in, and I told Babcock that it was a dangerous thing to let new men come around; he might make damaging discoveries. Babcock said:—

"You (Whitley) throw sand in his eyes and I will work behind him. You work him in front and I will hug him to death. I think that I can handle him."

In fact, said Whitley, they did take Bluford Wilson to Long Branch, if I am not mistaken. I won't say that they wined and dined him but I will say that when he came back from Long Branch he told me that Babcock had a good many friends, strong friends, and must be all right and that he could not be in the safe burglary conspiracy as was alleged. The truth is Babcock and his friends at Long Branch pumped Bluford Wilson clean out, and I have no doubt if you go to him now he will confirm this. I do not care particularly about Babcock. I don't want to hurt him but I shall tell the truth and I have, your honors, and I have done so before the committee.

Mr. Whitley was asked if the burglar Miles was pardoned so that he could be used in the safe burglary transaction. Mr. Whitley said:—

Miles was pardoned a year or eighteen months before the safe burglary was committed; his pardon was a fair, square, straightforward transaction; he was pardoned at my request; the facts are these:—In 1869, or 1870, $20,000 had been stolen from the United States Treasury; I worked up the case and traced part of it down to Miles; I don't mean that he stole the money, but I knew that he had it in his possion; part of the money was in the Stuyvesant Bank in New York and I got out an estoppel; it was doubtful whether I could hold it; finally Miles, through his counsel, explained to me that he did not steal the money, but received it from another party and was willing to give it up, and also to give me the information that would lead to the detection of the parties who did steal it; I recovered $8,500; Miles agreed to turn the guilty party over to justice and to get the money; then at my suggestion the man was pardoned.

In conclusion, Whitley repeated that Babcock was not only deeply and personally implicated in the safe burglary, but he was guilty of the other offences of a similar nature and in each case he was the chief conspirator. Colonel Whitley said that the facts concerning them would be brought out and corroborated by documentary evidence in due time, showing that a plot was laid to kidnap not only Dana, but other well known gentlemen who were not friendly to General Babcock's management of District affairs.

MIKE HAYES IN DEFENCE OF HIMSELF AND HIS STATEMENT—THE BOSTON ALIBI EXPLAINED.

Mike Hayes, who claims to have been employed by Whitley to conduct the safe burglary, was found to-night at a small hotel in Pennsylvania avenue, and interviewed on the subject of the great conspiracy. By mistake he has been confounded with Miles, in the representations made to Proctor Knott's committee, and is very indignant at the statement which appears in the papers, and states most positively that he was never convicted of a crime in his life and never was in any Penitentiary, and consequently was not pardoned out. The only difficulty Hayes was ever mixed up with was on account of a charge of murder in 1872, during the spring of that year in New York city, from which he was promptly acquitted by the jury, who never left their seats. Hayes further says that in the charge Recorder Hackett stated that the only doubt in his mind was whether such a crime was ever committed at all.

The great regret of Hayes now is that he ever had any connection with Whitley, as he was doing a lucrative business in No. 80 Henry street, New York city, keeping a respectable public house. He says that he has ample corroborative evidence to prove that what he has heretofore stated in his testimony in regard to Whitley and the important telegram of April 7, 1874, is true, and that in due course of time, at the proper moment, he will show the integrity of his position so far as he has made declarations, no matter what construction may be placed upon them. He has nothing at stake but his reputation, which he can take care of, but he will show that Whitley, in view of his perjury and falsifications, if justice is meted out to him, will have great difficulty to keep out of the Penitentiary himself. He reiterates in a very clear manner that everything he has done heretofore in this investigation, coupled with his statements, have been consistent. He does not desire to go into the merits of the case technically now, as it may interfere with the successful conduct of the investigation by the Grand Jury here and the Congressional committee.

He avers that the action of Whitley is inspired by the hope of saving himself from going to the Penitentiary by making some one else a scapegoat. Further, he argues that the point which is made by Whitley that, on account of his having been at a dinner with Mr. Simmons and his friends in Boston on the 5th, he could not therefore be in New York to receive the telegram of the 7th of April is simply absurd, as he could readily in the meantime be in New York.

Hayes exhibited his diary showing that the telegram was sent at 3:45 P. M., charges forty cents, on the 7th of April, which was directed to Hiram C. Whitley, No. 56 Bleecker street, New York, and which he receipted for, as shown by the messenger's book of the Western Union Telegraph Company at the Metropolitan Hotel, which was exhibited on the witness stand during the trial, in November, 1874.

When asked what he thought about the statement of Miles, the burglar, now in a Vermont prison, as published in the HERALD of to-day, he said in reference to his interviews with Babcock previous to the burglary it is not so. "I do not seek to exonerate Babcock in the matter, but I do not like to see people covered with dirt. I have no doubt that his statements in regard to other persons mentioned are correct, but I do not, of my own knowledge, know such to be the case."

He closed in a firm, apparently frank and straightforward manner by saying:—

"I make this statement to you the same as if I was under oath. It does not do for a man to make statements in an affair of this kind which he cannot substantiate.

THE TAXATION OF NATIONAL BANKS—A REDUCTION SOUGHT FOR BY REPRESENTATIVES FROM VARIOUS PARTS OF THE COUNTRY—THE EXISTING INJUSTICE AS STATED BY THEM.

A number of bankers appeared before the Committee of Ways and Means to-day, representing national banks in different sections of the country. The following named gentlemen appeared:—Messrs. John E. Williams, of New York; E. G. Spaulding, of Buffalo; William H. English, of Indianapolis; Charles B. Hall, of Boston; D. J. Fallis, of Cincinnati; R. C. Calhoun and George F. Baker, of New York; E. B. Judson and Andrew G. White, of Syracuse; S. J. Norris, of Baltimore, and F. B. Loomis, of New London. The first five named gentlemen addressed the committee on the subject of reduction of the government tax on deposits of banks. The points of the argument they submitted were as follows:—

The taxation of war times is still imposed on the banks, while taxation on all other business was removed years ago. The banks are feeling the burden of taxation heavily, on account of the several reasons of the panic of 1873, the prostration of business, the shrinkage of values of stocks, of goods and of almost all kinds of property; the large number of failures all over the country, entailing heavy losses upon the banks, and the great loss of interest by the banks in being compelled to keep twenty-five per cent of all deposits locked up without interest.

The committee went on to suggest that if the bank acts were amended as asked for the banks would still have to pay on circulation $3,000,000, more or less. Bank franchises, under the present burden of taxation imposed by the federal government and the States, are getting to be of little value. About 600 banks had voluntarily wound up or had deposited equivalent legal tenders for the purpose of retiring their circulation.

It will be seen that the committee's views of the national banking business are not what the public in general entertain of it.

SENATOR CAMERON ON THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION—PENNSYLVANIA FOR HARTRANFT IN EARNEST—A GENERAL GOOD FEELING TOWARD EVERYBODY EXCEPT GRANT.

Senator Cameron, who has just returned from Pennsylvania, where he has been looking over the political field, in a conversation to-day expressed himself somewhat guardedly on the subject of the candidacy for the next Presidency. He said that of course his State was for Hartranft solid, and that this was a sincere and positive expression of the political feeling of Pennsylvania, as was manifested in the unequivocal instructions given to her delegates to the National Convention. Hartranft, he added, was a very shrewd, cautious and sensible man; having made no mistakes, he had given great satisfaction to the people of Pennsylvania, and, added Mr. Cameron in positive terms,

I am, of course, therefore, for Hartranft. But it is wonderful how much strength Senator Conkling has been developing within the last few days, and so does Governor Morton display strong evidences of a hearty support. I like Morton very much; he has stood up so handsomely and done so well. I have admired him a great deal and so do my people; of course, Senator Conkling will make an excellent President, and if he has the support of President Grant and the White House influence, of course it will give him a good, strong start. But I am not satisfied that Conkling has yet fully and unequivocally secured the influence of President Grant. I, of course, expect nothing of Grant; he has behaved so badly to my State and acted so indifferently in my own relations with him. [illegible]r. Blaine has some friends also in Pennsylvania w[illegible] are about equally divided between him and Mr. B[illegible], but I am for General Hartranft and as he is t[illegible] of my State and her people I am bound to sus[illegible]im.

R[illegible] over the field, then, of general political r[illegible]ich were discussed and commented on in c[illegible] with your correspondent, the aged statesma[illegible] freely. Senator Cameron is quite alive to the [illegible] of the various candidates and being in excellen[illegible], weighing forty pounds more than he ever d[illegible] will undoubtedly take a lively part in the pendi[illegible]ass for the selection of a nominee.

THE C[illegible] MOBILIER CASE—THE INTERESTS OF THE GOVERNMENT TO BE LOOKED AFTER.

The Créd[illegible] Mobilier matter is to be revived and an effort will be made to ascertain and secure the interests of the govern[illegible]t in its inferential claim against the Union Pacific [illegible]way Company. A resolution to this effect was offered to-day by Mr. Hoar, the Judiciary Committee, of which he is a member, being instructed to advise what action is necessary in this direction, as well as to report whether the charter of the road has not been forfeited. Some proceedings in the Crédit Mobilier suit on the part of the United States were taken in one of the courts of New Haven a year or two ago, but the case appears to have been dropped or gone to sleep. Mr. Hoar's resolution will give the democratic House a chance to order a prosecution of this suit to a conclusion of some sort.

THE RECEPTION OF THE EMPEROR OF BRAZIL.

As Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil, has positively declined any public ceremonies or reception in his honor on his arrival in this country, the government has decided to make no demonstration beyond a mere recognition of his rank and presence. The Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy will go to New York and await his arrival. After he has rested a few days they will return with His Majesty on a special train composed of the finest drawing room coaches on the Continent. The only ovation to be tendered him here will be a dinner, given by the President, at the White House.

THE HOSPITALITIES OF THE NATION TO THE PRESIDENT OF PERU.

A resolution was introduced in the House to-day and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs to consider the proper measures for receiving and entertaining the President of Peru on his visit to these shores. General Banks says that he has conversed with several leading democrats to-day about the matter, and he finds that they are inclined to be liberal, and he has no doubt that Congress will authorize the committee to use the funds necessary to pay the expenses of extending the hospitalities of the government to both its distinguished guests.

LECTURE ON THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

President Andrew D. White, of Cornell University, lectured to-night at Willard Hall on the currency question, to a very select audience.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1876.

COMPULSORY PILOTAGE—AN ADVERSE REPORT FROM THE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE—INJUSTICE OF THE PRESENT SYSTEM.

Representative Pierce to-day submitted a report from the Committee on Commerce on the several bills and memorials which had been referred to it relating to compulsory pilotage. The report discusses at length the powers of Congress under the constitution to legislate on the subject, and cites existing State statutes to show there is a great want of uniformity in the laws and the regulations to which sailing vessels entering our ports are subject, in the matter of pilotage. In many of the States the laws still continue to discriminate in favor of vessels sailing between certain ports, which is clearly contrary to the provisions of the United States statute of 1866. In New York, although there is no law on the subject the pilots have an understanding by which vessels owned in Suffolk county are exempted from the payment of fees unless for services actually rendered. In some States there is a discrimination against national armed vessels which is also contrary to the act of 1866, and in a bill now before the Assembly of New York, revising the charges for pilotage at Sandy Hook, national armed vessels are charged $6 per foot for draught.

The principal, in fact the only, argument upon which the opponents of any change in the present system or want of system rely is that the pilot organizations which at present exist at the principal ports cannot be maintained in a state of efficiency unless the compulsory payment of fees is continued. That there would not be a sufficient inducement for trained pilots to hold themselves in readiness for service when called upon, and that, as a consequence, those vessels which required the services of a pilot could not depend on having their requirements met, and navigation would be attended with greater risks to life and property than it is at present. But it has been shown by the experience at New York during the period between 1845 and 1853, when vessels entering by the way of Sandy Hook were not subject to any regulations, concerning the employment of pilots, that the compulsory system is not needed to secure efficiency in the service. The experience on the coast of Maine, the most dangerous on the Atlantic seaboard, has also demonstrated the fact that even in the less frequented ports it is not necessary to tax vessels which do not require pilots in order to maintain an organization for those who do require them. The vessels engaged in the coastwise trade and the fisheries are owned largely by persons of moderate means, and the master generally has an interest in the vessel or the cargo. Where there is any doubt on the part of the insurers as to the capacity of the master to judge of the expediency of employing a pilot on entering or leaving a harbor, they can insert a provision in the policy of insurance requiring the vessel to take a pilot.

It is stated that the average capacity of vessels engaged in the coastwise trade is about 350 tons each. On that basis the charges for pilotage would be from $35 to $45 each time a vessel enters or leaves a harbor. It is a tax which, in the present depressed condition of the shipping interests, bears heavily upon a class of people who are specially deserving of consideration and encouragement, and it is sufficient in many cases to change the adventure from one furnishing a moderate return on the capital invested to one in which there is a positive loss. From the statements presented in the report regarding the unnecessary charges upon the coasting trade for pilotage when no pilots are taken and none required, the Commissioner says it is evident the time has arrived for the government to again interpose its authority and remove the restrictions and burdens which have been imposed upon commercial intercourse between the several States. It is certainly time for Congress to interfere when thousands of dollars are annually collected at Hell Gate from vessels merely passing through Long Island Sound from ports south of New York to ports north, or vice versa, for which no service whatever is rendered.

POSTAGE ON THIRD CLASS MAIL MATTER.

The bill fixing the rate of postage on third class mail matter passed the Senate to-day in the following form:—

Be it enacted, &c. That mail matter of the third class shall embrace all pamphlets, occasional publications, regular publications devoted primarily to advertising purposes, or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal subscription rates, prices current, catalogues, annuals, handbills, posters, unsealed circulars, prospectuses, books bound or unbound, book manuscripts, proof sheets, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples of merchandise, sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes and wrappers, cards, plain and ornamental paper, photographic representations, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and all other matter which may be declared mailable by law as third class matter, and all other articles not above the weight prescribed by law which are not from their form or nature liable to destroy, deface or otherwise injure the contents of the mail bags or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. All liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials and obscene books or papers shall be excluded from the mails.

SECTION 2.—That packages of matter of the third class shall not exceed four pounds in weight, and shall be subject to examination and the rate of postage hereinafter provided. The postage on mail matter of the third class shall be at the following rate:—For all distances one cent for each ounce or fractional part thereof. Every package of the third class of mail matter shall bear the post mark of the office at which the same shall be mailed for transportation.

SEC. 3.—That postages on third class matter shall be prepaid by stamps. If, however, the postage on third class matter mailed at an office shall be less than the full amount above prescribed in cases where the sender is known, such sender shall be notified of the fact, and the amount of postage due shall be collected from such sender before the same shall be transmitted by mail. In case the sender is not known and it has not been the evident intention of the party so depositing the package to place less than the full postage thereon, such package shall be forwarded and double the amount of the deficient postage shall be collected from the party to whom it is addressed or delivered at its proper destination.

SEC. 4.—That the sender of any article of the third class of mail matter may write his or her name on the outside thereof, with the word "from" above or preceding the same, or may write briefly or print on any package the number and names of the articles enclosed.

Publishers of newspapers and periodicals may print on the wrappers of newspapers or magazines sent from the office of publication to regular subscribers the time to which such subscription therefor has been paid.

SEC. 5.—That transient newspapers and magazines shall be admitted to and transmitted in the mails at the rate of one cent for every three ounces, or fractional part thereof, and one cent for each two additional ounces or fractional part thereof.

SEC. 6.—That this act shall take effect on and after the 1st day of July, 1876.

THE SILVER BILL IS PASSED BY BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS.

The Silver bill having been passed by both Houses of Congress now awaits the President's signature. It is as follows:—

Be it enacted, &c., That there be and hereby is appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $163,000 to provide for engraving and printing and other expenses of making and issuing United States notes, and the further sum of $48,000 to provide for engraving and printing national bank notes, to be disbursed under the Secretary of the Treasury.

SECTION 2.—That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to issue silver coins of the United States of the denominations of ten, twenty, twenty-five and fifty cents of standard value in redemption of an equal amount of fractional currency, whether the same be now in the Treasury awaiting redemption, or whenever it may be presented for redemption, and the Secretary of the Treasury may, under regulations of the Treasury Department, provide for such redemption and issue by substitution at the regular Sub Treasuries and public depositories of the United States until the whole amount of fractional currency outstanding shall be redeemed, and the fractional currency redeemed under this act shall be held to be part of the sinking fund provided for by the existing law, the interest to be computed thereon as in the case of bonds redeemed under the acts relating to the sinking fund.

GENERAL BABCOCK ON THE CRACKSMAN'S STORY—POSITIVE DENIAL OF ITS STATEMENTS.

General Babcock referring to the story of White or Miles published this morning, in which he seeks to connect him with the Washington safe burglary, authorizes the statement that he is not aware he ever saw the man; never had such conversation with him and Mr. Harrington or anybody else about the burglary, as White alleges; never met him on the cars between Washington and New York, and therefore could not have conversed with him on that subject.

General Babcock knew nothing about the man's trial except what he saw in the newspapers. In brief, General Babcock characterizes the convict's story as unqualifiedly false from beginning to end.

SECRETARY ROBESON ON THE FOREIGN NAVAL ACCOUNTS—A TARDY RECOGNITION OF THE LAW.

The Committee on Expenditures in the Navy Department to-day examined Secretary Robeson concerning the financial transactions of the department abroad through its agents, Seligman Brothers.

Representative Beebe, the chairman of the committee, directed the Secretary's attention to section 1,550 of the Revised Statutes, chapter 7, under the head of "General Provisions Relating to the Navy," which reads as follows:—

No person shall be employed or continued abroad to receive and pay money for the use of the naval service on foreign stations, whether under contract or otherwise, who has not been or shall not be appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Although this provision was originally passed by Congress in June, 1844, no instance is known where a special fiscal agent abroad for this department or any other has been appointed by the President concurrent with the Senate, as required by law. Secretary Robeson informed the committee that Seligman Brothers had been nominated to the Senate by the President within a week past as special fiscal agents at London. This is true, but the Senate has not yet acted upon it.

ALABAMA CLAIMS—PAYMENT OF THE AWARDS OF THE COMMISSIONERS.

The awards of the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims are now in process of settlement in the Treasury Department. Interest will be computed thereon to May 1, and the drafts made payable to the order of the claimants, it is expected, will be ready for transmission to the attorneys of record on that day. The award may also be collected by persons authorized by transfers, assignments or powers of attorney duly executed by the claimants after the issuing of warrants for their payment, which transfers, assignments and powers of attorney must recite the warrant of pay.

UNFORTUNATE FOR BRISTOW.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

It is unfortunate for Bristow that the duty should devolve upon him of announcing to the people the unpleasant results of republican stupidity and mismanagement—to call it by no worse name—in respect to the appropriation for fuel, light and water in the public buildings. It may be that Bristow is not to blame personally in this matter. It may be that the entire amount of the appropriation has been honestly applied to the purpose named, and that no portion of it has been diverted into political channels or used for carrying elections in the interest of the administration. But even though these facts should be clearly established, the "bottom" fact will still remain that a republican Congress is responsible for the insufficiency of the appropriation; and the man whose duty it is to apprise the public of that insufficiency, and to point out the unpleasant consequences thereof, will always be connected, in the public mind, with those consequences. Thoughtful persons, with time to give attention to the subject, will look behind Bristow to the really responsible cause of the trouble, the republican Congress; but the masses, recognizing simply the annoying fact that their mail facilities are interfered with by an order from Bristow, will regard Bristow as the cause of their annoyance. They will be all the more likely to do this in those cities where the custodians of public buildings have understood Bristow to mean that the public is to be annoyed in any event, and have refused the voluntary offers of citizens and gaslight companies to furnish light without charge. In such cities Bristow will be unhesitatingly condemned not only by the masses, but by thinking men as well; for there are few, even among the most violent of partisans, who care to have their business interests interfered with for the obtaining of a possible partisan advantage.

It is to be regretted on many accounts that Bristow has put himself in this unfortunate position. Heretofore Bristow has stood remarkably well with men of all parties, being obnoxious only to extreme administrationists in and out of the Whiskey Ring. Now, by what may be the mere accident of his position, he has suddenly become obnoxious to business men of all parties, whose interests he seems to have trifled with. He may show, perhaps, in time, that he has done nothing more than his duty; but he has lost his hold upon popular favor, and it is doubtful if he can ever fully regain it.

LITERATURE AND ART.

THE ROYAL COPYRIGHT COMMISSION IN ENGLAND—NAMES OF THE COMMISSIONERS—NOTES ON THE FORTHCOMING ACADEMY—WHAT THE ARTISTS HAVE ACCOMPLISHED.

LONDON, April 1, 1876.

The meeting of the Royal Copyright Commission still continues to be postponed, chiefly on account of a difficulty in selecting properly representative men to fill the vacancies created by the resignations of Lord Roseberry, Mr. Bourke, Sir Louis Malet and Mr. Farrer. As far as regards the discussion of any project having reference to an international treaty with the United States, the facts of any interest up to the present would appear to be these:—If the commission was to be of any material benefit in altering the present unsatisfactory state of things between English authors and American publishers, it was clear that it was of the very essence of the inquiry that the authors most interested in securing an American copyright should present their own case. This, I am given to understand, they expressed an intention of declining to do, because, as they alleged, of the non-representative character of the commission. In effect they declared that no one on the commission was sufficiently well versed in literary matters to understand the complications of the present copyright law, and that to all intents and purposes the commission would prove a dead letter so far as they were concerned. Hence the recent resignations made, I believe, in response to urgent remonstrances laid before Mr. Disraeli. The is as follows:—Lord John Manners, chairman; Sir Henry Holland, M. P.; Sir John Rose, Sir Charles Young, Sir Julius Benedict, Sir Drummond Wolff, M. P.; Mr. Daldy, Mr. F. Herschell, M. P.; Mr. Jenkins, M. P.; Mr. Fitzjames Stephen, Q. C., and Dr. William Smith, with Mr. Leybourne Goddard, barrister-at-law, as secretary.

PRESENT CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMISSION

The four vacancies will be filled by gentlemen more intimately connected by actual work with literature and the drama. The difficulty seems to be in selecting from such class men of sufficient influence, position and business capacity to be of any practical use on the commission. In the whole range of dramatists there is probably no better man than but his appointment would not altogether conciliate dramatic authors; nor would Mr. Reade's nor Mr. Wilkie Collins' appointment be acceptable to English authors. And so the matter stands. Lord Carlingford has been offered a seat at the commission in place of Lord Roseberry, but for what reason no one precisely knows. As a dispenser of magnificent hospitality His Lordship is best known to English society, and, as the third husband of the Countess of Waldegrave, he no doubt possesses strong claim to recognition as a liberal patron of science, literature and the arts. Besides which he was once Chief Secretary for Ireland. While these complications have arisen to the due assembling of the commission it seems not unlikely that the London publishers will into suing for an international copyright treaty against their will, and before English authors are made aware of it. It has been a common practice for years past for the publishers in America to arrange with the publishers in England to take a set of stereotype plates of an author's book at cost price, the publisher in America paying to the author or publisher in England a royalty on the retail American sales of the book of ten per cent. The English publisher has just found out that he can drive a better bargain than this, and has insisted that the American publisher shall pay not only the cost of plates, but half the cost of composition as well. It is easy to foresee where this rather clever move is likely to end.

NECESSITY OF REFORM IN COPYRIGHT.

What with the protective American duty, cost of plates, half cost of composition and ten per cent on retail sales, the New York publisher will find himself in a better position dealing for the author's work in manuscript than in electrotype; and, consequently, in self-protection, will be driven to recognize English authors' rights without consideration of any collateral issue arising between himself and the London publisher. Any one versed in book making and book printing can easily see that if "half the cost of composition" is made to involve "authors' corrections" and "authors' additions," an international copyright treaty between England and the United States will be brought about without the interposition of any English royal commission. The only alternative will be for American publishers to open printing establishments in England.

ACADEMY NOTES.

The last day is past for sending in pictures for the forthcoming exhibition of the Royal Academy, and I am enabled to send you the following few particulars of the art prospects of the year. On the whole, the exhibition, which opens at Burlington House on the first Monday in May, promises this year to be beyond the average. Mr. Leighton, who probably stands first among the academicians for scholarly culture in art, high refinement and bold departure from the accepted traditions of the English school, sends a magnificent offering in the shape of a processional picture representing the Daphnephoria, or festival in honor of Apollo, celebrated at Thebes in every ninth year. This picture is certain to be one of the chief centres of interest in the Academy. A long train of maidens and children, models of Grecian grace and beauty, accompany the chosen young noble, who acts as the high priest of Apollo, to the temple where the services in honor of the god are to be held. Mr. Leighton's great learning and academic skill have enabled him to paint a classical picture of rare beauty, abounding in evidences of careful study and masterly ability in depicting the human figure, destined, I hear, to serve as a mural decoration at the country seat of Mr. J. Stewart Hodgson, at Lythe Hill, Haslemere. In fit company with the above is another charming classical piece, from the studio of representing "An Audience of Agrippa," one of the best of the many good works which this artist has given us. In this painting, as in all of Alma-Tadema's work, one's attention is absolutely riveted to the extraordinary imitative detail displayed in the drawing of the marbles. The painting of stone columns and steps seems to be an especial forte of the artist's, and most wonderfully natural are the results of his skill with the pencil in this direction. There is no story told in the painting, which is simply a truthful representation in oil of an everyday scene at the palace of the Roman King of the days of Paul and the Apostles. It is pleasing to be able to record the fact that two of Mr. Alma-Tadema's most famous paintings, the "Death of Claudius" and the "Vintage Procession," are now

MR. ALMA-TADEMA,

ON THEIR WAY TO THE CENTENNIAL

building at Philadelphia. Millais contributes, besides one of his usually charming studies of children, a Scotch landscape piece, fellow to his last year's "Fringe of the Moor." Mr. Herkomer, whose "Last Muster" (pensioners in Chelsea Hospital chapel) must have become familiar to every one through the admirable full-page illustration of the London Graphic, sends to this year's Academy "At Death's Door," representing a scene in the Bavarian Alps. The afflicted family of some sick person are assembled on their knees outside a poor looking Tyrolese hut, while a priest who is ascending the road is preparing to administer the sacrament of extreme unction. Leslie furnishes this season another study from girl life, bearing on the wholesome discussion by governess and children of duty toward one's neighbor. Mr. Yeames, one of the most rapidly rising of English artists, sends a scene suggested by the old days of English watering places, wherein the occupants of two sedan chairs, a lady and a gentleman, are discussing from the opened tops of their primitive conveyances. "A Year After Saarbruck" is the subject of Mr. E. M. Ward's chief contribution. Mr. Marcus Stone paints the story of an incident in the Reign of Terror. Mr. Calderon furnishes some pretty sketches from the life recollections of a recent visit to Arles. W. P. Frith again resorts to the chapter of some familiar piece of fiction as his subject, and depicts "Squire Thornhill's Morning Visit to the Primrose Family," from the "Vicar of Wakefield." And that very excellent and most pathetic of painters, Mr. S. L. Fildes, sends a picture which will draw tears from the eyes of many a person who views it—a rough laborer, splashed with mud and worn with toil, is nursing his dying child. The mother is peacefully at rest under the turf in the churchyard. The brothers and sister, engaged in their occupations about the homely dwelling, show no sympathy for the anxious father, whose agonized look plainly tells of the irreparable loss he has sustained in the death of the faithful and loving wife. There is plainly a big and affectionate heart thumping under the man's rough exterior which makes us long to offer him our consolation and sympathy.

"THE LAST BIT OF SCANDAL"

THE NEW LANDSEER.

Mr. Briton Riviere, on whom the mantle of Landseer seems very worthily to have fallen, for he appears to reign in the world of animals, goes to the country lane, at foot of a farm, for a humorous inspiration. "A Stern Chase Is Always a Long Chase" represents a wily white duck, of generous proportions and undeniable physical strength, who has just succeeded in arresting a plump speckled frog in his exit through the osiers. A clamorous and greedy crowd of young and old ducks following the swirl of the lucky duck suggest the possibility of there being no knowing who will have the frog after all. Mr. Riviere sends two more paintings of animals rendered with all the truth and strength of Landseer's drawing.

THE BLAINE SCANDAL.

The Record in the Union Pacific Railroad Books.

MR. ROLLINS' EXPLANATION TO MR. HARRISON.

POLITIC REASONS FOR SILENCE.

Positive Denial by the Ex-Speaker of the House.

HIS FORMER EXPLANATION

A Little Transaction For a Mythical Constituent.

BOSTON, April 12, 1876.

A communication to the Herald from New Hampshire states that the telegrams in the morning papers concerning the alleged payment of $64,000 to James G. Blaine by the Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad Company naturally create a sensation in Concord, where, for some time past,

MYSTERIOUS HINTS

have been thrown out that Mr. E. H. Rollins, the present Treasurer of the Union Pacific Railroad, was in possession of information concerning a money transaction to which Mr. Blaine was a party, and which, if it became public, would render his defeat as a candidate for any office absolutely certain. Latterly these hints have been given out with more freedom, and a few days ago it was positively stated by a prominent republican that Mr. Rollins had it in his power to

whenever he might choose to do so. The circulation of this remarkable statement among a few prominent republicans and the vague suspicion which has become general that Mr. Blaine had in some way compromised himself accounts for the reluctance to send Blaine as a delegate to the Cincinnati Convention which is so manifest in this State. It will be observed that the letters of Mr. Rollins and of Morton, Bliss & Co. in support of Mr. Blaine's denial sent to the Associated Press last night are worded with extra caution. The

that Mr. Blaine was not "known or supposed to have any interest of any kind," in any transaction with them, which would not preclude the existence of some transaction in which Mr. Blaine had acted as agent nominally for some other party. Mr. Rollins states that so far as he knows, Mr. Blaine has not been interested in any transaction with the Union Pacific Railroad company since April 8, 1871, but he does not say that there is no transaction recorded on the books of the Company previous to April 8, 1871, in which Mr. Blaine's name appears. There is nothing whatever in Mr. Rollins' denial that affects the truthfulness of the statements made on the authority of Mr. Harrison, of Indiana. That they are true will be undoubtedly shown in due time. A history of the transactions which Mr. Rollins was so eager to cover up will show that he felt anxious about it, and furthermore that Mr. Blaine's denial and Mr. Rollins' guarded letter of March 31, 1876, don't fit at all.

A VERY LONG STORY

is connected with this Union Pacific Railroad transaction, the details of which are known to very few persons. The record in the books of the company shows the purchase of a number of bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad Company in Arkansas by the company for no explained reason from Morton, Bliss & Co. some time in 1870, or early in 1871. Mr. Harrison, of Indiana, the government director, and J. F. Wilson, of Iowa, another government director, found this record in the books of the company, and could not understand why the Union Pacific Railroad Company should have paid these bankers $64,000 for a lot of valueless, or nearly valueless, Arkansas Railroad bonds. At the annual meeting in 1872 Mr. Harrison asked for an explanation, and was told by Mr. Rollins that Mr. Blaine got the money, and that for political reasons that matter should not be inquired into at that time. Now, the important fact which lies back of all that, as published in the Indianapolis Sentinel, is that an investigation was afterward made and it was found that the bonds purchased from the bankers by the railroad company were obtained by the bankers from Mr. Blaine; that Tom Scott, who was president of the company before Jay Gould got possession of the road, induced the bankers to take the bonds from Blaine and gave them his note for $64,000 as security; that Scott did not pay this note, but allowed it to become overdue and afterward that he caused a vote to be passed at a meeting of the Union Pacific Railroad Company to pay Morton, Bliss & Co. $64,000. The transaction, therefore, appears to have been simply a payment, under cover by the Union Pacific Company, to Mr. Blaine of $64,000, the bonds being of very slight value, if any at all. So much for the transaction as it is understood here.

MR. BLAINE'S EXPLANATION.

Mr. Blaine has recently been East, arming himself with data to meet this charge, as appears by the date of the letters of Mr. Rollins and Morton, Bliss & Co. The question will at once be asked, "What has Mr. Blaine to say to charges so grave?" It is understood that he does not deny that he sold the bonds to the bankers, but that he claims that his transaction was with the bankers alone, and that he was merely an agent in the matter. A short time ago he gave the following explanation of the matter to a friend:—He said that on one occasion, being at his home in Maine and about to visit New York city, a constituent of his asked him to take $75,000 of Fort Smith and Little Rock Railroad bonds and sell them for him in New York. When he reached New York he went around among the bankers and brokers in Wall street and tried to sell the bonds, but failed to find a purchaser, as there did not seem to be much demand for Arkansas railroad bonds in Wall street. While in the city he accidentally met Tom Scott, who asked him what he was doing there, and he told him about these railroad bonds he was trying to sell, but for which he could not find a purchaser. Thereupon Scott told him he thought he could find him a purchaser, and immediately after Scott arranged the matter, and all that Mr. Blaine knew was that Morton, Bliss & Co. took the bonds and he took the $64,000 home and gave it to his constituent. Mr. Blaine asserted, in making this explanation, that he had no interest whatever in the transaction.

THREE QUESTIONS.

There are three questions instantly suggested by this explanation:—First, who was Mr. Blaine's constituent for whom he made such a profitable sale? Second, why was Mr. Thomas Scott so willing to pay Mr. Blaine's constituent $64,000 for a lot of worthless railroad bonds? Third, why was the purchase money charged to the Union Pacific Railroad company?

A STRONG EXPRESSION FROM THE MAINE STATESMAN ON THE SUBJECT.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1876.

The following is a copy of the letter written by Mr. Blaine to a friend in Michigan, a short time since, touching the story made public in the Indianapolis Sentinel, and telegraphed over the country yesterday:—

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22, 1876.

MY DEAR FRIEND—Yours received. I beg you will not be disturbed by Washington rumors respecting myself. The story of my ever having received money or anything else of value from the Union Pacific Railroad Company, or any of its officers or agents, is not only false but absurd. There is not the remotest foundation for it, and I can scarcely conceive that any one would be credulous enough to believe it. It has been circulating in Washington for some weeks past in an indefinite, irresponsible and intangible way. Whenever it shall assume form and shape and publicity it will receive a conclusive answer. Meanwhile, I trust you will hold a peaceful mind. I shall never be injured by stories of this kind.

Sincerely yours, J. G. BLAINE.

WHAT MORTON, BLISS & CO. SAY.

A reporter yesterday called at the banking house of Morton, Bliss & Co., in the Drexel Building, and meeting one of the firm questioned him as to certain rumors as to transactions between Colonel Tom Scott and his house. On being informed that it was asserted in Washington that Colonel Scott on one occasion gave his note for $64,000 and deposited as collateral certain Arkansas bonds, and that later the Union Pacific Railroad Company paid the note and withdrew the bonds from their house, he stated that ever occurred, that Colonel Scott never gave a note of this nature nor deposited Arkansas bonds. He further said, when told that Mr. Blaine admitted having sold bonds to Colonel Scott on account of a friend, that he knew nothing as to the matter. Certainly this house had never had transactions of any kind with Blaine.

CHARLES O'CONOR.

The Charges Against Him Pronounced Malicious.

OPINIONS OF PROMINENT LAWYERS.

His Defence of Mrs. Forrest Thought to be Kind, Generous and Chivalrous.

PRESENTATION LETTERS AND SPEECHES.

Mr. Charles O'Conor's reply to the charges made against him in connection with his action as counsel for Mrs. Edwin Forrest in the celebrated Forrest divorce suit, which was published in full in the HERALD, naturally formed a principal topic of conversation throughout all circles yesterday. It was among lawyers that the subject was fully discussed.

As samples of the general opinion held by the most eminent lawyers of this city interviews are published which were had with Chief Justice C. P. Daly, ex-Judge Fullerton and Henry L. Clinton. Appended also will be found the statements of both Mr. Henry Sedley and Mrs. Sinclair (Forrest), in which it will be found they maintain the charges to be true.

With regard to the assertion that has been made that it was with a view to support herself that Mrs. Forrest went on the stage, a contrary opinion was expressed yesterday to the writer. Indeed, some of her former friends, occupying prominent positions in the community, state in most positive language that the very fact of her appearance on the stage furnishes the proof that she always expected to pay Mr. O'Conor for his services. She repeatedly, they say, stated that it was in order to obtain money to pay him his costs that she intended to appear before the public. Her début was against the express wish of her counsel and others interested in her, for it was thought such a proceeding could but tend to prejudice her case.

JUDGE C. P. DALY'S VIEWS.

In a conversation with Hon. Charles P. Daly, Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, that gentleman stated that he thought the reply of Mr. O'Conor to the charges that had been made against him was hardly required, for no one believed in their truth. He, as a lawyer, did not imagine that Mr. O'Conor ever intended to have the idea conveyed that he had entered the suit as counsel, without expectation of ultimately recovering his costs. These costs were exceedingly small for the magnitude of the case and the length of time in which he was engaged in asserting Mrs. Forrest's rights. He thought Mr. O'Conor had behaved most magnanimously. The case was a most intricate and complicated one, and but few lawyers could have carried it through to such a successful issue. The idea that Mr. O'Conor was to receive no pay had probably gotten abroad from the fact that it was known that his client had no money to expend, and that he, in order to win the battle, was obliged to pay out large sums from his own pocket, but that he felt sure of ultimately winning a victory, and, as a consequence, the settlement of his fees. At the time he (Judge Daly) made the presentation to Mr. O'Conor on behalf of the ladies he had conceived no idea either then or before that that gentleman had been acting gratuitously. It was not so understood, as far as he knew, by any of the subscribers to the present, or by the profession generally. Mr. O'Conor he always looked upon as a most upright man and cultured gentleman, whose honor could not be impeached. The charges, he thought, were wilfully malicious as well as frivolous. He had not had time, he said, to read Mr. O'Conor's reply as presented to the Bar Association, and was, therefore, unable to talk upon that point.

HENRY L. CLINTON'S OPINION.

In answer to questions put to him yesterday by the writer, Mr. Henry L. Clinton said substantially as follows:—With regard to the charges made against Mr. O'Conor, I think them simply absurd. They were so thought when they were first published, and there was no necessity for Mr. O'Conor to notice them in any way; yet, for all that, I think his course has been wise if only as an example to younger members of the Bar. In respect to the charges made by Mr. O'Conor in his bill of costs I think they have were ridiculously low, in fact the amount he received in all was by no means a fair remuneration for his services. The suit lasted nineteen years. That he ever intended that it should be considered that he was acting as counsel gratuitously I do not for one instant believe. He simply, in the first place, had no idea that the legal proceedings would spread over so long a period, and in the next, not doubting his finally securing a verdict in favor of Mrs. Forrest, he generosity and sympathy for a woman situated as Mrs. Forrest was, was content to help her and trust to the future for his reward. The suit was a costly one, and Mr. O'Conor advanced large sums to carry it on, and it was probably from this fact becoming known that the impression got abroad that he was acting without fee. I think, however, such a supposition would be preposterous, for how could a man like Mr. O'Conor afford to give so many years of his time for nothing? As it turned out I fancy he would have been better without ever having had anything to do with the case whatever, for after all, I figure out that he was, at the time of the settlement, several thousand dollars in cash worse off than when he went into the case, taking into consideration the loan he made of $15,000 to one party and smaller sums to others. The charges were published I feel certain in order that some private end might be gained, and I am the more convinced of that since reading Mr. O'Conor's statement, for, in his remarks he makes allusions to several facts which, considered in conjunction, are very significant. Mr. O'Conor's action throughout, I think, was most kind, generous and chivalric.

JUDGE FULLERTON'S OPINION.

A visit was paid by a HERALD reporter yesterday afternoon to Judge William W. Fullerton, of the firm of Fullerton, Knox & Crosby, with a view to obtaining the opinion of the Judge in regard to the charges against Mr. Charles O'Conor. The following conversation ensued:—

REPORTER—Judge, have you read the answer of Mr. Charles O'Conor to the charges made against him with reference to his action in regard to Mrs. Forrest?

Judge FULLERTON—Yes, I have. I read nearly all of it.

REPORTER—Do you think there is any just foundation to the charge?

Judge FULLERTON—I think it is a gratuitous and unnecessary criticism on a really kind action. The world will never know the amount of real hard work that Charles O'Conor gave to that case. It was one of the most complicated suits that was ever brought to trial, and yet in all the numerous counter actions that were brought he never made a false step and gained every point for his client that could be secured by law.

REPORTER—What do you think about his bill of charges?

Judge FULLERTON—I think it not one quarter sufficient to compensate him for the amount of work he put into the case.

REPORTER—But it is reported that he agreed to conduct the case without any fee.

Judge FULLERTON—That is hardly probable, but such a story may probably have arisen through the fact that there was very little prospect of his ever reaping any benefit from the cause, as very few people believed that Mrs. Forrest would gain her suit.

REPORTER—It was not a favorable suit, then, that he had undertaken?

Judge FULLERTON—I should say not, especially when Forrest entered a counter action against Mrs. Forrest for adultery. People's opinions were divided; some were with Forrest and some with Mrs. Forrest.

REPORTER—You have been a partner of Mr. O'Conor?

Judge FULLERTON—Yes, sir, I joined him on the day he was summing up Mrs. Forrest's case. He took a very great interest in the plaintiff or he never would have advanced her the large sums of money which she received from him time by time. He paid all the expenses of the suit and made special advances to her at regular intervals.

REPORTER—Then, in your opinion, Judge, Mr. Charles O'Conor has acted in every shape and form as a gentleman should have done?

Judge FULLERTON—Yes, sir; I do not think for one moment that Mr. O'Conor would ever commit any act reflecting discredit on the profession of which he is such a brilliant ornament.

MRS. SINCLAIR AND MR. SEDLEY.

In reply to the inquiries of a HERALD reporter Mr. Henry Sedley said yesterday that at present he would prefer to say nothing in the newspapers in response to Mr O'Conor's document. If a properly constituted committee for the investigation of the whole matter calls on him he will be ready to lay before them such evidence in his possession, as the nearest male connection of Mrs. Sinclair, as bears upon the questions at issue. From this assertion it is clear that he is not willing to concede all that Mr. O'Conor states, but for the present prefers to be silent.

As for Mrs. Sinclair, she adheres to the statements she made in the original report. She did not seek their publicity, but merely made the assertions credited to her in response to direct questions. She, too, prefers to say nothing about the matter at present, more than that her first statements are true.

THE LADIES' VASE.

The following is a copy of the letter sent by Judge Charles P. Daly to Mr. O'Conor, presenting to the latter, on the part of thirty ladies of New York, a vase of silver, as an expression of their admiration of the counsellor in his defence of Mrs. Forrest. Appended also is Mr. O'Conor's reply:—

JUDGE DALY'S LETTER.

DEAR SIR—Will you accept the accompanying gift, as expressing only in a small measure an admiration and sense of obligation for your noble conduct toward one of our own sex?

But for your prompt and generous espousal of Mrs. Forrest's cause and the unflinching energy and endurance with which you conducted it, her triumph over seemingly resistless injustice and calumny probably never would have been gained.

We have sympathized with her in her wrongs and rejoiced with her in her vindications, yet we ask your acceptance of this expression of our regard, not only because you were her companion, but because we feel that, in vindicating successfully her character against what had almost overwhelmed it, you raised a wall of defence around every home and fireside in this community, and that every woman's fair name is safer by the example.

By this, your most chivalrous defence of the weak against the strong, you have won for yourself the admiring respect of the public at large, and especially the sex whose sentiments the givers of this memorial believe they represent.

With two or three exceptions, we are personally strangers to your client and yourself; but we offer our sincere wishes for your happiness, and remain, gratefully and respectfully, your friends, THIRTY LADIES OF NEW YORK.
FEBRUARY 24, 1852.

CHARLES O'CONOR HONORED BY JUDGE DALY—MR. O'CONOR'S REPLY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28, 1852.

Hon. CHARLES P. DALY:—

MY DEAR SIR—To my kind countrywomen, whose rich gift and far richer words of commendation you have borne me, I ask leave to convey, through you, their chosen herald, the expression of my deep felt thankfulness.

They have estimated altogether too highly my humble services upon the occasion alluded to.

To afford even those whom impartial justice arraigns upon credible evidence a fair hearing is the first duty of our profession; nor is the duty of any class in social life observed with more untiring diligence and scrupulous fidelity. Consequently, when a friendless woman, of reputation till then unblemished and of a carriage which afforded no ground for suspicion, made her appeal for a defender against charges not sustained by plausible evidence and prosecuted in a manner which denoted a consciousness of their injustice, you, sir, as a lawyer and a judge, know full well from your own experience how cheerfully any of my peers at the Bar would have assumed the office and deemed it, as I did, a boon rather than a burden.

An enlightened Court and jury, upon whose fronts the Maker had written that they were true to the best instincts of our nature, made the way from its outset

A PATH OF PLEASANTNESS.

My task was, therefore, easy. By the righteous verdict of that jury, and not by any agency of mine, was American justice vindicated and innocence reassured of its safety against wrong, however powerful and unscrupulous the assailant.

That result was an ample reward for whatever of labor devolved upon me, yet I most gratefully accept the unhoped for addition now so delicately tendered. I am forbidden to recognize the individual doners, and can respond only to the principle which they represent.

Let me, then, pray for myself and my brethren of the Bar, that we may ever cherish with unswerving devotion the pure and elevated sentiments which their approval has consecrated. With great respect and esteem I am, dear sir, yours truly, CHARLES O'CONOR.

THE SECOND PRESENTATION.

A short time after the presentation of the "Ladies Vase" a number of members of the Bar met at the residence of General Charles W. Sandford in order to testify their admiration and approval of Mr. O'Conor's conduct in the Forrest case. The testimonial selected to be given him in the first place took the form of a banquet, succeeded by the presenting to him by Mr. Daniel Lord of a handsome silver pitcher, which had been subscribed for by eighty of the most distinguished members of the Bar. The following are the addresses delivered on that occasion, together with the inscription on the plate:—

MR. DANIEL LORD'S ADDRESS.

SIR—Your professional friends have witnessed your conduct of the Forrest case with admiration, but without surprise. You defended a deserted wife sought to be repudiated with disgrace. You proved, by the law and the evidence, to the Court and jury, that she was innocent. You converted your defence into a conquest. You filled with success that office of the profession which allies it to chivalry.

We could not fail to notice the patience, labor and perseverance with which you did your duty; your forbearance under trying circumstances; your steadfastness in battling with unexpected difficulties. We may but allude to your disinterestedness and ability, your learning and eloquence; but we may and do sympathize in the gratification of your success. We do not presume to speak for the public; it has long spoken for itself in the confidence it reposes in you. We take no part in the so far terminated controversy—it would not become us. Simply as members of your profession we appreciate this effort so successfully made. We would perpetuate our estimation of it by an enduring memorial of our respect and esteem.

We know that one gift, now before you, will not be the less acceptable from its being the gift of friends. By strangers it may be thought more honorable to you as recording the verdict of your peers and competitors, the competent judges, the daily witnesses of your professional life.

Accept this expression of the honor in which we hold you. We feel that in this expression we do honor to ourselves.

MR. O'CONOR'S ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

MR. LORD AND YOU, GENTLEMEN, MY HONORED ASSOCIATES AT THE BAR:—

For the high distinction you have conferred upon me I can only return my simple thanks. Adequately to express the emotions it has excited is impossible. The studies of our profession are directed to the ascertainment of truth; the aim of its more active labors is the enforcement of justice. The voice of approval from a class engaged in such elevating pursuits carries with it the weight of authority. But I am not so vain as to think that this, your generous act, is due to your having discovered any peculiar virtue in me or in my actions. It is a principle, and not this simple instance of conformity to it, that elicits your applause.

The Bar has ever devoted itself with courage and disinterestedness to the defence of the feeble and the oppressed. It was my good fortune to be selected on an exciting occasion to exemplify the fact, and my whole merit consists in this, that I did not fail in a duty which the first rule of our profession rigidly exacts from all its members. Your judgment in my favor, permanently recorded in this beautiful gift, is an honor of inestimable value. The consciousness of having received it will brighten every future of my life. Deep gratitude to you for its bestowal will animate my latest moments.

THE INSCRIPTION.

On the pitcher was engraved the arms of the O'Connor Don, with the motto, "From God Cometh the Succoring Champion." Besides the arms, which in heraldic parlance are argent, an oak tree vert; crest, an arm in armor embowed, holding a sword, argent pommelled and hilted or, entwined with a snake proper. On the reverse was the following inscription:—

Presented to
by his associates of the New York Bar to evince their appreciation of the integrity which has distinguished him as a man and an advocate; and of the zeal, disinterestedness, learning and eloquence which have rendered his professional career illustrious.

CHINESE MANIFESTO.

[From the Alta California.]

TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC:—

The United States has been open to Chinese emigration for more than twenty years. Many Chinamen have come; few have returned. Why is this? Because, among our Chinese people, a few in California have acquired a fortune and returned home with joy. A desire to obtain a competency having arisen in the heart, our people have not shrunk from toil and trouble. They have expected to come here for one or two years and make a little fortune and return. Who among them ever thought of all these difficulties? Expensive rents, expensive living. A day without work means a day without food. For this reason, though wages are low, yet they are compelled to labor and live in daily poverty, quite unable to return to their native land. Now this honorable country is discussing the importance of prohibiting the further emigration of the Chinese. This is very good indeed. First, because it will relieve the American people of trouble and anxiety of mind; secondly, the Chinese will no longer be wanderers in a foreign land. Both parties will thus be benefited. But this result should be brought about in a reasonable manner. It is said that the six Chinese companies buy and import Chinamen into this country. How can such things be said? Our six companies have, year after year, sent letters discouraging our people from coming to this country, but the people have not believed us and have continued to come. The necessary expenses of these poor newcomers are a constant drain upon the resources of those already settled here, so that the Chinese residents of this country are also opposed to this rapid Chinese emigration. But the capitalists of this honorable country are constantly calling for Chinese cheap labor. The white laboring men of this country are very angry because the Chinese obtain employment which they claim belongs to white men alone, and so they hate the Chinamen, sometimes throw stones at them, sometimes strike them on the street and constantly curse them. The Chinese people cannot return such treatment in the same kind, lest other nations hearing of such things should ridicule the laws of this honorable country as of no use. To prohibit the Chinese from coming to this country is not a difficult task. Formerly His Imperial Majesty our august Emperor made a treaty of amity and friendship with the government of this honorable country, opening the commercial relations and permitting free intercommunication between the people of the two countries. This treaty is in accordance with the law of all nations. And now if the American people do not desire the Chinese to come here, why not go to the Emperor and ask a repeal of the treaty, or why not limit the number of immigrants on each steamer to a very few. Then more would return and fewer would come, and, not ten years would elapse before not a trace of the Chinamen would be left in this great and honorable country. Would not that be well indeed? But let there be counsel and consideration. It cannot be said that Chinese labor impoverishes this country, and are not the customs paid by the Chinese a benefit to this country? Now, let the government of the United States propose to the government of China a repeal or change of the treaty prohibiting the people of either country from crossing the ocean, then shall we Chinese forever remain at home and enjoy the happiness of fathers, mothers, wives and children, and no longer remain strangers in a strange land. Then the white laborers of this country shall no longer be troubled by the competition of the Chinese, and our Chinese people no longer be subjected to the abuses and indignities now daily heaped upon them in the open streets of this so-called Christian land. If this can be accomplished, we Chinese will continually offer to the virtue of this honorable country our deepest gratitude and thanks. SIX CHINESE COMPANIES.

PROBABLY FATAL ASSAULT.

Otto Kurber and Charles Schnitzer, the alleged assailants of Frederick Rubsam, at Greenville, were arrested and locked up in the Fourth precinct station at Jersey City yesterday. Rubsam is in a very critical condition and his physician states that if fever sets in he will die. Rubsam presided at at a meeting of a German club on Monday night, and had a warm dispute with the prisoners relative to the business of the club. After the meeting adjourned Rubsam was on his way home through Bergen avenue, when he was attacked and felled to the ground by a terrible blow from one of the prisoners. They then fell upon him and beat him till he became insensible. He was carried to his home in an unconscious condition. He identified both the prisoners as his assailants.

HOLY WEEK.

THE TENEBRÆ IN THE CHURCHES YESTERDAY—ILLNESS OF THE CARDINAL ARCHBISHOP—PREPARATIONS FOR MAUNDY THURSDAY.

The first of the three most solemn days of Holy Week was yesterday observed in the Catholic churches with the usual ceremonies. In each church the masses were celebrated in purple vestments and the altars, crucifixes, pictures, statues and candlesticks were all covered with cloth of the same color. The sacred edifices presented an appearance of mourning in harmony with the scenes in the Redeemer's life which the Church was commemorating. To-day and to-morrow these commemorations will be continued. The office of the Tenebræ was sung in many of the churches yesterday morning or afternoon, the faithful attending in large numbers, thus testifying by their devotion their strong belief in the Scriptural and traditional history of the terrible closing of Christ's life on earth. During the day, also, crowds of men and women, the latter especially, went through the devotion known as the "Stations of the Cross," which consists in saying some prayers before the pictures representing the different stages of Christ's passion. The churches in which the office of the Tenebræ was sung were St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Mulberry street; St. Stephen's, in East Twenty-eighth street; St. Joseph's, Sixth avenue and Washington place; St. Ann's, East Twelfth street; St. Francis Xavier's (Jesuit), West Sixteenth street; St. Vincent Ferrer's (Dominican), Sixty-fifth street and Lexington avenue; St. Nicholas', Second street; Church of the Holy Redeemer (Redemptorist), Third street, and the Franciscan church, Sullivan street.

At the Cathedral in the afternoon the service was presided over by the Very Rev. Vicar General Quinn owing to the absence of the Cardinal Archbishop. The priests present were the Rev. Father Kearney, Rev. Father Kane, Rev. Father Mori, Rev. Father Hogan and some fifteen others from various churches in the city. As is customary, some of the students from the ecclesiastical seminary at Troy were in attendance, those selected to participate in this year's ceremonies being Rev. Mr. Dougherty, deacon; Rev. Mr. Lane, sub-deacon, and Messrs. Fitzpatrick and Quinn, all of whom will take a prominent part in the ceremonies of the week, as they did in the singing of the "Lamentations." These "Lamentations," as the world knows, are of the most plaintive style of Gregorian music, and when well sung, as they were yesterday afternoon at the Cathedral, fills the hearts of listeners with sympathy and fervor, which are increased by the saddened appearance of the sanctuaries. The chanting of the office en choro was the essential feature of the service. After each verse of the "Benedictus" one of the candles on the triangular candlestick was extinguished, and while the "Miserere" was being sung the top light was concealed behind the altar, and at the close of the office a noise was made by slight clapping of hands, when the hidden candle was brought forth to be replaced on the candlestick from which it was taken—the convulsed state of nature at Christ's death and His ever present divinity being thus suggested.

His Eminence Cardinal McCloskey was not present at the service yesterday, nor will he be at any of the services during the week. The health of His Eminence continues to be very bad. The greatest sympathy has been manifested toward him in his illness by the priests of the city, especially at this time, when his presence is so much missed from the services of Holy Week. It was hoped last week that the Cardinal would be able to officiate this morning at the consecration of the holy oils, a ceremony which takes place only on Maundy Thursday of each year, but, by the advice of his physicians His Eminence concluded that it would be a very imprudent step for him to take, as it would necessitate celebrating mass in the church, and he would be, therefore, obliged to fast until about one o'clock in the afternoon, a fatigue which he was not at all able to endure. Under these painful circumstances the oils for the archdiocese of New York will be consecrated this morning by Bishop Loughlin, of Brooklyn, and then conveyed to the sacristy of St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Mulberry street, where, in the usual manner, the priests of New York can receive them during the day.

The service at the Cathedral this morning will begin at ten o'clock, Vicar General Quinn officiating. On Good Friday morning the service will also begin at ten o'clock, the Rev. Father Farley officiating as celebrant, and the sermon being preached by the Rev. Father Henning, of the Redemptorist Order. At the Easter Sunday high mass the sermon will be preached by one of the Jesuit Fathers of the Church of St. Francis Xavier.

In all the Catholic churches yesterday the greatest activity prevailed in the preparations for the repositories or temporary altars on which to-day reposes the blessed sacrament for the adoration of the faithful. At the service this morning the sacrament will be carried in procession from the principal altar to the repository, and will be brought back to-morrow morning during the mass of the presanctified to be consumed by the officiating priest, there being no consecration of the host on Good Friday, the only day in the year that such is the case. The ladies of the different altar societies and ladies of wealth and leisure usually devote themselves to the adorning of these temporary altars for Maundy Thursday. Costly articles of gold, precious vases and other suitable objects are loaned to the churches for the occasion. The most beautiful flowers of the season and the choicest exotic plants are tastefully arranged around the altars, and numberless lights make the resting places of the blessed sacrament resplendent. The greatest taste and skill are displayed annually in these decorations. The faithful worshippers go round during the day and evening to visit these altars, spending a brief time in prayer and the admiration of the illuminated little sanctuary in each.

The office of the Tenebræ will also be sung to-day and to-morrow in those churches in which it was sung yesterday.

MOODY AND SANKEY.

Next Wednesday evening will be the last of the revival meetings, and the crowds in attendance at the Hippodrome in consequence increase day by day. At the noon meeting yesterday, at which there was an immense audience, Mr. Moody spoke on the "Water of eternal life," and he was followed by Rev. Drs Osborne, Armitage and others. Mr. Sankey sang the 123d hymn, "I know not the hour when my Lord shall come," and Rev. Dr. Kirkpatrick delivered the benediction. At the opening of the afternoon meeting Rev. Dr. Hepworth read an extraordinary large number of requests for prayer. Rev. Mr. Praisted prayed and Mr. Sankey sang a solo, a new hymn, "We are Marching to Canaan with Banner and Song," and also the hymn, "There is a land of pure delight." The subject of Mr. Moody's lecture was "The Two Adams."

Mr. Moody announced that next Wednesday night, being the last night of these meetings, the hall would be reserved for young converts, and tickets could be procured during the week.

In the evening there were 8,000 people in the Madison avenue hall and an overflow meeting of 4,000 persons in the Fourth avenue hall. Mr. Moody's sermon was on "Decision," from the text, "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow him." He said:—There are a great many professions of sympathy in this world which do not mean anything, and there are a great many people who profess to love God, but profession means nothing but self. No one here cares about these vacillating people, neither does God care for them. If you don't think there is anything in religion why come to these meetings? If you don't believe in the Bible, if there is no hereafter, this is the only life, why, let us burn up all the Bibles. Let us turn our churches into theatres and dance houses. Let us eat, drink and be merry, for we will soon be gone. I hope to see the day when men will be either infidels or Christians. Let them come out and say it. But I never saw an infidel that wanted to live in a country where there were not Christians nor no Bible.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Yesterday the Conference, after an hour and a half of secret council, decided to shut the door against all applicants for admission on trial this year because it is full. A class of thirteen young men are therefore laid over for another year.

The following named Triers of Appeals were appointed by the Bishop:—Revs. Dr. Curry, H. F. Pease, J. Roche, G. Taylor, J. M. Buckley, W. McAllister and L. S. Weed. The examining committees were also appointed for the next year. On the Preliminary Course, Rev. F. Brown chairman; on the first year's course, Rev. C. M. Griffin chairman; second year, G. Stillman chairman; third year, J. Smith chairman; fourth year, L. S. Weed chairman. On Local Preachers for Deacon's Orders, C. B. Ford chairman. On Local Preachers for Elders' Orders, C. W. Fordham chairman. To preach the missionary sermon, Rev. T. H. Burch alternate. Church extension and missionary boards were elected also. Chaplain McCabe addressed the Conference in the interest of church extension. During the ten years' existence of his society it has aided 1,700 churches, 769 of which are in the South. It has $250,000 in its loan fund and $150,000 more is on the way there by bequests. It has turned over $60,000 twice since the beginning of its career, until every third church in this country belongs now to Methodists of one name or another and one-fifth of all the people in this country profess Methodist faith. The report on education conveyed the pleasing intelligence that Mr. A. V. Stout had given $40,000 to Wesleyan University and $40,000 to Drew Seminary to endow the president's chair in each, and Mr. Oliver Hoyt has given $25,000 to a professorship in the first named institution. Mr. Stout has also given $10,000 to the Church Extension Society. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society raised and expended last year $60,000.

The amounts raised for the support of the bishops was $1,345, a decrease from last year of $396; for church building and improvements, $130,745, and for ministerial support, $238,781, which shows a reduction of $11,389 from last year. The debts on the churches and parsonages of the Conference, amount to $726,552 on a total valuation of $4,905,600; 110 churches failed to take any collection for the episcopal fund. The chief statistics of the Conference show 38,455 members and 5,711 probationers, 237 local preachers, 281 Sunday schools, with 5,962 officers and teachers and 43,943 pupils, 276 churches and 140 parsonages, valued as above. The benevolent collections were:—For the Missionary Society, $27,558; for the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, $2,121; for church extension, $1,690; for tract distribution, $1,009; for Sunday School Union, $1,007; for education, $704; for Freedmen's Aid Society, $1,246. The Secretary of the Conference was requested to send to the Centennial Commission a resolution asking them to exclude intoxicating drinks from the Centennial grounds. Appointments will be made to-day.

NEW JERSEY RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES.

The Classis of Newark, a body composed of members of the Reformed Dutch Church, have just concluded a session at Woodside. Before adjourning Rev. George S. Bishop offered a resolution which proposed to instruct the delegates to the General Synod to advocate the immediate dissolution of any committee which might be appointed to consider the advisability of uniting with the Presbyterian Church. A substitute, offered by Rev. Mr. Terhune was adopted. It provides:—While reciprocating all fraternal feeling and expressions with the Northern Presbyterian Church, we deem it expedient that the Committee of Conference for union and co-operation be at once disbanded. The following delegates were appointed to the Particular Synod at New Brunswick:—Rev. G. S. Bishop, H. H. Van Vranken, E. P. Terhune, A. M. Quick, and Elders P. S. Duryee, H. H. Nichols, A. W. Baker and B. C. Miller. Secundi:—Rev. Louis Bahler, F. V. Van Vranken, Oscar Gesner and C. E. Hart, and Elders S. O. Crane, G. L. Van Emburgh, J. L. Merrille and James Browe; to the General Synod:—Rev. H. Veshlage, C. R. Blauvelt, W. J. R. Taylor; Elders, Edgar Farmer, William H. Kirk, S. R. W. Heath. Secundi:—G. A. Abeel, D. D., John Kershaw, A. M. Quick; Elders D. M. Skinner, Senator F. T. Frelinghuysen and B. C. Miller.

At Madison the Presbytery of Morris and Orange has been holden for several days. The application of the church at Morris Plains for the Presbytery to ordain Mr. Samuel Gardner without installing him as pastor of their church, because they were too poor to guarantee him a living, excited much discussion and was referred to a committee, who reported adversely. South Orange was chosen as the next place of meeting. The question of the General Assembly to have delegates appointed by the Synod, and not as now by the Presbyteries, was voted upon, and rejected by a two-thirds vote. Delegates to the General Assembly were chosen as follows:—Ministerial delegates—Rev. Oliver Crane, D. D., of Morristown; Rev Nathaniel Conckling, of New Vernon. Alternates—Rev. J. L. Danner, of East Orange; Rev. Mr. Bardwell, of Whippany Lay delegates—Mr. George W. Snow, of Orange; Mr. Reighter, of Parsippany. Alternates—Mr. Potts, of Madison; Mr. F. G. Bernam, of Morristown.

COLORED CHURCH TROUBLES.

The matter of the application for an injunction to restrain Rev. Jeremiah B. Murray, pastor of the Fleet place (Brooklyn) A. M. E. church, from occupying a portion of the building as a dwelling, thereby preventing the trustees from closing it, was argued before Judge Gilbert, in the Supreme Court of Kings county, yesterday forenoon. It was settled so that the motion for an injunction is denied. Mr. Murray is to continue his ministrations until the further order of the Court. He is permitted to occupy the study in the basement for legitimate purposes. The motion for an injunction may be renewed by either party.

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

Yesterday a meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held at the headquarters of the society, Mr. Royal Phelps in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved the counsel of the society, Mr. Gerry, reported various matters relating to legislation affecting the cause at Albany and Washington. The President reported that a space had been obtained at the Centennial for representing the work of the societies in America. A large banner, bearing the emblem of the society, with the name of each State society and its President throughout the Union and Canada inscribed thereon, will be suspended over a large collection of pictures, photographs and instruments of torture forfeited. The beautiful silk banner of the society will also be exhibited.

A letter was read from the New York Transfer Company, inclosing a draft for $50 and passing a very high compliment on the society. Letters from C. W. Griswold and E. S. Jaffray were also read inclosing drafts for $100 in aid of the cause. Several new members were elected. Reports were read from kindred societies at home and abroad.

The Superintendent reported that since the 1st of January the society had prosecuted 159 cases of cruelty. Four gangs of dog and cock fighters had been arrested, tried and punished; 355 disabled horses had been suspended from work; 68 complaints had been investigated and the evils remedied; 35 disabled horses removed from the streets by the ambulances, and 284 condemned animals humanely destroyed by the officers. The meeting then adjourned.

FINE ARTS.

Mr. R. Benecke, of St. Louis, has published some charming photographic views of Black Hills scenery, the negatives of which he gathered last summer while accompanying Professor Jenney's expedition. Under the stereoscope they present to the eye the picturesque features of the lovely Indian reserve, almost obviating the necessity of travelling thither to realize their unique beauty.

ATHLETIC SPORTS.

A complimentary benefit will be given this afternoon at Harry Hill's to Mike Coburn, the well known light weight. Joe Goss, the English heavy weight, who has come to this country to fight Tom Allen, and all the best boxers in the city, will be present. Mike will be on hand ready to meet any light weight in America.

The champion international bicycle contest between D. Stanton, champion of England, and W. C. McClellan, champion of America, for $700, will take place on Easter Monday, April 17, in the American Institute building, corner of Sixty-third street and Third avenue. Mr. Stanton's record on the other side of the water is unequalled, and during his career he has beaten the best trotting horses in the country. In a recent match, in which he competed successfully against four trotting horses, over 10,000 people were present. The fifty mile race will commence on Monday at seven P. M. Mr. Stanton is practising every day in the American Institute, and on Monday evening expects to make remarkably quick time.

On Saturday evening there will be a grand gladiatorial display at Thomas' Central Park Garden for the benefit of Professor William Miller, the Græco-Roman wrestler. John Dwyer, William Edwards and Regis Senac will be among those who will contribute to the festivities.

NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

The Executive Committee of the National Rifle Association held a meeting yesterday. Mr. John Warren O'Shaugnessy was elected a life member. An offer from the proprietors of Wilkes' Spirit of the Times to furnish a Challenge Badge for monthly competition was accepted, and it was decided to hold the first match for the trophy early in May. Colonels Gildersleeve and Wingate were appointed as a special subcommittee to draw up an accurate definition of a regular military rifle as distinct from a special military rifle.

A NUISANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I read with great interest in last Sunday's HERALD the account of M. Largeau's exploration of the Sahara, in which we are told that many of the natives of the Souf are afflicted with ophthalmia, chiefly caused by the sweeping of sand through the air, &c.

How would this traveller be surprised to find an almost similar state of things, accompanied with like results, but produced by artificial means, in the great city of New York? I refer to the Second Avenue Railroad Company's sprinkling their track with fine gravel, which the strong winds of this season almost immediately distribute over whole blocks in immense clouds of dust, to the detriment of the health of thousands.

Having suffered years ago from ophthalmia I suddenly found my eyes afflicted again, and my physician tells me it is owing to dust. One of my children was taken sick with inflammation of the lungs, and other children around here are troubled with pulmonary complaints. Would it not be the business of the Board of Health to look into this matter? ADOLPHUS MULLER.

CHEAP CABS.

Marshal Kelly Admits the Insufficiency of His Inspectors.

WHY "CRYSTALS" WERE WITHDRAWN.

New York Transfer Company on the Situation.

THE REAL COST OF CABS

Shall There Be a Cab Commission?

Few discussions have commanded so much attention as that which has grown out of the HERALD's exposure of the cab system of New York. Every citizen is interested in it and looks toward some reform from it. But in its present stage not much should be expected. The people who profit immediately by hacks and coaches are engaged rather in recrimination than recuperation. While they fight the system continues as before, and nothing of real value is being done to improve it. They are only seeking faults in each other to submit to the local government for the purpose of having one or the other of those in use continued. Recently the HERALD very clearly demonstrated on the showing of the most frank of either party that both were wrong, and that the great trouble was that they could do just as they pleased, because they represented political cliques, to be used during election excitements, and also because seven inspectors were "next door to nothing," so far as their duties were concerned. Even the so-called kings of the business, together with the Superintendent's representatives, agreed that cabs could be run at extortionate prices and unsanitarily without let or hindrance from the civic authorities; and, further, that poor men, owners of the vehicles they drive, must charge exorbitant prices to earn a living. Besides all this, it is admitted that the talk about the cost of the conveyances and their outfits is the sheerest humbug, inasmuch as nine-tenths of those now on the stands are very dilapidated concerns indeed. And so it comes to pass that the excuses offered by persons interested in the hack business of New York to-day are trivial at best, if not absolutely untrue. The trouble is, and has been, that they do what they like, and that the inspection to which they are subjected is only preliminary to their getting a license to drive their exorbitant trade, to the serious inconvenience of the people. Even Marshal Kelly admitted yesterday in presence of his inspectors that it would be utterly impossible for the seven men acting in that capacity to do aught toward checking, not to say arresting, the practice of extortion so universally complained of. "We have seven men now," said he, complacently, "as inspectors, and we can keep the coaches in good condition, can't we?" said he to the inspector present, who promptly replied in the affirmative. But he only referred to the outfit and gear of the cabs, and not to the abuses condemned. "We cannot, of course, regulate or control the actions of the drivers in their dealings with passengers," said he, laughing, "but for the purposes prescribed by the ordinance we have, in my judgment, enough inspectors." That is just the difficulty; the authorities in this city have not any power to stop cheating, and so it continues.

CRYSTALS AND CABS.

Yesterday afternoon a HERALD reporter visited the office of the manager of the New York Transfer Company to learn what had been his experience with the crystals or one-horse vehicles, whose drivers were generally understood to have the right to contract with passengers on the streets for transportation to any part of the city. The gentleman in charge said that the crystals, now withdrawn, did not pay, because enough people could not be had to employ them even on the low fare system. It might have been, he suggested, because the competition against them was too great; that is to say, for the reason that their mission—cheaper cabs—was not clearly understood. At any rate, they did not pay, so they were withdrawn. Since then the Transfer Company has been in the hack business, because of a previous arrangement with the hotels and ferry and railroad companies. "But," said the gentleman in charge, "we would be just as well satisfied to get out of it for all the profits we realize. We run carriages at lower prices than are called for by the late ordinance, and, in my judgment, 'carriages' cannot be placed upon our streets profitably at lower rates. It is true our system is different from that governing the other hacks, because we have foremen, who act as inspectors at each of our stands to check extortion or other wrong. Here are our rates from the Union and New York clubs, where our stands are:—

Baggage checked from hotels or private residences to destination, per piece, fifty cents.

N. B.—These rates will apply to equal distances or service not enumerated, and the same rates will be given to members of club on showing pass ticket on trains or at depots of Pennsylvania Railroad, New York, New Haven and Harlem Railroad; also the St. Nicholas Hotel, the Windsor Hotel, or any other of the company's stands, or at any other point when disengaged, and may be ordered from the club stand to call at the residence of any member within four blocks of the club, and the service will be charged for as though starting from the club.

Steady driving, or between points named, or similar service, will not be performed at hour service rates.

Payment for service may be made in cash or by order on the club. Drivers will be provided with cards for that purpose.

Members of the club are earnestly requested to report any incivility or attempt at overcharge by any of the drivers.

CHEAPER RATES.

"You will see from this that we strive to run at reasonable rates; but our figures above given are, I believe, the very lowest that could be set at this time. We have heard from Mr. E. W. Andrews, the President of the American District Telegraph Company, his project, the outlines of which the HERALD published last week, and I may say to you that we will try it. How successful it will be remains to be seen. Cheaper cabs are necessary perhaps; but the formation of our island, I fear, will make them very difficult to establish. Nobody wants to take short drives on Manhattan, which is oblong and whose streets run, so to speak, lengthwise of a narrow parallelogram, so that a great deal more time is likely to be occupied in completing a trip for a cab here than in London."

THE COST OF CABS.

A word supplementary to this statement may be said about the alleged cost of vehicles. It has been declared by the owners of the hacks on both sides—Public Hack Owners' Association and Special Licentiates—that one of the great difficulties in the way of cheap cabs was their cost. Now, everybody recollects the crystals and their really elegant appearance. They cost only $850 a piece, and so far as appointments were concerned were far superior to the vehicles now in use. They were much more convenient in form and less likely to suffer from the rough or uneven pavements than heavy conveyances. The horses drawing them having lighter weights could cover more ground and make a greater number of trips daily, wherefore the difference in prices and profits was neutralized. Like the stages, fares could be had on the public highways and stands were not required.

A NEW PROPOSITION.

In connection with this question of cheap cabs comes, as a matter of course, many suggestions. Some of them are worth consideration; others are not, because of their impracticability. A good deal has been offered by the people in the business toward its reform. The privileged classes have suggested the establishment of stands and special licenses for those who would engage in it, and the unprivileged have stated it as their belief that only by the fullest and freest competition could a cheap cab system be obtained. But now comes a voice from the former in the person of Mr. Van Ranst, saying that after all the true solution of the problem might be found in the creation of a commission by the Legislature to control the hacks in New York. He defines his proposal in this way:—"Let the Legislature appoint a commission composed of two or three men, who shall have the whole supervision of the cabs in this city from the granting of licenses to their recall. I would have them endowed with powers sufficient to fix rates and see to their enforcement. They should grant the licenses to those who applied and see not only that their vehicles were in proper condition, but also that the rates published, posted up and generally understood, were charged. To accomplish this I would give them the right to place inspectors at each stand and at every place of public call whose duties, like those of the Parisian inspectors which were published in Monday's HERALD, should be to book and check the persons, distances and fares of those they transport from one point to another. Overcharging would, by this means, be obviated, and all talk about "privileged" and "unprivileged" classes be put a stop to. The commission should hear all complaints against hack drivers and deal with them, and none but respectable men would then be in the traffic. I do not seek in my affairs any privileges ahead of those enjoyed by other men, neither do I want any distinction of classes in the hacking system of New York, notwithstanding that I am charged with being the 'King of the Cab Ring.' If any cheaper method of running the business consistently can be established I am willing to indorse it; but, as I said before, the whole trouble lies in the irresponsibility of a large number of those at present engaged in it and who have attached themselves to what is known as the Public Hack Owners' Association. The truth is that by having our cabs at stands before hotels and at specified points we can place foremen to overlook them who will see that no injustice is done to passengers and that both proprietors and customers get their dues."

THE MAYOR ON THE QUESTION.

Yesterday a HERALD reporter called on Mayor Wickham and had quite a long conversation with him in relation to the much vexed cab question. His Honor observed that there was great need of reform in the hacking system of New York. Cheaper rates and better inspection were needed, and, indeed, a radical change was necessary. "In my judgment," said Mr. Wickham, "the whole business of licensing either cabs, carriages or venders, should be put into the hands of the Police Commissioners. Had the police the jurisdiction over these vehicles that which we now complain of—lack of proper inspection—would be removed, for every officer would then be an inspector, having immediately within his grasp the power to restrict drivers and see that they did not overcharge. It is certain that no Mayor can know much, except through his subordinates, of the people to whom licenses are granted, and he cannot at any time enter into the merits of a complaint which must be disposed of speedily to afford redress to the complainant. Had the police, who are familiar with the cabmen as well as other citizens, power to deal with delinquent cabmen, there would be less cause for complaint."

Speaking of the commission mentioned above Mr. Wickham said that it was impracticable; and, further, that the city was afflicted with as many commissions as it could bear.

HOW TO REGULATE THE HACK BUSINESS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Having had some experience in cab riding and rates of fare in London and other cities in England, and having a strong hope that something will be done here to give us the convenience of going from place to place in a reasonable time, in a comfortable manner and at a moderate charge, I am prompted to make the following remarks and suggestions:—

The two-wheeler or Hansom is the favorite in London. The four-wheeler is mostly used when more than two are in the party and by travellers with luggage. Most of the drivers hire from the proprietors of the cabs and pay so much per day, irrespective of receipts, and there are many licensed cabmen who make a good living at the rates charged. The proprietors, of course, hire out at a profit, so that there are two classes who realize a very fair margin at the low rates charged. Cab and driver have a separate license. The driver wears his badge conspicuously, and hands the hirer a ticket with his number thereon at the time of hiring. Each cab is numbered inside and outside in plain figures. The driver is required to carry a book, issued by the authorities, which has distances calculated from and to all parts of London, and so arranged that almost a glance will show what the right fare is. In case of dispute, whatever the cause, the passenger can compel the driver to proceed to the nearest police office, and if measurement is in question the officer has authority to arbitrate, or if unable to decide the exact distance (a question generally of a few yards), both parties can deposit $1 25 until distance is measured, the party who is wrong forfeiting. In serious cases of insubordination, drunkenness, attempt to overcharge, fast or slow driving, &c., on the part of the cabman, he can be taken before a police magistrate, and if convicted an indorsement is made on his license, and three such black marks forfeit it.

I suggest rates of fare in New York should be as follows:—Fifty cents for two miles and under, and twenty-five cents for each mile or fraction over. If engaged by the hour, $1 per hour and proportionately over. Twenty-five cents extra for whole distance for each additional passenger, and same for trunk or other article over a certain weight or size. In addition to a reasonable tariff, what we want are, one horse vehicles on two and four wheels. They need not be lined with extravagant material or expensively trimmed, but should be clean and comfortable, cabs with drivers licensed, regular street stands appointed under constant police supervision, and a strict enforcement of rules and regulations to ensure fitting horses and vehicles, civility, proper charges and preventive of drivers badgering the public for a hiring. It might be found necessary to make a rule that no cab shall be hired except from a regulation stand, and that the first cab on the stand only can be hired, thus forcing the drivers after being discharged to proceed to any stand they may elect, take last place there and wait turn for hiring. There is in London a waterman employed on each stand, and we might adopt the same plan here. Let him be paid out of the license fees and appointed by the police, have supervisory powers and keep a record of the number of every driver hiring from the stand and time of such hiring. In cases of lost property or other trouble the hirers in this way would have additional means of identification. One nuisance to the public and police in London is the blocking up of thoroughfares by cabmen seeking passengers. The regulation of hiring from a stand would prevent the annoyance and allow proper resting time to the horses. My experience in London was that in the afternoon it was a pretty hard thing to get a cab horse which was not tired out. T. M.

HARTFORD'S CHIEF ENGINEER.

The firemen of Hartford, Conn., who have since April 1 mourned the loss of their chief, Henry G. Eaton, were made glad yesterday forenoon by the joyful intelligence flashed over the wires from the office of Police Superintendent P. Campbell, of Brooklyn, announcing that the lost one had been in the latter city. It will be remembered that when Mr. Eaton, who is a first cousin of United States Senator Eaton, of Connecticut, was first lost sight of by his family and associates great alarm for his safety prevailed, and his photograph, accompanied with a description of his appearance, was sent to all the principal cities in the Union. Yesterday morning, about nine o'clock, while on Court street, the line man of the Telegraph Department of Brooklyn, David McConnell, saw a man about fifty years of age, dressed in the uniform of a fireman, the buttons of the coat, which were of white metal, being covered with velvet. McConnell remembered on the instant that the features of the man bore a striking resemblance to the picture of Hartford's missing fire chieftain, whom he had never seen. He accosted the stranger, asking if he was not from "up the river," and the fireman said "No," he was not. In reply to the query whether his name was Eaton he said that was not his name. This did not satisfy the vigilant officer, who took him before the Superintendent. The latter official on questioning him obtained the admission that the stranger was the individual wanted in Hartford, and the friends of Eaton were at once notified. To the Superintendent he made a statement to the effect that he left home under a sudden impulse, being anxious to see the country. He went from Hartford to Richmond, thence to Norfolk, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and lastly to Brooklyn. He did not partake of a drop of liquor from the time he left his home. Word came from Hartford, where Eaton, who has been Chief of the Fire Department for nearly eight years, is very highly thought of, that two members of the Fire Commissioners would be down by the six o'clock train to take charge of their friend. But in the meantime Mr. Chambers, Chief of Police of the city of Hartford, came on to Brooklyn from Albany, having been notified from Hartford by telegraph of the fact that Eaton, for whom he had been searching in the cities along the Hudson, was in Brooklyn. The meeting between the two officials was most cordial and friendly, and they left together for Hartford by the evening train.

THE FIRE MARSHAL'S REPORT.

The quarterly report of Fire Marshal Sheldon, received by the Board of Commissioners yesterday, shows, among other interesting items, that the estimated losses were $2,717,996; insurances, $5,386,423; loss on buildings, $529,707; loss on stock, $2,188,289; insurance on buildings, $1,877,800; insurance on stock, $3,508,623; amount of uninsured loss, $28,000; on buildings, $4,660; on stock, $23,340.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE FUNERAL.

Selection of the Pallbearers and Tributes of Respect.

THE MERCHANTS AND THE DEAD.

Although the shock experienced by so many on hearing of Mr. Stewart's death has passed away, the intense interest manifested in every detail pertaining to the funeral still remains unabated. Yesterday application for tickets of admission to St. Mark's church was made to every one however remotely connected with the deceased. His personal friends were besieged by applicants, and upon lawyers, employés and undertakers an equally persistent demand was levied. Judge Hilton alone, however, had control of the tickets, as he has been charged entirely with the management of the funeral, and he made his distribution as judiciously as the urgency of the time would allow. It unfortunately happens that St. Mark's church has a capacity of seating only 800 people, and at the most no more than 1,100 or 1,200 could be crowded into it, consequently few people outside of Mr. Stewart's intimate friends and gentlemen of prominence in official and commercial life are likely to gain admission, and arrangements are made to have on the ground an adequate police force to preserve order. President Grant, who had been invited to attend the funeral, sent a despatch to Judge Hilton last night conveying his condolence, and stating that he is prevented from leaving Washington by the pressure of official duties.

AT THE HOUSE.

Yesterday morning and afternoon the sidewalk opposite the marble mansion was lined with occasional sightseers drawn thither by curiosity and through some vague fancy which possesses people in such cases that they might catch a glance of the deceased merchant or of some one of his family. A force of police guarded the entrance and patrolled the street in front and these kept at a distance any sightseer whose curiosity might too much embolden him. All through the day carriages were being driven up to the door and there deposited some solvent looking old man with sober face, who toiled up the grand staircase and disappeared behind the huge portal, only to have his identity with some well known financier become the subject of discussion among the people outside. Toward evening these visits became very frequent, and several gentlemen eminent in political and commercial circles were observed among the callers. It was understood that only intimate friends of the family were to be received yesterday, so that the number of people who came to pay their tribute of esteem to the dead merchant was not so great as many anticipated.

Inside the house the scene was solemn and impressive. The magnificent halls were occupied by knots of gentlemen who discussed in undertones the great merchant's death and its possible results, while round about them were the accumulations of masterpieces of art and the costly wonders of decorative beauty, which Mr. Stewart's immense resources and æsthetic sense enabled him to bring together. Off from the great hall in the western wing of the building is a lofty and spacious apartment, furnished with the magnificence peculiar to the marble mansion alone, and there in the silence which no one chose to break lay the merchant prince's body. In this, "the Lace Room," as it is called, he breathed his last, and here he since has lain while the friends who were most dear to him have come to look upon a face that retains in death the characteristics that so strongly marked it in life. The body of Mr. Stewart lies in one of the new-fashioned preservers which have supplanted the ordinary ice coffin, until lately in general use. Without coming in contact with any part of the body the ice is so arranged as to create and sustain around it a uniformly cold temperature, which is so free of moisture that the garments of the dead are perfectly dry. The body is singularly well preserved, the face displaying a calm, serene expression, and, but for the deadly pallor, looking exceedingly life-like.

THE PALL BEARERS.

Yesterday at noon the list of pall bearers, who are to assemble at the residence of the deceased, in Fifth avenue, this morning, at nine o'clock, and accompany the remains to St. Mark's church, was completed. They are sixteen in number, and are as follows:—

Governor S. J. Tilden,	Ex-Governor E. D. Morgan,
Ex-Governor John A. Dix,	Royal Phelps,
William Libbey,	Peter Cooper,
Chief Justice Daly,	Judge H. E. Davies,
R. L. Stuart,	James Lennox,
Stephen Wray,	Jacob D. Vermilye,
Charles H. Russell,	Francis Cottenet.
Judge Noah Davis,
Governor Alexander Rice, Massachusetts,

These gentlemen will wear long white linen scarfs and black gloves and the family have provided fifty carriages for the use of the deceased's friends who have received invitations to attend the ceremony. No person will be permitted to enter the church without a ticket, which they will not be asked to surrender, having only to show it at the door of the church. Judge Hilton has detailed twenty young men to guard the mansion in Thirty-fourth street and prevent intrusion by strangers. A limited number of tickets has been issued to friends who may desire to look at the remains in the house between nine and ten o'clock this morning, previous to their removal

THE DECORATION AND FLOWERS.

The floral offerings which will to-day be placed in the house and those to be sent to the church have been unequalled for their chaste magnificence. The family of the deceased have ordered to be constructed two artificial beds of flowers, one for the house and one for the church, each three feet in height and nine and a half feet in length. This splendid floral monument will be of white flowers and immortelles. On one of these huge mausoleums of flowers the casket will be placed at the house, and a duplicate bed will be ready at the church to which the coffin will be removed when it reaches the sacred edifice. Mr. Stewart's family have also ordered two broken columns five feet high, two crosses six feet in height, two large crowns, two standing stars, four feet in altitude; two harps, each four feet in height; two large wreaths, two anchors and several other ornamental designs, numbering in all twenty-two pieces—eleven for the house, the other eleven pieces being duplicates for the church. The cost of the floral ornaments ordered by the family of the deceased will amount to over $5,000, and the floral tributes to be furnished by the employés of the wholesale and retail stores at Chambers and Tenth streets will also amount to $5,000. Besides these will be the fulfilment of the numerous orders left at the different florists throughout the city by the friends who will be present this morning at the solemn ceremony. Mr. Hamill, the sexton of St. Mark's Church, and his assistants, will begin to decorate the church with the emblems of sorrow at an early hour this morning, but the display, it is understood, will be confined principally to the chancel and to the interior behind the reading desk, as the family do not desire any florid or ostentatious show to be made, in accordance with the wishes of deceased.

TRIBUTES BY EMPLOYÉS.

On the demise of Mr. Stewart his employés in the wholesale department resolved to testify by some tribute of esteem their attachment for their deceased employer. It was some time before the nature of their offering was determined upon, but as soon as some of the gentlemen who are most prominent in the various departments had consulted together and fixed upon the character of the testimony of respect most befitting them every one evinced a desire to participate in the movement and to tender his portion to the general fund. The result was the accumulation of quite a sum of money, which was devoted to the purchase of one of the most magnificent floral offerings ever constructed. The conception of the design and the symbolical meaning attached to this tribute originated with the employés themselves, and under their direction a florist of this city has created quite a masterpiece of floral workmanship. There are two flowery monuments—one to be sent to Mr. Stewart's residence and placed at the head of the remains; the other to remain by them during the course of the obsequies. The first is most happily conceived and ingeniously executed. It consists of a layer of autumn leaves and a lower rim of wheat, the border of a pedestal formed of violet leaves and covering a space eight feet in length by four in breadth. From this rises a shaft of pure white flowers eight feet high and eighteen inches broad at the base which tapers up to an apex twelve inches in breadth. This floral column supports a crown of beautiful construction some eighteen inches high, which makes the entire monument nine and a half feet in height. On one side of it is an anchor about five feet high, on the other rests a harp. The whole fabric is skilfully put together, and when raised in its proper place will form an object most pleasing and significant. This magnificent tribute is to be placed near the body of the dead merchant while it lays in state at his mansion this morning. Another floral offering from the same source will be placed in the church, close to the pedestal which will support the coffin. This consists of a column of white flowers twined about with a wreath of green leaves, and supporting at the top a snow white dove. These beautiful offerings, combined as they will be with many equally magnificent, the testimonials of personal friendship, will form a display of floral art seldom if ever seen before.

THE MUSICAL SERVICES.

The musical services in St. Mark's church will be under the direction of Mr. William E. Beames, organist of the church, and the choir comprises Mme. Dowland, soprano; Miss Jennie Dickerson, contralto; Dr. Arthur T. Hills, tenor; Mr. Otto Lehman, basso; assisted by an English glee club having the following voices:—Miss Henrietta Beebe, soprano; Miss Finch, contralto; Mr. Nilsen, tenor; Mr. George E. Aiken, basso—forming a double quartet of well trained performers for the effectual rendering of the beautiful service of the Episcopal Church. The selections will be as follows:—

CHANT—"Lord Let Me Know My End," double quartet.
SOLO—"I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," Miss Beebe.
QUARTET—"God is a Spirit" (without accompaniment), Miss Beebe Miss Finch, Mr. Nilsen, Mr. Aiken.
SOPRANO SOLO AND QUARTET—"I Heard a Voice from Heaven," Mme. Dowland, Miss Dickerson, Dr. Hills and Mr. Lehman.
CHANT—Quartet, male voices, "Our Days on Earth Are as a Shadow," Mr. Nilson, Dr. Hills, Mr. Lehman and Mr. Aiken.
HYMN 139, PRAYER BOOK—"Rock of Ages" (old tune), double quartet.

THE CASKET.

The funeral casket in which the remains of the great merchant will be placed for interment is a most beautiful work of art. It is of oak, completely covered with the finest black Lyons velvet and trimmed with the heaviest gold fringe bullion and gold tassels. The casket is six feet in length, twenty-three inches in width and eighteen inches in depth. The interior is lined with white tufted satin and underneath the white satin there is a bed or mattress on which the body will recline. The interior of the casket is trimmed with white silk fringe and pinked and fluted with wondrous beauty. The lid goes half way back, and is covered with white satin in the form of gathered sun rays. These sun rays are deeply studded with gold. The pillow in the casket is of satin, beautifully ornamented, and the extension handles, as well as the handles on both ends, are thickly plated with gold. The screws are all of gold, and the knobs are of silver, washed with gold. A rim of gold runs all around the black velvet pall, which closely adheres to and covers the outer surface of the casket. The casket has a solid silver plate, on which is engraved the words:—

ALEX. T. STEWART.
Born Oct. 12, 1803.
Died April 13, 1876.

The enclosure for this costly casket was being finished last evening, and will be made of red cedar, the most expensive and enduring of all wood. This box is seven feet in length, and will be hermetically sealed after the casket has been placed within. The cedar box was taken to the church and the casket to the late residence of Mr. Stewart last evening at eight o'clock.

It is calculated that the funeral cortége will leave the house, in Fifth avenue, at half-past ten o'clock this morning, and will reach the church at about eleven o'clock. There will not be any service at the residence. Bishop Potter, of New York, will conduct the services at the church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Rylance, rector of St. Mark's, and Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity. Pew No. 32, in which Mr. Stewart and family worshipped, will be draped. Mr. Stewart's name is engraved on a silver plate fastened to the top of the pew door.

It is probable that the funeral address will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Rylance. After the service the remains will be taken to the Stewart vault, which is covered with a white marble flagstone, numbered 112, at east side of the churchyard and opposite the Historical Society building, in Second avenue.

It is a curious fact that to-day, on which the funeral of Mr. Stewart is to take place, April 13th, is the fifteenth anniversary of the great Sumter mass meeting in Union Square, and the uprising of the North. Mr. Stewart presided at that meeting. Mrs. Stewart and the members the Clinch and Smith families, with Mr. Libbey and his family, and Judge Hilton and family, will occupy the first six carriages in the funeral cortege.

POLICE ARRANGEMENTS.

One hundred police have been detailed by Superintendent Walling to escort the funeral to the church and to preserve order at St. Mark's and at the house in Thirty seventh street. The police force at the house will be under the command of Captain Steers, of the Twenty-fourth precinct. A large number of detectives have also been detailed to move along the line of the funeral procession.

DECEASED'S BUST.

As there have been some misstatements in regard to the taking of a cast of Mr. Stewart's bust, it is proper to state that the work was done by J. Decomps by order of Albert Bierstadt, who will execute a portrait of the deceased hereafter.

MEETING OF THE MERCHANTS.

Yesterday afternoon there was a very large representation of the leading merchants of the city in the assembly chamber of the Merchants' Club in Leonard street. They had been called together to testify their regret at the demise of the man who above all others had been conspicuous in the commercial community for years. The president nominated H. B. Claflin to act as chairman and Mr. Warren as secretary of the meeting. A resolution was passed to close the wholesale stores at half-past ten A. M., and keep them shut till one P. M. out of respect to the deceased. It was also determined to appoint a committee of seventy-five representative merchants to attend the funeral of Mr. Stewart and act as a deputation from the business men of New York. Mr. Thomas Barbour then delivered a brief but telling encomium on the deceased. He said that it was exceedingly gratifying to see so large a body of merchants assembling to pay tribute to the memory of Alexander T. Stewart. He regarded himself honored in being born within a mile of the deceased and he also felt proud in stating that he had begun his business life in Mr. Stewart's employ. These circumstances, he thought, made it fitting that he should take advantage of the occasion to give expression to the sense of bereavement all experienced in Mr. Stewart's demise. He thought him a man whose unswerving principles and commercial honesty contributed more than any other cause to introduce a proper system into mercantile dealings in this city, and one whose strict integrity was worthy the emulation of all men engaged in business pursuits. The fact that Mr. Stewart would develop such an extensive business in half a century proclaimed the resources of this country of ours and attested the colossal achievements which strong will and energetic action could accomplish.

Mr. Barbour said that the career of Mr. Stewart must be a standing incentive to aspiring merit, and must reflect honor alike on the land of his birth and on that of his adoption.

The committee appointed to attend the funeral comprises the following gentlemen:—H. B. Claflin, E. S. Jaffray, Seth B. Hunt, Robert W. Aborn, James M. Constable, James Low, Frederick Butterfield, James Moir, Lowell Lincoln, John Byers, James M. Dunbar, E. N. Whittlemore, Gardner R. Colby, Cornelius A. Bliss, N. H. Ammidon, Henry A. Page, W. S. Garner, James Hazelhurst, E. W. Holbrook, W. F. Strong, W. C. Langley, Walter H. Lewis, William L. Pomeroy, Charles S. Smith, N. Sullivan, William Turnbull, Fred Taylor, Fred Victor, Bryce Gray, Jerome L. Hill, John L. Donaldson, Matthew C. D. Borden, Robert L. Woodward, Samuel B. Dana, James H. Dunham, Alfred Kayne, Joseph W. Goddard, John M. Slade, George Hall, B. H. Smith, Thomas J. Davis, Edward W. Slade, Thomas Barbour, T. W. Evans, H. H. Stotesbury, E. D. Taffi, P. Van Volkenburgh, James H. Rhoades, F. H. Haynes, John F. Plummer, Daniel Van Volkenburgh, N. F. Carpenter, Charles Collins, W. D. Farwell, Wallace Shillito, L. G. Woodhouse, S. S. Fisher, J. T. Leavitt, W. B. Kendall, William M. Halsted, James C. Griswold, Henry L. Butler, Ellingham Townsend, William Sloane, Jacob Wendell, Frank E. Taylor, F. M. Bacon, E. S. Higgins, Louis Moulant, S. W. Fay, John L. Bremer, James M. Noyes, Samuel Keyser, James T. Swift and William H. Stewart. The committee resolved to meet at the Fifth Avenue Hotel at half-past nine A. M. to-morrow and proceed in a body to Mr. Stewart's house. Colonel Strong will have tickets of admission for the members.

OTHER MARKS OF SYMPATHY.

At the meeting of the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals the President referred to the lamented death of Mr. A. T. Stewart, and Mr. Bergh said:—"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, in alluding to the death of one of the best friends and earnest co-operators of your society, I would mention that Mr. Stewart was one of the founders of your society, on the occasion of the meeting of organization held in Clinton Hall, on the 21st of April, 1866, Mr. Stewart was present, although it was a very inclement night, and he earnestly advocated the cause, and his name stands on the roll of incorporators. It is not my purpose to make any eulogy on his business fame and good deeds, which are well known to you, but it is my duty officially to call your attention to the death."

Upon motion the Chair appointed a committee of three to draw up suitable resolutions of condolence to the family.

THE FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

The Board of Fire Commissioners at their meeting yesterday passed the following resolution:—

Resolved, That as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Alexander T. Stewart, the national standard of this department be displayed upon the various houses of this department from sunrise until sunset on the day of the funeral.

Mr. Stewart formerly contributed $1,000 to the Firemen's Relief Fund. Although the suggestion was made to have the money bestowed annually in the shape of medals for meritorious conduct, Mr. Stewart declined this perpetuation of his name, preferring to have the money go into the general relief fund.

MEETING OF GARDEN CITY RESIDENTS.

A meeting of the citizens of the town of Hempstead, L. I., in which Garden City is included, was held yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, in the Town Hall, in the village of Hempstead. Expressions of regret at the death of Mr. A. T. Stewart were adopted, and a deputation was appointed to attend his funeral, as a mark of respect.

MR. STEWART'S PICTURE.

The story that there is no portrait of the late A. T. Stewart in existence, and that the only one for which he ever sat was bought by him three months ago and destroyed, is contradicted by Peter Brett, picture dealer. He states that the only portrait of Mr. Stewart ever taken was one for which he sat some years ago to the late T. P. Rossiter, the artist, who had an order to paint a group of the most eminent business men of the metropolis. Many noted merchants sat to the artist for studies which were afterward to be embodied in one large painting. Mr. Stewart gave Mr. Rossiter six sittings, from which the latter painted a bust which he afterward worked up into a finished picture. After the death of the artist many of his effects, comprising this picture and all the studies of other merchants, were sold at auction in Leavitt's salesrooms. On the night of the sale persons in the employ of Mr. Stewart were said to be present to buy the portrait of their employer for him. Many other persons present seemed to covet the portrait, and the bidding for it was active, so that Mr. Brett became its possessor only after running it up to $300, although he bought twenty-six of the others for from $5 to $10 each. Mr. Stewart sent for the purchaser of the picture soon afterward and asked about the portrait. Mr. Brett represented that he was going to have photographs of it taken to be sold throughout the country, that he had under consideration proposals from the editor of an illustrated paper to permit a cut to be taken from it to be published, and that altogether he expected to make a large profit on his purchase. The merchant expressed his desire to see the picture, and the dealer carried it to his marble mansion, first, however, employing Sarony, the photographer, in a quiet way to make a negative of it, which is now in possession of Mr. Brett. Mr. Stewart told the picture dealer that he wished to destroy the picture and asked its price. What Mr. Brett asked for it he does not divulge. It was placed in Mr. Stewart's gallery, where it remained for some time. Finally the picture dealer came to remove it, when Mr. Stewart paid the price demanded and retained the picture, which is now in the gallery of his late residence.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

At a meeting of the Lincoln Club, held last evening in University place, the rooms were crowded with ladies and representative men of the district. Mr. John D. Lawson, ex-member of Congress from that district, occupied the chair and Mr. William Terhune acted as secretary. Among the gentlemen present were Mr. C. G. Baylor, of Georgia.

The chairman, in an eloquent address, called attention to the first paragraph of the Declaration of Independence and then introduced the Rev. Henry Hyland Garnett, who said he wanted to speak of the Proclamation of Emancipation of Good Friday of 1865, when the foulest deed in the history of America was perpetrated—the murder of Abraham Lincoln. As the honorary chaplain of the colored regiment raised in New York, he followed the men from their enlistment to the field. Every day he saw the great President of America, and was impressed with the force of his character. At the Capitol, when he knew him there, it seemed to the speaker that he saw the saddest countenance he had ever seen. One day a poor mother came to seek the President. She said, as she put one hand on his shoulder and ran the other through her hair, "One of my sons has been killed." He saw at once what she wanted. "You want your last son released from the army. You shall have it. Go home, and the Secretary of War shall have the order to send your last son home."

Is there a man in public life to-day who can accuse him of malfeasance in office? He was so pure that he had to be killed. The day after his murder, when the solemn news of his death swept over the country, when men and women were sobbing and shrieking, the remark was made in Washington, "Darkies, you have lost your god." Yes, we had. And when Booth was killed by the detectives who sought him, we did rejoice. It is said that the black men were ignorant. Why not? After 250 years of slavery, why not? Yet, with all our ignorance, I do not think that you could find any one of us so bad as to sneak up behind such a man as Lincoln and shoot him to death. When Mrs. Douglas came to ask from President Johnson the life of Mrs. Surratt, Johnson said, "Mercy! mercy! you ask for mercy? You killed Mercy when you murdered Lincoln."

I believe that I can see a Providence in his death. When Lincoln was slain by an advocate of slavery it caused every man, woman and child in the land to rise up and sweep from America the curse of slavery. When the Twenty-sixth colored regiment of Kentucky marched through Washington, singing, "We are coming Father Abraham, one hundred thousand strong," the hearts of the people went out to them; and the men who had been slaves all their lives were there ready to give up their hearts' blood for the American nation. Shall those men ever be slaves again? It was said that if the negroes were emancipated they would go about killing and murdering the whites. Have they killed any one? Have they ill treated any one? Have they not shown by their conduct that they are entitled to their liberty. Hereafter Good Friday will have a new significance—it is the anniversary of the surrender of Fort Sumter and it is the anniversary of the murder of Lincoln.

The following resolution was then offered by Mr. Robert Curren and unanimously adopted:—

Whereas the address which we have just listened to from the lips of our distinguished fellow citizen, the Rev. Henry Hyland Garnett, D. D., is worthy of our commendation; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Lincoln Club, of the Seventh Assembly district, do hereby tender to him their most sincere thanks for his able and eloquent tribute to the memory of our immortal Lincoln.

The meeting then adjourned.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

MADISON, Wis., April 10, 1876.

To the EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In your independent position—advising, not dictating, nominations for the Presidency—I find you naming Roscoe Conkling as the republican candidate; and if you were an enthusiastic, or neck-or-nothing republican, how could you advise more wisely? What man in the republican ranks—rake them all through—could you find who would more thoroughly represent in the coming canvass the republican sentiment than Roscoe Conkling? What abler statesman could you find? With a record as pure as unsullied snow he would go into the canvass, raising high the standard of his party and challenging reproach, without fear of injury to either his private or his public character.

You are independent, and you want, as your correspondent wants, a man of like character, as regards integrity and ability. For God's sake let us have him. He is already before the people, he is known, he is above suspicion, far beyond reproach, capable, upright, industrious, able; a lawyer, gentleman and scholar, let us have him. Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, in the third generation of a family of scholars, gentlemen and statesmen; a man, every inch, a patriot who would devote himself, without consideration of mere party, to the best interests of his country.

Let us have them as contesting candidates—Roscoe Conkling and Thomas F. Bayard—and whichever shall be elected we are sure of such a President as the American people may be proud to own.

"A LOOKER ON IN VIENNA."

"NATIONAL PURE MONEY LEAGUE."

A SMALL GATHERING AT THE NEW YORK UNIVERSITY.

A meeting of gentlemen was called in the chapel of the New York University last evening for the purpose of organizing what they designate a "National Pure Money League." Their object, set forth in the call, is the establishment of a body which will agitate the financial question to ascertain as near as possible the proper policy to pursue under the present embarrassed condition of the country. To this call were attached, among others, the names of Francis Gerry, Parke Godwin, W. I. Foulke, Charles A. Peabody, W. C. Bryant, Oswald Ottendorfer, George Opdyke, Stephen Pearl Andrews, Elliott C. Cowdin, David Dudley Field, Abraham R. Earle, F. H. Harrison and William Humphreys. At eight o'clock about twenty gentlemen had assembled in the chapel of the University, among them Mr. William Cullen Bryant, Stephen Pearl Andrews and Deputy Comptroller Earle.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. F. G. Fairfield, who nominated as temporary Chairman Mr. William Cullen Bryant.

On taking the chair Mr. Bryant said he was sorry to see such a small attendance. They had come together for the purpose of discussing the question of the currency. The purpose of the society was to guide the public mind so as it might arrive at some wholesome conclusion on the best financial method to be pursued. Under the state of the money market at present, if specie payment were resumed it would not, in his opinion, at all affect the status of the commercial community. Essays on the subject were then read by Rev. G. W. Sampson and others and the Secretary in conclusion read a list of permanent officers. Among them are the following:—President, Charles A. Peabody; twelve vice presidents; eight managers; Treasurer, Parke Godwin; Secretary, W. M. Brucher.

After remarks from some other gentlemen the meeting adjourned until next Wednesday evening.

JERSEY CITY ELECTION.

Never before did the republicans achieve such a victory in Jersey City as that of Tuesday. The city has a democratic majority of 2,000, yet the republican candidate for Mayor, Mr. Charles Siedler, was elected by a majority of nearly 400. The Boards of Aldermen, Education and Chosen Freeholders stand each a tie, although the democrats claim a majority of two in the latter board. This result was not wholly unexpected, as the causes which rendered it inevitable were set forth in the HERALD when the corrupt junta at Franklin Hall, acting in the name of the democratic party, deliberately set aside the present Mayor. Mr. Traphagen has proved the most faithful chief magistrate the city ever had, and was entitled, if only by party usage, to a renomination. The taxpayers were aroused, and a large meeting was held last Saturday evening in the Catholic Institute to repudiate the Franklin Hall candidate. Hundreds of democrats voted for the republican candidate and insured his victory. Mayor Traphagen would have carried the city by nearly 3,000. Mr. Siedler, the newly elected Mayor, has been hitherto unknown in politics. He is a member of the firm of Lorillard & Co., who carry on an extensive business and employ over 2,000 hands in connection with their tobacco manufacturing establishment in Jersey City.

QUARANTINE AFFAIRS.

The Shipowners' Association yesterday adopted resolutions eulogistic of the Health Officer of the Port, Dr. Vanderpoel, and calling upon the Legislature to make such reforms in the Quarantine laws as have been approved by that official.

HOBOKEN'S NEW OFFICERS.

Mayor Russell and City Treasurer Kamena, of Hoboken, having no opposition, were re-elected on Tuesday. Mr. George S. Ducker, the present City Clerk, was also re-elected. John Doorley was elected Assessor. The democrats, as usual, carried the city.

DOM PEDRO'S RECEPTION.

ETIQUETTE HERE AND ELSEWHERE ON THE ARRIVAL OF ROYAL PERSONAGES.

Up to the present neither the military authorities of the Atlantic division nor the naval authorities at Brooklyn have received any instructions from their respective departments in Washington as to the official reception, if any, which is to be tendered by them to the coming Emperor of Brazil. General Hancock wrote yesterday to Washington for instructions. Should any official reception be accepted by the Emperor the military and naval authorities will doubtless be found fully prepared. The Brazilian Minister has already arrived in this city. Secretaries Fish, Taft and Robeson will arrive to-day. The Secretary of War would have been accompanied by General Sherman had not urgent business of his command required the presence of the latter in the West. General Hancock and Admiral Rowan will be present, with the three secretaries, at the reception of the Emperor, should such take place, and all necessary arrangements will be made under the immediate direction of the heads of the departments represented here. The secretaries will be assisted in the duty of receiving the Emperor by General John A. Dix, Messrs. Royal Phelps, William M. Evarts, William C. Bryant, Charles O'Conor, W. H. Wickham, J. J. Astor, Theodore Roosevelt, J. T. Johnston, E. D. Morgan, Cyrus W. Field, B. G. Arnold, W. H. Appleton, J. P. Morgan, Christian Thompson, W. Wood, Chief Justice Charles P. Daly, and C. R. Agnew, secretary.

In anticipation of the possibility of a reception the Minnesota and Colorado are held ready to proceed to the Lower Bay at any moment.

Royal and imperial personages have, in rare occasions, visited this city. The sovereign of Brazil will be, however, the only reigning Emperor who has ever sojourned in the United States. A little uncertainty among officials as to an etiquette of which we have no precedent is, therefore, very natural. But it is certain that everything will be done to the best of the knowledge and ability of the high officials deputed to receive the Emperor.

It will not be out of place here to advert to the royal personages who have previously visited this country and to the main incidents of their reception and stay among us.

The Prince of Wales visited the United States on the invitation of President Buchanan, and became his guest while he remained in Washington. He first landed at St. John's, Newfoundland, and, though travelling as Baron Renfrew, was received everywhere with public demonstrations of respect. In this city he was welcomed October 11, 1860, by a grand military and civic display, and on the following evening a magnificent ball was given in his honor in the Academy of Music. The fête was managed by a committee of 400 citizens, who each subscribed $100 to defray the expenses. On the same evening there was a torchlight procession of firemen. The Prince was entertained in Boston by the municipal authorities and welcomed by the people generally. He embarked at Portland on his return home with befitting official courtesies. When within a day's sail of port a violent storm arose, which prolonged the voyage over a week, causing the greatest anxiety in England as to his safety. The heir apparent was delighted with his sojourn in the United States, and the friendly way he was treated afforded the deepest gratification to all classes of his countrymen.

The Duke Alexis came in November, 1871, in a national Russian vessel. His visit was intended to testify the cordial understanding existing between Russia and the United States, and as a guarantee of their mutual and enduring good will. There were unfortunate circumstances existing at the time that did much to mar the good disposition of the Czar. The unsatisfactory treatment received at the capital by the Grand Duke grew out of a squabble between the Russian Minister, Catacazy, and Mr. Fish, but in respect to suitable attention to the Prince on his arrival all was done that was necessary for the dignity of the Republic. The voyage from the Baltic was marked by tempestuous seas and adverse winds. The government, however, had a squadron consisting of the Congress, Severn, Iroquois and Kansas lying at Sandy Hook awaiting the arrival of the imperial visitor, and to him were awarded the honors due his naval rank. Thereafter he became the guest of the New York Reception Committee. His greeting was enthusiastic, and as he afterward told his father, the day of his entry into New York, escorted by civic and military, was made a general holiday. The Academy of Music, on the occasion of the ball in his honor, was adorned with two conspicuous pictures, one representing the liberation of slaves by Abraham Lincoln and the other the emancipation of serfs by the Emperor Alexander.

When the Emperor of Brazil visited England in 1873 he travelled as a private gentleman and declined being the object of any public demonstrations. Nevertheless he was received in all official circles with the respect to which he is entitled as the enlightened head of a great nation. Dom Pedro thoroughly inspected all public institutions, the dock yards, the military schools and garrisons and seemed never fatigued in examining into everything of a practical and useful character. No doubt he will pursue a similar course in the United States.

CENTENNIAL MUSIC.

A meeting was held at Weber Hall last evening to form a committee of prominent citizens to arrange for a grand musical celebration of the Centennial on the Fourth of July. Mr. F. C. Hawkins, chairman, said:—Several months ago the German singing societies came to the conclusion that it would be a good idea to get up a new national air, and engaged Mr. Bayard Taylor to write the poem. It has been written and sent to composers all over the world, and a large number of compositions have been received. One has been adopted, and it is proposed that it be performed for the first time on the Fourth of July next. It is proposed that on the 3d of July we get up an immense torchlight procession, and, if possible, have the city illuminated. At twelve o'clock on the evening of the 3d we propose to concentrate all of the societies in Union square. Then this national air will be sung, in connection with as many bands as we can consolidate. Next day we propose to have orations, delivered probably at the Academy of Music, and more musical demonstrations, and also to reproduce in tableaux some of the scenes of 1776. So what we desire to do is to organize a general committee of citizens of all nations to join in this celebration, that will be an honor to the occasion and the city. We are of the opinion that Philadelphia ought not to absorb all the celebration of that day.

It was decided that a committee of 250 should be chosen to act as a general committee and to select subcommittees to perform the various branches of work necessary to the proposed celebration. Messrs. Hunt and Bell were appointed to select this committee.

A discussion followed as to the manner of obtaining funds for the demonstration, and it was decided to apply to the city for part of the usual Fourth of July appropriation.

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY.

The Franco-American Union, which has been for some time engaged in France in preparations for the erection in New York Harbor of a monument commemorative of the hundredth anniversary of American independence, is at present redoubling its efforts to bring this great enterprise to a successful issue. The late elections had somewhat interfered with the progress of matters, but the present political calm has allowed the work to be resumed with fresh vigor. The amount of money necessary for its completion is considerable; of this more than one-half has already been subscribed. An effort is now about to be made to raise the remainder On the 20th or 25th of this month a great performance for the object above stated is to take place in the New Opera House at Paris. A cantata by Gounod, composed expressly for the occasion, will be performed. An oration will be delivered by M. Laboulaye. Public subscriptions will be opened in the newspapers. On this side the ceremonies of inauguration promise to be very imposing. M. de Rochambeau will be here for the Fourth of July as the representative of the Franco-American Union. A medal commemorating the occasion will be struck. The Union League Club of this city has appointed a committee to assist in organizing the inaugural ceremonies. M. Bartholdi himself, the celebrated artist intrusted with the execution of the statue of Liberty, will arrive in this city during the month of June. He will doubtless receive a welcome worthy of his merit and patriotism. Altogether the erection of this statue of Liberty bids fair to be one of the prominent features of the centennial year in New York, and will certainly intensify the feelings of mutual esteem and good will which the two great republics entertain for each other.

HON. E. Z. LAWRENCE.

A short time ago it was announced that Hon. E. Z. Lawrence, Rapid Transit Commissioner, was in Savannah, very ill and almost dying. Latest advices from him say that he is much better and likely to recover.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

An unknown man, of respectable appearance, was taken to the Charity Hospital, in Jersey City, at midnight on Tuesday, in an almost unconscious condition. The name, "W. H. Rayners, Chicago, Ill.," was found marked in indelible ink on the lining of his vest, and when asked if that was his name he nodded assent. It was discovered that he had been drugged with chloroform or some other narcotic. He was unable to render any account of himself yesterday, but it was ascertained that he was at the saloon No. 34 Desbrosses street, New York, and was also at the Central Park. He had a considerable sum of money in his possession when he arrived in New York, and it is believed that he was drugged and then robbed. He understood the questions put to him and replied by motions of his head and hands.

ROBBERY OF A YACHT.

Alexander Sweeny, who was employed as steward on board the yacht Mohawk, lying in Gowanus Bay, disappeared a few days ago and at the same time $300 worth of marine glasses were also missed. Yesterday Sweeny was found in Brooklyn, and was arrested on complaint of the mate of the vessel, Gustave Tuckberry. He is held for examination before Justice Delmar, Brooklyn.

THE STATE CAPITAL

Green's Official Extension Bill on Its Travels at the Foot of the Assembly General Orders.

THE BOARD OF EMIGRATION.

Governor Tilden Urges that the Commissioners be Sustained.

RECALL OF THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

ALBANY, April 12, 1876.

As far as the Senate is concerned the retention of Comptroller Green until a new Mayor has a chance to appoint his successor is assured. The bill passed today by a vote of twenty-one to seven, Mr. Harris being the only republican voting in the negative. As there are hundreds of bills ahead of this on the Assembly files it would take a two thirds vote to bring it up out of its order in the lower house. Granting that the same elements of opposition to it exist in the Assembly this vote is assured.

THE CIVIL JUSTICES' BILL.

The Civil Justices' bill, which was sent so unceremoniously to the Committee of the Whole, is giving the Justices no small anxiety. Tim Campbell has left, but John O'Brien, whose pay as Custom House weigher undoubtedly goes on while he is here weighing the chances of various New York bills, is still among the faithful watchers. The bill cannot be advanced in the general orders where it now is, almost at the very bottom, unless by a two-thirds vote, and the chances of securing that are dubious.

GOVERNOR TILDEN'S MESSAGE IN REFERENCE TO THE NECESSITY OF SUSTAINING THE BOARD OF EMIGRATION.

The following is a copy of the Message sent to the Legislature to-day by Governor Tilden:—

STATE OF NEW YORK, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
ALBANY, April 12, 1876.

To THE LEGISLATURE:—

I transmit herewith a communication from the Commissioners of Emigration, to which I earnestly invoke your immediate and considerate attention. You are doubtless aware that on the 20th of March last a decision was rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Hendersons vs. the Mayor, &c., of the City of New York and the Commissioners of Emigration, declaring unconstitutional and void the law of this State requiring a bond from the parties bringing emigrants into the port of New York to indemnify each city, county and town of this State against such emigrants being a charge on them during the period of five years from the date of their arrival, but allowing a commutation of the liability under such bond, now fixed by law at the sum of $1 50 for each emigrant.

The effect of this decision is totally and instantly to destroy the whole income of the commission by means of which their beneficent operations have been hitherto carried on. The system is completely arrested, and for some weeks the Commissioners have had no revenue whatever, and the means within their control will be exhausted by the 1st day of May. The system was put in operation on the 6th of May, 1847, under an act passed the day before, and has been continued under subsequent amendments until the present time. In the report of the Commissioners to the Legislature, submitted on the 31st of January last, they state their operations during the period of their existence as follows:—

It (the commission) has, during this period, supervised the landing of over 6,000,000 of emigrant passengers, with their baggage. It has provided and cared for 1,717,838 of alien emigrants for a greater or less period during the first five years subsequent to their arrival. It has treated and cared for 547,209 in its various hospitals, &c. It has supplied 485,699 with temporary board and lodging or pecuniary assistance. It has provided 400,187 with employment through the labor bureau at Castle Garden. It has forwarded to inland destinations and returned to Europe at their own request 58,122. It has relieved and provided for 226,651 in various counties and institutions of the State. Under this head the sum of $1,411,474 has been reimbursed by the commission to various counties and charitable institutions. The commission have also cared for in its various asylums and sent back at its own expense to their native lands many who have passed through this to other States, possessed of health and supplied with money, which they subsequently lost and returned to this State to become a charge upon the commission. It has cured many cases of sickness of immigrants destined to other States and then despatched them to their various destinations to enrich other communities with their money capital and labor value unimpaired.

The arrivals in the port of New York probably constitute at least eighty per cent of the total addition to the population of the United States by immigration, including the influx through Canada. The value of this accession to our population as a productive power is not to be measured by mere numbers. In an investigation which I had occasion to make some years ago it was ascertained that, while the males between the ages of fifteen and forty in the resident population of the United States in 1860 were two and one-half per cent of the whole number, the males between the same ages among the emigrants arriving during forty years were 41½ per cent of the whole number. If the total influx during the twenty-nine years had been 7,500,000 it has included the virile portion of a population of 18,000,000—that is, persons of the ages which are nearly coincident with those usually accepted as embracing the period of military service, and are also those of the largest capacity for physical labor. The chief sources of this emigration have been Germany and Ireland, forming about two-thirds of the whole influx. In the earlier portion of the period the Irish emigration was much the largest. In the whole period the German has been about 100,000 the larger. In 1856 the commission kept an account of the average cash brought by the emigrants, and it amounted to $68 08 per head, which is deemed a low estimate of the real amount. This emigration is the most remarkable which has happened in the history of the human race. It has enacted an immense part in the growth of our population, the creation of great cities, the settlement of new States, the formation of the business of our railroads, the extension of all commerce and all industries, as well as in all of the great national events of which our country has been the theatre. The benefits of this vast emigration have been diffused all over the northern portions of the Republic. Less than forty-five per cent of the emigrants remain within this State, even for the first year from their arrival, and after that a much smaller proportion; but, of course, the tendency is for a larger portion of those who become the objects of public charity to fall upon the city and State of New York; and the still more important function of protecting the emigrants from extortion, deception and the innumerable variety of wrongs to which they are inevitably exposed can only be performed by a machinery such as has been furnished by the laws of this State, which must be local in its operations, and can be most wisely and beneficially supplied by local and State authorities.

In the practical conjuncture which now exists it seems to me necessary that the State should interfere and advance the necessary funds to carry on the operations of the Commissioners for a year to come, unless in the meantime relief can be obtained by Congressional legislation. The value of the property which has been acquired by revenues derived from the commutation money is far in excess of the necessary advances, and the title to that property is in the State. On the other hand, the faith of the State is fairly bound to continue its care of such emigrants as arrived previous to the abrogation of the system for five years after their arrival. The State holding the property, of which it has the title, will acknowledge it as a trust and may properly look to it for a reimbursement of such advances as are required by the present extraordinary emergency. The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States may also involve the necessity of new or supplementary legislation for the protection of emigrants on their arrival, to which branch of the subject of emigration I also invite your attention.

SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

The Message was referred by both houses to the Joint Committee, which consists of Senators Robertson, Booth and Starbuck and Assemblymen Ogden, Muller, Peabody, A. J. Campbell and O'Hare.

INSURANCE ABUSES.

Mr. Bixby introduced resolutions instructing the Insurance Committee of the Senate to investigate the practice now in vogue of amalgamating life insurance companies, by which it is claimed that great hardship, loss and injustice is sustained by holders of policies.

RECALL OF THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Appropriation bill was recalled by a concurrent resolution of the two houses to-day. It seems that the Governor contends that the item in the bill compelling the city of New York to pay the expenses of the Court of Arbitration is unconstitutional, for the reason that it is not covered by the title of the bill.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

The bill to provide for the instruction of common school teachers was passed in the Assembly. It requires the State Treasurer to pay yearly on the warrant of the Comptroller out of the income of the United States deposit or literature funds, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $18,000 for instruction in academies and academical departments of Union schools in the science of common school teaching, under a course prescribed by the Regents of the University the sum of $10 for each scholar, not to exceed twenty scholars to each academy.

The Assembly to-day passed a large number of other bills, among them the bills to authorize Surrogates to appoint receivers of real estate, legalizing assessments made for the construction of sewers and drains made under the provisions of the act of 1865 without the usual direction by ordinance of the Common Council; the bill providing that in all actions at law against the city the evidence shall be taken in open court.

A Conference Committee has been appointed on the bill to provide for four additional public baths in New York city.

The Brooklyn Excise bill failed to pass in the Assembly to-day and the vote by which it was lost was reconsidered. The bill now lies on the table.

The Committee on Cities of the Assembly to-day reported favorably Mr. Fish's bill, which is identical with Senator Woodin's passed in the Senate, extending the term of office of the Comptroller and other New York city officials.

At the evening session of the Senate progress was reported, after some discussion, on the bill authorizing the taxation of stockholders of life, fire and marine insurance companies. The bill to facilitate the organization of railroads sold under mortgage was ordered to a third reading.

Mr. Morrissey introduced a bill to exempt the New York Academy of Medicine, the land on which it is situated, and the property in scientific instruments, &c., it contains, from sale by execution. The bill providing for the appointment of the clerk and deputy of the Court of Special Sessions in the same manner as the police court clerks are appointed, was ordered to a third reading.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held a meeting this afternoon and listened to arguments, in behalf of Boaden's bill, from Civil Justices Pinckney, McGowan and Dinkel. The bill confers enlarged powers on the Civil District Justices, and gives them jurisdiction that they had not before in cases of assault and battery.

The Assembly Committee on Cities have reported favorably the bill abolishing the office of Attorney for the Collection of Arrears of Taxes. The bill requires the Receiver of Taxes to perform the duties of that official, and authorizes him to appoint a person to serve notices, who is to have all the powers of a marshal.

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

PASSAGE OF THE "FIVE COUNTY ACT" COMPROMISE—DEFEAT OF THE SUNDAY EXCURSION TRAIN BILL.

TRENTON, April 12, 1876.

In the Senate to-day Senator Abbett's compromise on the Five County act passed by a vote of 14 to 3 (Messrs. Blackwell, Silverthorn and Smith). It provides that the owners of land in the counties of Hudson, Essex, Union and Passaic and in the cities of Trenton, New Brunswick, Camden and Atlantic may agree with the holder of any mortgage not to apply for any deduction by reason of any mortgage from the taxable value of the mortgaged lands. In case the mortgagor violates this agreement the mortgage becomes immediately due and the amount of tax paid by the mortgagee shall be added to the principal of the debt secured thereby. When deduction is claimed from the value of real estate on account of mortgage the tax on the mortgage shall be collected in the cities or towns where the property is located. It will probably pass the House.

The bill making it unlawful to keep or sell "Paris Mutual Pools" or indulge in any other game of chance on race tracks or fair grounds was passed in the House by a vote of 42 to 15.

The joint resolution appropriating $10,000 to defray the cost of a painting illustrative of the valor of New Jersey soldiers in the late war, for exhibition in the State House, was defeated by a vote of 26 to 29.

Mr. E. Drake's bill to prevent the running of Sunday excursion trains was defeated in the House by a vote of 29 to 29.

Both houses will adjourn sine die on Friday next.

UPHEAVAL IN THE HIGHLANDS.

A CAVERN NEAR SUGAR LOAF MOUNTAIN VOMITS FORTH EARTH, SAND, WATER AND FISH—A WONDERFUL PHENOMENON ATTENDED BY LOUD SOUNDS.

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 12, 1876.

At the foot of Sugar Loaf Mountain, on the east side of the Hudson, near the northern entrance to the Highlands, is the handsome summer residence of Mrs. Wade. Opposite, in the Hudson, is Pollpell's Island. The ground on which the Wade mansion is located is 800 or 1,000 feet above the level of the river, the background being Sugar Loaf, 1,000 feet higher. A strange occurrence took place within a thousand feet of the house yesterday afternoon. James McManus is the railroad flagman near the spot. He was in the rock cut north at three o'clock in the afternoon mentioned, when he heard a singular noise—a sort of rattling or crackling. To use his own words, "I thought the Storm King was tumbling." In a minute after there was another rumbling and rattling louder than the first, and almost immediately after a third report. Said he, "I have heard powder explosions and sharp claps of thunder, but I never heard such a noise as that." He ran south to ascertain the cause, and found the railroad track for 500 feet covered with stones and boulders, and sun-fish and perch. He looked up the hill and saw a chasm 300 feet in width and fifty feet in depth, and from it fully 50,000 tons of dirt and sand had, to all appearances, been lifted up and hurled into and across the cove below. The cove is 500 feet in width, and the avalanche swept through it and over it to the Hudson River Railroad track, tearing down fences and covering the track six inches deep with stones, dirt and fish. Huge trees were hurled in every direction, and the water the entire length of the cove was disturbed.

At seven o'clock in the evening there was another report, and another mass of earth was hurled to the cove below. At eight o'clock yesterday morning there were two more reports, and more dirt was displaced. What is stranger still, almost immediately after the last reports a torrent of water burst from the bottom of the cavern, from where the earth had been hurled, and plunged down the side of the hill, cutting a ravine five feet deep in a brief space of time, and the volume of water is increasing hourly. When the fact is stated that there is no pond or stream near the spot except one a mile back of Sugar Loaf, the sudden appearance of so large a stream of water from the bottom of a cavern fifty feet below the surface of the ground, is remarkable. Trees thirty feet in height were carried to a distance of 1,000 feet. Scores of people visited the spot to-day, but not one could satisfactorily explain the occurrence. It was not a land slide. It certainly looked like an eruption, for to all appearances the thousands of tons of earth must have been forced upward and outward to the cove below. The result of this upheaval can easily be seen from the windows of passing trains. All around the chasm the ground was undisturbed except where the immense mass of earth struck it as it tumbled into the river. The indications are that there will soon be another upheaval there, and the trackmen are watching the track closely. The occurrence has revealed tons of the finest sand where it was thought no sand existed.

DOLAN'S PETITION.

There is a very strong feeling on behalf of Dolan, and a petition has undoubtedly been prepared and will be sent to the Governor asking him to change the sentence of death to State Prison for life. Father Barry said yesterday to a reporter:—"It is a mistake to say that I have undertaken to get up any petition in Dolan's behalf. However much a clergyman may sympathize with a condemned man, he is debarred by his position as spiritual adviser of the unfortunate person from expressing any opinion about his guilt or innocence. You will see that, from the very nature of the case, this must be so. Were you aware that the Warden of the prison and all the officers had sent in a petition in behalf of Dolan? No? Well, I will get it for you. I have it in my possession. It is quite an unusual thing, as I understand, for the officers of a prison to take such action as this. It shows that there is a widespread belief in the man's innocence."

The following is the petition, and it bears the signatures of Warden Quinn and the officers of the Tombs:—

To His Excellency SAMUEL J. TILDEN, Governor:—

SIR—We, the undersigned, impressed with a Christian sympathy for the unfortunate prisoner, John R. Dolan, now confined in the City Prison under the sentence of death, believing that the ends of justice will be fully served by his imprisonment in the State Prison for life, respectfully and earnestly appeal to you to extend to him your gracious clemency and so commute his sentence.

MELISSSA STEVENS' CHILD.

Before County Judge Gifford, at White Plains, Westchester county, yesterday, a further hearing was called in the case of Melissa Stevens, of Mount Vernon, who has sued out a writ of habeas corpus against Dr. Conrad Weiss, of the same village, for the recovery of her child. The relator, who has been separated from her husband for some years, sought in November last the assistance of the respondent, who is the agent for the Commissioners of Charities and Correction, to have her little daughter adopted into some family. The result was that in a few days afterward a female agent of the commission brought to the office of Dr. Weiss a person giving her name as Mrs. Smith, residing in New York, who said she was willing to adopt the child. She consented to take it on condition that the mother was to absolutely relinquish all claim to it. Mrs. Stevens wanted to be allowed to visit her daughter occasionally, but this privilege being denied, she, it is alleged, agreed to a complete surrender. Mrs. Smith at once took the infant to New York, where all traces of her have been lost. Within the past few days the complainant demanded of Dr. Weiss that the child be restored to her, but he assured her he was utterly ignorant of its whereabouts and that he had nothing to do with its present state, as she had herself voluntarily and deliberately given the child away, yielding all claim to it forever. This led to the present suit. It appears that the relator is only anxious to know who has her child and whether it is well cared for. Nothing whatever appears to be known of Mrs. Smith, but it is believed she gave a fictitious name and address when she got possession of the child. Owing to the absence of witnesses the case was again adjourned until next week.

ALLEGED OUTRAGE AT SING SING.

An itinerant vender of tea, named William Fox, living at Sing Sing, was yesterday committed to the Westchester County Jail by Justice Inslee, on a charge of having perpetrated a criminal assault on Annie Jones, aged twenty-two, whom the prisoner had employed as a domestic servant. The complainant testified in her examination that Fox engaged her services at an intelligence office in New York a few weeks ago, and that three days afterward he attempted to take improper liberties with her; that on the night of the 29th ult. he forced his way into her sleeping room, and, despite her struggles, succeeded in accomplishing his purpose. The prisoner is about forty-five years old.

CUT HIS THROAT.

Fred. Bussert, a tailor, residing at No. 145 East Fifty-ninth street, cut his throat last evening with a razor. He also drew the blade across his wrist, severing the radial artery. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, but died soon after his admission. He was forty-nine years old, and a native of Germany.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 1876.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be warmer, followed by cooler, cloudy weather, and, possibly, rain.

NOTICE TO COUNTRY NEWSDEALERS.—For prompt and regular delivery of the HERALD by fast mail trains orders must be sent direct to this office. Postage free.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—Stocks were firmer, although irregular. Gold advanced from 113 to 113 1-4. Investment securities were in some instances easier. Governments quiet and heavy. Money on call loaned at 3 a 2 1-2 per cent.

WHY HAVE the republicans in Albany done nothing about a spring election?

WHERE IS KILPATRICK?—We wonder if General Kilpatrick realizes the position into which he has plunged himself? Where is all that "evidence" he was so anxious to shower on the House a few weeks ago?

WHAT MOTIVE has induced the republicans in Albany to refrain from striking at the Know Nothing Dark Lantern Lodge of Tammany? Perhaps John Kelly can answer.

DANGERS TO NAVIGATION.—A despatch from Rockland, Me., states that the buoy on Post Office Ledge, Fox Island thoroughfare, and those on Cranberry Island Ledge, Southwest Harbor and John's Island, are gone.

THE PURSE BAROMETER of Europe yesterday indicated everywhere the low pressure that precedes a storm. Turks, Egyptians, Peruvians and Mexicans were so depressed that nobody could move them.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.—If the Emma mine was as rich in silver as the witnesses of Schenck would have us now believe why were the owners so anxious to sell? And where is the silver now?

NEW YORK HARBOR DANGERS.—The Bay Ridge buoy has been broken off, so that only about two feet of it shows above the water. The spindle and cage have been broken off Buoy No. 10 (Southwest Spit). There should be no delay in replacing them.

IRELAND must be improving or other countries must be retrograding, for it is thought that this year the Island of Saints will not be viewed by many of its children as a good country to emigrate from.

DRAGGING THE SEWERS.—We shall begin to look askance at "investigations" which require the prisons to be scoured for "evidence." What the jailbird White, alias Miles, wants is "immunity" and "protection."

WHY IS IT that when the republicans have power there is always a fraction ready to go over to the democrats and do their bidding? The hand of John Kelly moves the machine in Albany, just as the hand of Tweed moved the machine when he was Boss.

THE EMMA MINE.—Give us the names of the women and clergymen and unsuspecting English families who put their money into shares of Emma mine because they believed that no American Minister would indorse a fraud. This will throw much light upon the enormity of the whole business.

SPAIN is perhaps the last country in Europe of any consequence where a Papal Nuncio is a power, and the uncompromising attitude of the Pope will soon make Vatican dictation odious there too. The government of King Alfonso are too weak to stand squarely up to the issue of liberalism against reaction, because their liberalism is a half-hearted sham.

THE PROTECTION OF WITNESSES.—The Senate will not agree with the House in giving immunity to the witnesses who may testify before the investigating committees. The republicans on the Judiciary Committee are violently opposed to the House plan. The democrats do not approve of it. It would make things lively to have the democrats in the House and Senate at swords' points.

The Varying Phases of the Canvass—Conkling and Tilden—The Empire State.

As the outlook shapes itself to-day the leading candidate in the democratic party is Samuel J. Tilden; the leading candidate in the republican party is Roscoe Conkling. The only disturbing element in the republican camp is the opposition of a social uptown club called the Union League, headed by George William Curtis, a writer on manners and fashions, and "how to behave." The only disturbing element in the democratic camp is the opposition of a dark lantern Know Nothing lodge called Tammany, whose members call themselves "Wiskinskies" and "Sachems," and have grips and passwords, headed by John Kelly. Each of these leaders—Mr. Curtis and Mr. Kelly—have newspapers, and thus make their opposition manifest. The motive underlying the course of Mr. Curtis is his desire, as a New Englander, to aid the New England candidate, Mr. Blaine. We are at a loss to know what animates Mr. Kelly, unless it is that in the Waterloo rout of Tammany last fall the Governor, who, by the way, is a splendid horseman, would not ride with Kelly's mad troopers into the valley of death. If this is the grievance of Mr. Kelly, he does not see, what was clear at the time to every one but himself, that if Governor Tilden had taken his part in that contest the democratic State ticket would have been beaten, the tide of democratic success would have been arrested, and the Governor's aspirations for reform would have stood condemned and repudiated. Governor Tilden showed true statesmanship. It will be remembered to his honor in the Convention about to choose a democratic leader for the campaign.

The strength of Tilden lies in many directions. He is a man of ripe attainments and unsullied personal character. He has lived to the full vigor and completeness of life, with the respect of all who know him. Ever a consistent and prudent democrat, anxious for the success and discipline of the organization, he has never failed to remember his duties as a patriot and a citizen. When the slave power aimed to coerce the democratic party he protested against its arrogance and took part in the revolt of Van Buren. When the secessionists sought to destroy the Union and to use the democratic party to that end he showed himself a believer in the Union and in the measures necessary to its preservation. When the hordes of corruption and ruffianism under Tweed and Sweeny conspired to rob the treasury, degrade justice and dishonor the State, Mr. Tilden led the democratic war upon them. These are high claims for democratic recognition. They give the Governor the prominence in the party which Seward held among the republicans twenty years ago, and which no democratic leader has held since the death of Douglas. Tilden can be king or the Warwick who makes the king. Sound on all the issues near to patriotic hearts, upon finance, reform, economy in administration, the preservation of the Union and the restoration of our credit, he has behind him the imperial power of the Empire State. How far this will carry him in the strifes and mutations of politics we cannot say. Our experience of conventions has shown too often that ability is sacrificed to availability—the power to lead to the capacity for running—for us to be over-sanguine as to any nomination. Tilden's prominence is more like that of Seward and Douglas than the unchallenged mastery of Jefferson and Clay. He has many rivals. Chief among these are Bayard and Thurman—statesmen whom any party should delight to honor. In the strifes and mutations of the preliminary canvass the Governor may find it necessary to sacrifice ambition to duty. It is in this sense that we say he can award the crown if he cannot win it. If the inflationists of the West or the reactionists of the South should press him hard he has victory sure. He can defeat inflation by naming hard-money Thurman and overcome reaction by giving the party an intrepid candidate like Bayard, who will stand by the integrity of the Union while doing justice to every section and State. However the battle goes, therefore, there can be no democratic victory that is not Tilden's ultimate triumph.

Turning to the republican camp, we see Roscoe Conkling in a somewhat similar position. He, too, can win the crown or give it. He represents in his party a somewhat different element from that of Tilden—the adminstration. Although this is regarded as a weakness by some of the lively old fogies who sit about the smoking room of the Union League, and wish to "reform" an administration that did not make them members of the Cabinet, it is really a source of strength. The claims of Blaine, Morton, Hayes, or any other republican thus far named, to run as an anti-Grant "reform" candidate, is the veriest cant. There is not one of these candidates who is not as much of a Grant follower as Mr. Conkling. For seven years they have supported Grant, accepted his patronage, done his bidding, excused his faults, voted for his measures, and never protested against crimes that culminate in Belknap, and tampering with crime which bears fruit in Schenck. The proscription of Sumner, the dismissal of Cox, the rejection of Hoar, the appointment of cronies and relatives to office, the giving of millions to Babcock and Shepherd and Mullett to "disburse," the jobbery in St. Domingo, the French arms, Delano and Williams, Creswell and Akerman—for all of this and much more Blaine, Morton and Hayes are as much to blame as Conkling. He may have applauded the whole business in the Senate, but they shared in the applause. For these gentlemen, therefore, in the eighth year of Grant's term, when the sands of his administration are running out—and he has only a few months of power—to come to the front and scream out "Reform" is cant. They are all weak as Grant is weak and strong as he is strong. But Mr. Conkling has the strength of high character, a courage that does not lie, and never runs away from a consequence. He has a claim on the party which none of his rivals can advance—namely, that he declined the highest office in the gift of the President that he might remain in the field and fight under his flag. At the same time the opposition to Conkling may throw upon him a duty like that which may devolve upon Tilden. Although the regular troops of the republican army are with him—Arthur with his Custom House cavalry from New York, Cameron with his Highland clansmen from Pennsylvania, Ames with his guerillas from Mississippi, Spencer with his "bummers" from Alabama, Settle with his colored brigades from North Carolina; although they are all falling into line with the steadiness of veterans, and under the leadership of veteran commanders—Blaine and Morton are strong, able, vigilant, and their war upon Conkling is a war of hatred. Therefore, it may be the duty of Conkling to preserve his own power as the premier of a new administration by taking up an unknown man. He cannot fall back upon Blaine or Morton, as Tilden could upon Bayard or Thurman, feeling that his selection was one of friendship and affection as well as policy. He can name the Unknown Man, that mystic power which bids fair to exercise so potent an influence upon the republican prospects. And when within the possibility of selection we note Hamilton Fish, William M. Evarts, Edwin D. Morgan, John Jay, Benjamin H. Bristow, William A. Wheeler, E. B. Washburne, and others of equal experience and merit, we may feel assured that whoever bears the republican standard will be worthy of the honor.

Finally, and this is a thought that comes with special emphasis, we must congratulate the Empire State that she is so rich in candidates for high place; that one of her sons is the favorite of the democracy and another the favorite of the republicans; that however the canvass may develop—be it Tilden, Bayard or Thurman, be it Conkling or the Unknown Man—the new administration will be under the control of Tilden or Conkling, each of them a man whom New York honors, without distinction of party. As citizens of New York, proud of our noble old Commonwealth, we rejoice in this. Let Kelly and his "Wiskinskies" and "Sachems," in their dark lantern Know Nothing lodge, dance and yell and brandish their tomahawks; let Curtis, with his old fogy grumblers at the Union League, growl about the machine and reform—the democratic columns follow cheerily the flag of Tilden, the republican lines keep steady pace behind the banner of Conkling. New York when she enters the convention halls of St. Louis and Cincinnati will go supporting one of her own sons, and demanding that imperial consideration due to her proud eminence as the Empire State.

The Coming Emperor.

We are glad to learn from Washington that the President intends to show the Emperor of Brazil not alone the respect due to his character as a man of high attainments and a prince of the loftiest lineage, but as the chief of a great nation with whom we are on terms of amity. The President has directed the Secretary of State as the head of his Cabinet, Mr. Taft and Mr. Robeson as the heads of two executive departments of the government, General Sherman as the General of the Army and some other officers not yet indicated, to come to New York and in the name of the President and the nation welcome the Emperor upon his arrival. This is carrying out the ideas of the HERALD which we suggested when printing our special from Rio Janeiro announcing the sailing of His Majesty. The proposal to give the Emperor an elaborate civic and military reception, similar to that given to Grand Duke Alexis, has been abandoned in deference to the expressed wishes of the Emperor. While we are sorry for many reasons that the city and the people of the metropolis could not have their way in welcoming the head of the Brazilian nation, while we feel assured that for heartiness, splendor and enthusiasm the reception would have eclipsed anything we have ever done before, we must, of course, accept any wish of the Emperor as a command. It would be rude to disturb his privacy. But such a welcome as the President proposes will in no sense violate his wishes. It will be the highest honor that the President can bestow upon the chief of a sister nation. We are glad that the HERALD'S suggestions on this subject have been heeded in Washington.

THE ENGLISH MISSION.—Our brilliant neighbor the Sun faithfully reflects the ideas of the HERALD as to the importance of sending a Minister to England who will not be chased from his house to the railway station by writ bearers from the criminal courts. We commend the Sun for this, as it shows an appreciation of those higher phases of journalism which manifest the independence of the press. We agree with the Sun that the President might properly select some of our distinguished New Yorkers for this mission. At the same time, in presenting a name like Longfellow's, we present a candidate whose fame is not only metropolitan but worldwide. We want a thoroughly national Minister. The day when Henry W. Longfellow entered into the presence of an English sovereign as an American Minister would be a proud day for England and America. In the literature of both nations his name has become as familiar as a household word—a name honored by all who respect genius, virtue and the splendor of a blameless life.

"ARMY BUMMERS."—The evidence of General Heddrick before the Clymer Committee shows our readers another fine example of the "army bummer." Heddrick lives in Iowa. His "military record," if he has any, has been obscured. He is a friend of Belknap. He was allowed to have an interest in the stores of several forts and to have one-third of the profits, although he did not put a penny of capital in the business. After a cross-examination this "army bummer" swore that he was allowed to have a share in the profits of seven posts and camps. He swears also that he never paid Belknap a penny. Neither did "General" Rice, the other "army bummer," whom the ex-secretary allowed to live in idleness and splendor upon money taken from the poor soldiers. Let us hope the committee believed the General. These "army bummers" are a disgrace to the noble profession they use for their nefarious schemes.

Four Per Cent Interest.

We printed yesterday a communication on this subject, in which, notwithstanding its dissent from some of our suggestions, we recognize so much skill that we desire to add a few words of comment. The writer made one point whose force we admit in contending that the present is a most favorable time to push the refunding of the national debt at a lower rate of interest. We have been of that opinion throughout, and it is because we felt that a great opportunity was slipping away that we have been so urgent and persistent in advocating immediate action. Our correspondent thinks that "with revived business and restored confidence the average value of money in this country cannot in the future be less than six or seven per cent, and the present favorable opportunity for the government to place its four and a half per cent bonds will then have passed." We could indorse every word of this if he had said four per cent bonds, and would indorse it as it stands if convinced that four and a half per cent is the lowest rate at which the debt can be refunded.

We think the present prices of government bonds prove that the purchasers will receive only four per cent on their investments, and the circumstances referred to by our correspondent, even if the fullest allowance be made for them, can change the result of our calculations by only an insignificant fraction. When Mr. Hatch (of the banking firm of Messrs. Fisk & Hatch) argued this question before a committee of Congress, a short time since, he presented various calculations founded on the market prices of several descriptions of bonds, and by each separate process of reasoning he reached the same conclusion that the credit of the United States is already a four per cent credit. The varying premium on gold and the uncertainty as to how long the bonds will be permitted to run after they become redeemable, render perfect exactness unattainable in such computations; but in Mr. Hatch's argument before the Congressional Committee he applied the same reasoning, with the same result, to a class of bonds which are not affected by these elements of uncertainty. He showed that the United States currency sixes with eighteen years to run paid only four per cent at their then current price of 125 49-100; those having nineteen years to run paid only four per cent at their current price of 126 44-100, and those having twenty years to run paid only four per cent at their price of 127 36-100. We wish our very intelligent correspondent would furnish an estimate of his own showing the rate of income on these currency bonds, and give us an opportunity of comparing his calculations with those of Mr. Hatch. The saving to the government would be so great between four per cent and four and a half per cent on the public debt that our ablest financiers should be willing to inform us, as nearly as they can, what is the present value of the national credit as measured by the rate of interest. If refunding at four and a half per cent is the best we can expect to do let that be done with reasonable promptitude and vigor; but the country ought to have the full advantage of its credit.

Our correspondent replies to our suggestion that if the six per cents were withdrawn it would puzzle the receivers of the money to find a better investment than our four per cent bonds of long date, by saying that "at least three-fourths of the holders abroad would take the gold and make new purchases—for instance, five per cent French and Prussians, which they can get at two or three per cent over par." This statement does not convince us. In the Paris Débats of April 1, just received, it is stated in the report of the Bourse that the French five per cents sold the preceding day at 105 15-100. This was, to be sure, the result of a speculative movement, the prices advancing by sudden successive steps on that day ("Le 5 pour cent, en quelques coups de crayon a remonté au dessus de 105fr.") What would be the price of the French five per cents under the speculative impetus of an attempt to invest several hundred millions of dollars in them rather than take American four per cent bonds? They might advance to such a figure that the American four per cents would be quite as good an investment. It is not an easy thing to find safe and profitable employment for seven hundred million dollars. If only one foreign holder of our six per cents were paid off he could, of course, easily reinvest in French or Prussian five per cents at the current market rates; but an extensive calling in of the American six per cents would increase the value of all safe securities by the ordinary operation of demand on price.

Our correspondent misunderstands us if he thinks we intend any reflection on the late Syndicate. We agree with all the Secretary of the Treasury said in its praise in his last annual report, but we are very far from indorsing the recommendation he made in that connection. He said, "Taking into consideration the fact that but little inducement is offered in the amount allowed as commissions for placing the United States loans compared with that paid by other governments, it is thought important to extend the time of redemption of such bonds (the four and a half per cents) to thirty years from the date of issue." We think it would be better to pay a fair commission, and not leave the Syndicate to recoup itself out of the prices of the bonds. Instead of the one-half per cent now allowed by law, let them have one per cent, or even one and a half per cent if the service is worth it, and then give the government all the advantage it can gain from a low rate of interest. One and a half per cent to a syndicate would be merely the difference between a four per cent and a four and a half per cent bond for three years, and for the remaining twenty-seven years of the thirty the government would save the difference of interest.

WHY MR. DANA WAS REJECTED.—Mr. George William Curtis explains that the reason Senators like Bayard and Thurman voted against Mr. Dana for the English mission was because, "as a mere matter of party tactics, they saw that they could deal a serious blow at the party prestige of the majority." From this position Mr. Curtis argues that "the rulers of the republican party will not tolerate a really independent and superior man." But Mr. Curtis does not say that two-thirds of the republican Senators voted to confirm the nominee of a republican President, and that the confirmation was rejected by the votes of the united democratic vote in alliance with the Ben Butler wing of the republican party. By the way, the democratic newspapers do not exult over this Dana rejection. It was a shabby business. It showed that even as high-minded men as Bayard and Thurman are willing to give up to party "what was meant for mankind."

The Coming of the Opera.

There is music in the air, a kind of prelude to the glorious outburst of harmony which we have reason to expect this season. Mlle. Belocca is the first of the singing birds to seek the sunshine of the Centennial, and comes to warble on our hospitable shores just as Mlle. Titiens takes her homeward flight across the seas. But though much is anticipated from the celebrity of this contralto the season which will begin with Easter Monday will only be like an overture to the grand opera of the fall. Then the enterprise of the two great managers who have labored so long and well in the service of the musical public in America—the Messrs. Strakosch—will again be exerted in its behalf. The man who introduced to the world the genius and the voice of Patti, who has brought company after company to this country, will not desert us in our centennial celebrations. The two brothers are to our music what Hamilton was to our finances—they struck the rock of our national resources and melody flowed forth in fountains of delight. Whatever disasters these experienced managers may have met in times of monetary depression or panic, we think they have always conceded the existence of a great American musical public ever ready to sustain true opera, properly presented. Never did they have more reason to depend upon the support of this public than they have now. We have been so long tantalized with opera that was not really opera, with great singers without adequate companies, and fair companies without great artists, that grand Italian opera, perfectly equipped, presenting the finest vocalists in Europe and the greatest works, old or new, will be welcomed with unusual enthusiasm. To properly accomplish this result it might be well for the two brothers to unite their operatic forces. Let Max and Maurice combine their energies to give us a season which shall be without parallel in brilliancy and worthy in all respects of our Centennial. This year America wants the very best of everything—the best weather, the best currency, the best Presidential candidates, and, as it is doubtful whether it will succeed in getting these blessings, there is all the more reason why it should have the best opera. Maurice and Max Strakosch should boldly plan their brilliant campaign, for they will not be without rivals in the field. The famous Mapleson proposes to invade America with an army of sopranos, contraltos, tenors, baritones and bassos, with a great chorus to bring up the rear. They will not have much need of a commissariat, for we are sure they can live in glory upon the richness of the land. The strength of Mr. Mapleson's company will soon be exhibited in England, and we hope that Mlle. Titiens will return with it and give us the whole of "Fidelio," the whole of "Semiramide," instead of those fragments of opera in which it was impossible for her musical and dramatic genius to have its complete expression. Mlle. Pappenheim, whose American experience has been very unfortunate, will remain, we believe, and will, no doubt, have ample opportunity to display her merits. In other kinds of music there will be no deficiency this year, and it will be better for Americans to stay in Philadelphia or New York than to go to Bayreuth, where Herr Wagner's opera will be sung for four days, with intervals for eating and sleeping. Offenbach will come with an orchestra of one hundred and a complimentary centennial composition; Wagner will send a grand triumphal march, which Theodore Thomas' orchestra will perform, and all our societies, Saengerbunds, English and French opera companies will join in the mighty chorus. But the grand musical entertainment we desire is Italian opera. Nothing can take its place, and we are glad to say that, thanks to the foresight and enterprise of Max and Maurice Strakosch and Mr. Mapleson, we shall probably have the opera in a more splendid and complete form than we have ever known even in its palmiest days.

THE SAMOAN TROUBLES.—What Mr. Steinberger's position may be in Samoa we do not pretend to know exactly, but we do not like to see an American citizen made a prisoner of by a British man-of-war and held in confinement because a savage says the citizen is a "fraud." The action of the United States Consul, Mr. Foster, in this case is certainly discreditable, if the report is true that, at his instigation, Steinberger was made a prisoner of and held as such on board Her Majesty's ship, the Barracouta. There seem to be a meddling English missionary business and some English trade interests at the bottom of the interference with Steinberger, and though the latter may not shed a lustre on the American name we are not quite prepared to submit to the principle which this transaction appears aimed to enforce—namely, that England has a protectorate over the entire Pacific, and that where an American interferes with her interests she is at liberty to imprison him.

COMMODORE VANDERBILT.—Rumor mongers in Wall street yesterday dealt with Commodore Vanderbilt's health in the unscrupulous style that is one of their specialties. It has evidently occurred to these too logical gentlemen that as the winter was fatal to Mr. Astor and the spring to Mr. Stewart the public mind would be quite ready to believe any story of calamity to Mr. Vanderbilt, and that therefore this would be an auspicious moment to revive the oft repeated story that he was seriously ill. But the story has been told so often that it apparently found few believers, and it will probably be doubted on the inevitable day, which we hope will be many years hence, when it will be true.

Russia and the Eastern Question.

When we pointed out some weeks ago that Russia, in supporting the Andrassy scheme of reform and pacification in the revolted Turkish provinces, was not sincere in her expressed hope that quiet might be restored on the basis of the present distribution of power in Southeastern Europe, we scarcely expected to see our opinion confirmed in the shape which late events have taken. In the pacificatory efforts of Austria there was just that sincerity and no more that might be seen in a public man who, not able to follow the course he desired in an affair, yet took another course to preserve his standing as one without whom nothing could be done. This desire to meddle for the sake of meddling left Russia an easy game to play. She had only to consent to the practically impossible scheme of reform drafted by Count Andrassy and await the result. This result could only be the demonstration of the futility of making a pact with the Mussulman to treat his Christian subjects fairly. No matter what the Porte might promise, Russia could rely on Mohammedan fanaticism, which has for motto, "Thou shalt make no pact with the infidel, but thou shalt smite his soul to hell." The truce in Herzegovina, however, came, and things began to look as though a peace injurious to Russian designs might be patched up. Russia could not openly go behind efforts made in support of the Andrassy scheme, but by a very cunning counter-stroke she set the insurrection going again. This was simply delivered by unmuzzling the Russian press and letting the papers bark panslavism, detestation of the Turk and distrust of Austria from St. Petersburg to Moscow. News travels fast nowadays; the revolted rayahs soon learned of this outbreak of sentiment, and now we see the insurrection extending, the bankrupt Turks hurrying more men to the front on money borrowed at Heaven knows what preposterous interest, Servia apparently on the brink of war and a dislike of the Austrian peace preachers taking root among the men fighting for their homes and altars with the edge of the sword.

This is all very favorable to Russian pretensions, but it remains to be considered at what period of the game Russia will take up arms on her own behalf. The declaration of war by Servia would give Russia an excuse to mass her troops on the southwestern frontier, and she would march them to the scene of conflict at the first move made by Austria. Unless by that time Russia and Austria had secretly agreed on a scheme for spoliation of the Turk a European war whose complications and extent no one can foresee would be the result. Of the other great Powers, France and Germany would, for many reasons, be the last to take sides. England would probably like to keep out of it, but her money and her Oriental supremacy would be soon in question, and whenever she takes up the rifle it will be against Russia. The possibility of such a tremendous conflict is saddening in this nineteenth century. It would, however, give an immense impulse to American progress, and when America advances humanity is the gainer.

PASSENGERS' BAGGAGE.—Judgment has been given against the French Steamship Company in a case of interest to the travelling public, by which the company is compelled to pay five hundred dollars for passengers' baggage lost on the Amérique, abandoned at sea. As carriers the company could not be responsible for the consequences of an event due to the elements, like the loss of a ship; but the passengers' case was founded on the point that the loss was not due to the elements, and that the ship was not lost, as she was subsequently taken into an English port by British sailors. It was, however, held by the Court that the abandonment was not to be "judged in the light of after events;" but the fact that she was abandoned by the officers must be assumed as evidence that it was necessary in the circumstances. Judgment for the value of the baggage is given, however, on the ground that it was actually stolen; and against such a disposition of it the company is held to be responsible. But on the principle of this judgment it would make a great deal of difference whether the baggage was pillaged before or after the ship was abandoned.

A HINT IN SEASON.—We note a despatch from Washington arraigning the character of Peabody, the witness against Belknap. Peabody is shown by the "records" to be a very bad character. We have observed, ever since the beginning of this investigation of Belknap, that whenever any witness has a word to say against the old Secretary, in a day or two he is assailed from "records" in the War Department. It was so with Robinson. Then came an assault on Custer, and now Peabody. Is it not time for this to stop? Secretary Taft is in charge of a department saturated with Belknapism. He should lay hands on these accomplices of Belknap, who use the records and the press to discredit witnesses willing to speak the truth, and to defend the most conspicuous scoundrel in the civil history of our government.

THE HERALD WEATHER PREDICTIONS of last Sunday, respecting a change on Wednesday, have been fully verified. The rain commenced yesterday about three o'clock P. M. The steady fall, however, did not begin for over two hours later. The temperature has risen and will continue high until the end of the week, when the cool northwesterly winds will again begin to prevail. On last Monday night a tornado swept over the village of Creston, Iowa, causing considerable damage to the houses, but, fortunately, no loss of life. We are grateful for the laying of the dust in the streets. In this respect the clerk of the weather is more careful of New York than the Street Cleaning Bureau. We do not regard this assertion as too sweeping either.

JOHN KELLY OPENS FIRE ON TILDEN.—John Kelly, who now has a newspaper, in the editorial control of which he has the wise counsel of Augustus Schell, thus opens fire on Tilden:—"With the remembrance of the elections in 1864, 1868 and 1872," says the Tammany organ, "when the candidates came from this State, to be perfectly frank to all, we do not think it a wise act in itself nor just to other States to be forward in naming any candidate from our own Commonwealth." It is strange that some of the leaders of the republican and the democratic parties have no true State pride. A few more articles of this temper will justify the impression generally entertained that Kelly has come to an understanding with the republicans, for purposes not yet quite apparent.

Enforcing Cheap Cab Fares.

If there is to be a reform in the hack business by reducing the fares to a reasonable rate provision must likewise be made for its enforcement. Otherwise things will remain as at present, all ordinances to the contrary notwithstanding. Ordinances may come and ordinances may go, but hackmen will go on extorting forever—unless there is somebody to prevent them. At present the correctional or preventive influence is most difficult to apply. Once in a lustrum may be found a citizen who will fasten on to his extorting cabman with all the tentacles of the law until he has wreaked vengeance upon him; but not one citizen in a thousand would, even if he had the will, know where to begin. The cabman knows this, just as the florist knows he can overcharge with impunity the young exquisite who stops to buy a bouquet with a young lady on his arm. In London the nearest policeman is a referee and the nearest police station a court of appeal. In Paris the official means to guard against extortion are even more elaborate. By appointing a commissioner of public conveyances, with full powers regarding granting and withdrawing licenses and for bringing swindling cabmen to justice, the system could be brought into shape with a certain defined aid from the police. The present arrangement through the Mayor's office is a burlesque upon system. Nobody seems to know where the power of the Marshal begins, but everybody knows where, to all intents, it ends—namely, at the door of the Mayor's office. Any reform in the rates of fare must be accompanied by the appointment of such a Commissioner as we have indicated. If not, in the language of the stableman to a Herald reporter, "things will go on as usual."

Thieves and Detectives.—There is a pale glimmer of light in the otherwise sombre narrative of Miles, the burglar, printed yesterday. Colonel Whitley was chief of detectives. He sent for Miles, the burglar. Miles came. "George," says the Colonel, "I want you to do so and so." The spectacle of a chief detective on terms of such familiarity with a professional thief will suggest many thoughts, among others this—"How would it serve the interests of justice to send the chief detective to jail for a season, and put the service in the hands of expert cracksmen like 'George?'"

Mr. Curtis, the leader of the revolt against Conkling at Syracuse, will appear in public to-night as a lecturer. We trust he will have an overflowing house. His theme is, "Women in the Old Time and the New." This is one of the themes which Mr. Curtis has the genius to discuss. He is never so much at home as when in these light, flowing, charming moods. Still, if he desired to speak upon a subject which the city would feel interested in hearing discussed at length, he should take up the Syracuse Convention.

Let No Guilty Man Escape, and the guilty man who must not be permitted to escape is Miles, who is in the Windsor prison in Vermont. As a convict his testimony is not good in court, but a pardon would make it good, and the faithful will therefore take good care that the pardon distributor does not go down that way.

'CHANGE IN A STATE OF COLLAPSE—THE FOREIGN STOCK MARKET DEMORALIZED.

London, April 12, 1876.

The Stock Exchange is again in a state of collapse.

The Continental bourses are also uneasy. Heavy selling orders have been received from Paris, but it is almost impossible to make the sales.

FOREIGN STOCKS.

The Times to-day, in its financial article, says the foreign stock market has become almost utterly demoralized. It looks as if it may presently become impossible to deal in Turkish, Egyptian, Peruvian, Mexican and such like stocks.

A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT AT THE CLOSE.

London, April 12—Evening.

Stocks closed slightly improved in tone, with a recovery from to-day's lowest point.

SILVER ADVANCED.

Silver has risen to 53⅞d.

CAUSES.

The rise is chiefly attributable to the announcement of the immediate issue here of a new Indian government loan of $20,000,000, from which it is inferred that the Indian Council will not force the sales of their drafts, and remittances to India must be made in silver.

The market is also influenced by the announcement from Washington that the United States Senate has passed the bill substituting silver for fractional currency.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

Paris, April 12—Evening.

The Bourse has been very flat to-day, and all prices closed at the very lowest. Foreign stocks of all descriptions have been much pressed for sale, and the decline is severe all around.

A FRENCH DESCRIPTION OF THE PANIC ON THE BOURSE.

Paris, April 12, 1876.

The Messager de Paris, discussing yesterday's panic on the Bourse, says:—"Were we apprehensive of the immediate outbreak of an European war in which we would be fatally involved the market could not have more utterly lost its self control."

THE BERLIN BOURSE.

Berlin, April 12, 1876.

The Bourse to-day was very unsettled, and sales of all international stocks were difficult to make even at a heavy reduction in prices.

FAILURE IN BREMEN.

The National Zeitung announces the suspension of Rohlandt & Muller, an important cotton firm of Bremen, with heavy liabilities.

THE VIENNA BOURSE.

Vienna, April 12, 1876.

The Bourse to-day was very flat. Home funds, bank and railway shares were panicky and declined heavily.

NEWS CONCERNING EX-MINISTER SCHENCK.

Manchester, April 12, 1876.

A despatch to the Guardian from London says a despatch was received from Washington Tuesday which speaks in very positive terms of Mr. Schenck's resigning his position as United States Minister to England.

STEAMSHIP SERVICE TO AMERICA.

Liverpool, April 12, 1876.

The Williams & Guion line have arranged to despatch their steamers between this port and New York fortnightly.

The National line have not yet entered into the arrangement, but will probably skip a week occasionally, according to the exigency of business.

EMIGRATION FROM IRELAND.—AMERICAN PRISONERS WAITING FOR THE WARRANTS.

London, April 12, 1876.

The Pall Mall Gazette's Dublin special says it is pretty certain that the emigration from Ireland for 1876 will be the smallest since 1851.

It was only 51,462 last year.

AMERICANS STILL HELD FOR FORGERY.

The warrant for the surrender of Charles Brent, the Louisville forger, should have been issued to-day, but it was not. His case and that of William E. Gray, the New York forger, must await, like Winslow's, the solution of the legal question pending.

RUSSIAN DIPLOMATIC AGENCIES—PRINCE GORTSCHAKOFF TO ADVISE THE SULTAN—THE SERVIANS STILL EXCITED.

Ragusa, April 12, 1876.

Wesselitzky, the emissary of Prince Gortschakoff, has returned from Cettinje and conferred with Jonine, the Russian Consul General here. He will have an interview with Baron Rodich at Lara, then proceed to Vienna and St. Petersburg, and ultimately go to Constantinople to urge on the Porte the compliance with the demands of the insurgent chiefs who were assembled at Suttorina.

SERVIAN MILITIA TO MARCH TO THE FRONTIER.

Belgrade, April 12, 1876.

The militia of this city are about to start for the frontier.

THE MONEY TEST NOT ENCOURAGING.

The voluntary national loan has proved unsuccessful. The government has resolved to levy a forced loan of $10 a head.

A BOSNIAN INSURGENT COLUMN IN MOTION.

London, April 13, 1876.

The Daily News' special despatch from Vienna reports that the Bosnian insurgents have organized three columns of 2,500 men each, which are moving in the direction of Banjaluka.

The Roman Catholics, who have hitherto abstained from action, are now joining the insurgents.

IN CROATIA—AGITATION AND SUSPICION.

A special despatch from Odessa to the London Times announces that the Sclavic and Austrian bands which entered Bosnia from Dalmatia are in possession of all Turkish Croatia.

The Porte is arming the Mohammedans and sending out large reinforcements.

There is great irritation in Constantinople against Austria.

The Porte suspects the Austrian authorities of conniving at the movement in Bosnia.

THE PRINCIPALITIES POPULATION LIKELY TO JOIN THE INSURRECTION.

London, April 13, 1876.

The special despatch of the Times from Berlin reports that the excited populace of Belgrade treated Prince Wrede, the Austrian representative, to a charivari on Sunday evening.

Advices from Bucharest announce the resignation of the Roumanian Ministry on account of the result of the elections.

The Paris despatch to the Daily News says it is reported there that the Danubian Principalities are likely to join the insurrection.

THE EASTERN INSURGENTS STILL CONFIDENT OF SUPPORT FROM RUSSIA.

London, April 12, 1876.

The Times' Berlin despatch reports that Wesselitzky, after officially communicating Gortschakoff's message to the insurgent chiefs and receiving their refusal, resumed the character of a travelling philanthropist.

Sclavonic advices represent that the assembled chiefs appointed him diplomatic representative of the rebellion.

These reports show the confidence of the rebels in their Russian friends, notwithstanding the refusal of the Russian government to promote the dismemberment of Turkey.

RUSSIA.

THE SEMI-OFFICIAL PRESS REVIEWS THE EUROPEAN SITUATION—THE GREAT NORTHERN IMPERIALISM CANNOT COUNT ON MANY FRIENDS—THE GERMAN ENTENTE OF DOUBTFUL SINCERITY.

St. Petersburg, April 12, 1875.

The semi-official Wedemosti, reviewing the political situation in Europe, says the relations of the Great Powers to each other leave many things to be wished for.

ENGLAND.

England and Russia distrust each other.

AUSTRIA.

The relations between Russia and Austria are not clear. Andrassy's position is rumored to be ambiguous, but a new Ministry would make the friendship between Austria and Russia very doubtful. An understanding cannot be considered satisfactory if it depends upon this or that person who for the moment holds the helm.

GERMANY AND THE EAST.

Germany's demeanor in regard to the Eastern question is not sufficiently manifest to enable people to know what part she will play in future. Although Germany has declared she will leave the initiative in Turkish affairs to Russia and Austria, there is no reason to conclude that the Berlin Cabinet will remain passive when the decisive moment arrives. Russia estimates German friendship at the same value that Germany does Russian. It must not be overlooked how easily, under such circumstances, the Eastern question might provoke a conflict between these two empires.

Russianoptimist and Germanophiles vainly point to the bond of friendship uniting Russia and Germany, and to the latter's thankfulness for Russia's aid in restoring German unity, but thankfulness is unknown to diplomats. Bismarck is not given to sentimental policy.

THE PROTECTOR OF CHRISTIANITY IN TURKEY.

"The Golos states that every foreign intervention in Turkey will meet with Russia's energetic opposition if directed against the Sclaves and their righteous requests. The interest of Russia requires above all things the maintenance of peace; but Russia, nevertheless, cannot abandon the protectorship of the Turkish Christians for the sake of any alliance, however elevated, or any friendship, however intimate. The initiative, hitherto left to Austria, is now left to Russia. The latter will reach the aim sooner than the former."

THE CZAR TO ABDICATE IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

Magdeburg, April 12, 1876.

The Magdeburger Zeitung says it is incontestible that the Czar has declared his intention of abdicating as soon as Russian interests necessitate war.

MALACCA.

A FRESH OUTBREAK AGAINST ENGLISH RULE.

Singapore, April 12, 1876.

It is reported that fresh disturbances have occurred in Malacca.

Sir William Jervois, Governor of the Straits settlement, with a company of regulars, has left here for the scene of the trouble.

SAMOA.

A DIPLOMATIC AGENT ON HIS WAY TO WASHINGTON—HIS MAJESTY THE KING IN TROUBLE—CURIOUS STATEMENTS CONCERNING THE DIPLOMATIST STEINBERGER.

San Francisco, April 12, 1876.

Among the passengers from Australia by the steamship Granada are H. H. Hill, agent at Sydney of the English mail contractors; P. A. Jennings, Commissioner from New South Wales, Queensland and Tasmania to the Centennial Exhibition, and Frank Platt, Diplomatic Agent of the Samoan government, en route to Washington, D. C.

CONDITION OF AFFAIRS AT THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.

The news from Samoa is conflicting.

Correspondence published in the New Zealand Star of March 13 says that the natives became dissatisfied on account of the demand for funds made by Steinberger for himself and certain American retainers. King Malietoa requested Mr. Foster, the United States Consul, by letter, to rid him of Steinberger, he (the King) having come to the conclusion that Steinberger was "a fraud."

HIS MAJESTY DEEPLY EXCITED.

Mr. Foster applied to Captain Stevens, of the British ship of war Barracouta, and a meeting was held, at which the King denounced Steinberger as "a liar and impostor," and declared that he was responsible for the trouble between the government of Samoa and the foreign representatives.

UNDER ARREST.

Steinberger was then placed in confinement on board the Barracouta, where he remained at last advices.

THE OTHER SIDE—CHURCHMEN BLAMED.

Frank Platt, who left Samoa several days before these reported occurrences, says there is no truth in the report, as when he left the King and Steinberger were on confidential terms.

He states that the London Missionary Society is at the bottom of the trouble, the innovations introduced by Steinberger having interfered with the income of the society; also that certain European companies, who have had a monopoly of the trade, fear the influence of an American in power in the islands, and that Foster has been made a tool of by the conspirators.

The United States steamer Tuscarora was expected shortly at the islands.

Platt is on his way to Washington with despatches.

THE NEWS OF STEINBERGER'S DEPOSITION CONFIRMED—A PRISONER TO THE BRITISH NAVY.

San Francisco, April 12—Evening.

The schooner Ada May, which arrived here to-day, brings later advices from Samoa which confirm the reported deposition of Colonel Steinberger, the so-called Prime Minister. He still remained a prisoner on board Her Majesty's ship Barracouta.

There was no immediate prospect of a solution of the difficulty.

REVENUE CUSTOMS CONCLUSIONS AGAINST SMUGGLERS.

Havana, April 12, 1876.

The Havana Custom House, with largely diminished imports and exports for the past quarter, has nevertheless collected $2,500,000 more than during the same period last year.

This result proves that smuggling has greatly abated.

LIBERIA.

PEACE RESTORED THROUGH THE PRESENCE OF AN AMERICAN MAN-OF-WAR.

Washington, April 12, 1876.

Some time since the United States steamer Alaska, Captain A. A. Semmes, was ordered by the Navy Department to proceed from the Mediterranean to Liberia, West Coast of Africa, for the purpose of aiding in the suppression of the revolt of the native tribes against the Liberian government. The Alaska arrived at Monrovia on the 5th of February last, and after taking on board the American Minister and the President of Liberia, with his suite, proceeded to Cape Palmas.

THE SEAT OF WAR.

Advices have been received from Captain Semmes, under date of March 2, that through his intervention and without resort to force a treaty of peace has been signed by the chiefs of the various tribes at war with Liberia, on the one part, and the President of the Republic and Captain Semmes on the other. Liberia has thus been saved from a devastating conflict through the instrumentality of the navy. It is to be hoped that in future our men-of-war will continue to visit the Republic and afford the protection so essential to its progress and prosperity.

CANADA.

CLOSING LABORS OF THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, Ont., April 12, 1867.

At the meeting of Parliament last night the business of the session was concluded.

A motion was submitted by Mr. Mackenzie authorizing the government to enter into a contract during the recess for work on sections of the Pacific Railway from Port William westward toward Lac Des Mille Isles and the crossing of Sted River, and from Rat Portage to Cross Lake. After brief remarks by Messrs. Thompson, Cariboo and Courrier the motion was adopted.

The Supply bill was afterward introduced and passed through all the stages.

The Senate has declared the seat held in that body by Sir Edward Kenney vacant, owing to that gentleman's absence for two consecutive sessions. Sir Edward's ill health is the cause of his retirement.

GENERAL PRADO AT NIAGARA.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 12, 1876.

General Prado and a party of four attendant personages arrived here at ten minutes after one o'clock this afternoon and took carriages, visiting the various interesting points about the Falls. Unfortunately, they had a rainy afternoon, yet they were greatly delighted with their first sight of the great wonder of the North American continent. They took rooms at the Spencer House, but pressing engagements requiring their immediate return, they left on the evening train to arrive in New York to-morrow morning.

THE MILWAUKEE WHISKEY CASES.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 12, 1876.

Judge Drummond pronounced sentence this morning on C. F. J. Moeller, ex-gauger, convicted of making false returns. He was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the State Prison and a fine of $2,500.

Reynolds, rectifier, convicted of conspiracy, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $2,500.

CROOKED WHISKEY AND CLEMENCY.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 12, 1876.

Great consternation prevails to-day among the whiskey men in this city who turned State's evidence in expectation of clemency by reason of the sentence of John B. Reynolds, of the firm of Burback & Reynolds, rectifiers, on whom sentence had been suspended in pursuance of such a policy, to six months' imprisonment in the County Jail, $1,500 fine and half the costs of the prosecution. C. J. Moeller, ex-gauger, who has lately returned from Canada in the full belief of receiving official mercy, was likewise to-day sentenced to one year in the State Penitentiary, $2,500 fine and all the costs. The millionnaire, Jake Nunnemacher, who was found guilty yesterday of conspiracy to defraud the revenue, was required to give $20,000 bail pending sentence.

ANOTHER WHISKEY CONVICTION.

Chicago, Ill., April 12, 1876.

In the United States Court this morning the jury in the Frusinger and Seaverns whiskey case returned a verdict of guilty. The sentencing of the two men was postponed until after all the whiskey trials have been completed in this court.

SUICIDE IN HIGH LIFE.

Boston, April 12, 1876.

William B. Towne, of Milford, N. H., and a man well known throughout New England, fatally shot himself at his son's house, in Jamaica Plain, Mass., last Monday evening, but it was supposed that he died a natural death. The circumstances were disclosed by the attending physician this morning. Mr. Towne, until a short time since, was president of the Souhegan Bank in Milford, N. H., and he was also treasurer of the savings bank in that town. His name was brought prominently before the public a few months since from the fact that after the Milford bank robbery he visited Baltimore and there treated with the agent of the robbers, recovering the greater part of the stolen securities, and resigning his position in the bank shortly afterward.

Mr. Towne was once a clerk in Boston, and a partner in the firm of Towne, Bowker & Co., dry goods dealers. He married a daughter of Mr. Hill, a merchant of Boston engaged in the tea trade, and resided in Boston. He suffered pecuniary losses and retired from his business, and became a collector for the firm of Beebe & Co., which place he held many years, and in their employ acquired a competency. Some years ago he purchased his grandfather's homestead in Milford, N. H., took up his abode in that town and became an active citizen. While a resident of Massachusetts he became a member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, and did much toward its prosperity. His portrait is preserved in the society's rooms. He was an active member of the New Hampshire Historical Society, and represented the town of Milford in the Legislature for the years 1872 and 1873.

VIRGINIAN REPUBLICANS.

Tricks Resorted to by Blaine's Partisans.

PACKED DELEGATIONS.

Conkling Men Join Morton's Supporters.

WRANGLING OVER SEATS

Lynchburg, Va., April 12, 1876.

Under the skilful manipulation of ex Congressman Platt and Congressman Stowell, aided by nearly all the federal office-holders in the State and a corps of department clerks from Washington, all of whom were actively at work since last night, a lively but superficial Blaine sentiment was developed among the delegates to the Republican State Convention this morning. They succeeded in overslaughing the strong feeling existing among the delegates in favor of Conkling by plausible representations and arguments, chief among which was the one that the President had no choice as to candidates, and that Blaine would certainly be the choice of the Cincinnati Convention. All the "hurrah, boys" and party workers were instructed to use these and similar arguments, which so far succeeded that this morning Mr. Platt felt independent enough to hold

A CAUCUS OF THE BLAINE MEN.

In this caucus Congressman Stowell stated that he had called upon the President on Monday and asked his views as to what would be the proper course to pursue at the Lynchburg Convention. The President in reply, said Mr. Stowell, expressed no choice as to candidates. He wished a good republican nominated, and when nominated elected, but he thought the delegates elected should be sent to Cincinnati untrammelled by any instructions. Upon this announcement a party pimp yelled "Three cheers for President Grant," leading off himself, and the unsuspecting delegates joined in a feeble way. Thus the trap was laid, and into it even a number of the leading Conkling men fell without knowing how, why or wherefore. Following up this success, it was moved and carried in the caucus that the supporters of Blaine would insist upon a vote of preference in his favor in the Convention.

Collector Russell, of Richmond, who arrived here this morning by way of Washington, where he also had an interview with the President, corroborated the statement of Congressman Stowell in regard to a choice of candidates and that the Cincinnati delegation should be sent without instructions.

THE PRESIDENT'S PREFERENCE.

Now, both of these gentlemen are morally certain, as are all the federal officials in this State, that the President has a decided preference for Conkling, and, though they owe their appointments and official existence to him, they evince their gratitude by supporting a man to whom he is said to be opposed as his successor. It is a certainty to-day that the real republican sentiment of the State is not in favor of Blaine. His record as a republican is more vulnerable than that of any man named for the candidacy. The negroes in the South would have no confidence in him whatever, if they were informed as to his course on the Civil Rights bill and the enforcement of it. These matters are studiously kept from the knowledge of the "man and brother," but he is dragooned, hoodwinked and cajoled into his support. Undue advantage has been taken by the office-holders of the fact that the President would make no expression personally to them as to his choice of candidates, and by making it appear that he really had no choice, they have been barely able to obtain an expression in favor of Blaine.

BLAINE CANNOT SECURE AN EXPRESSION.

On the question of an instructed delegation in the interest of the ex-Speaker there has been a square retreat by his supporters here; nor is this attributable to any degree of sympathy on the part of the office-holders with the wishes of the President that the delegates to Cincinnati should go untrammelled. It was ascertained early in the fight, by an actual count of noses, that such instructions could not be carried, and it will be difficult even now to force an expression of preference for Mr. Blaine—which would, however, be devoid of any moral effect—through the Convention. This is conceded as a victory to the Conkling men, who now claim that fully, if not more, than half the delegation that will be sent to Cincinnati will be in favor of their candidate as their first choice. In the speeches that were made to-day it was noticeable that the name of Blaine did not elicit any more responsive and enthusiastic applause than did the names of any of the other candidates. His Andersonville speech was freely distributed among the delegates, and he was liberally lauded by Mr. Platt as the ablest and purest patriot-republican in the country. But no allusion was made to his skill as a tactician and parliamentary strategist in endeavoring to defeat the Enforcement act.

A better analysis of the Convention shows that scarcely one-third of its members are colored and the other two-thirds (the whites) well nigh number the whole republican vote of that race in the State. The latter, too, were principally office-holders, while the negroes who are the voters of the party were accorded the empty honor of temporary chairman of the Convention.

"PACKING" FOR BLAINE.

The Convention met at noon. Peter J. Carter, colored, was elected temporary chairman. A Committee on Credentials was appointed, which took up the entire day hearing contests for seats. To-night the opponents of Blaine of the committee brought in a minority report, based upon allegations that unrepresented counties were illegally represented by proxies, picked up by Platt and Stowell in the streets of Lynchburg. Captain Rives, who submitted the minority report, was frequently interrupted, and as he exposed fraud after fraud the majority became boisterous and great confusion ensued. Among others, ex-Congressman Sener was proven to be an alternate by fraud from a county in which he does not reside. In short, the Blaine men had eventually attempted to pack the convention, and the charge was made that one J. W. Waltz had travelled over the State making up the slate of delegates.

CONKLING'S STRENGTH TRANSFERRED TO MORTON.

Several attempts were made to choke off the reading of the report, but the reading nevertheless proceeded. Meanwhile the Conkling men were at work shifting their strength to Morton and influencing colored delegates to support the Indianian, on the ground that he defended Pinchback in the Senate and that he has been consistently the friend of Southern republicans.

It was becoming apparent at this time that legally elected and respectable delegates were about equally divided between Conkling and Morton, and that with some exceptions the Blaine thunder and hurrah proceeded from a great many rotten borough delegates and the federal office-holders. A prolonged and stormy discussion took place on this minority report on contested seats, and it looked as if it would be an impossibility to effect a permanent organization. At forty minutes past ten P. M. the Convention was still in a wrangle, without any prospect of a solution of the contests.

MORTON DEFEATED.

After a bitter discussion, during which personalities were freely indulged in, the report of the minority of the committee was rejected and the Blaine delegates were seated. The Hon. J. Ambler Smith, of Richmond, denied the statement of a correspondent of the New York Times to the effect that he had characterized as false the statement made by a correspondent that he had been threatened federal office-holders with removal if they did not support Roscoe Conkling. Committees were appointed on permanent organization, and the Convention is still (at twelve o'clock, midnight) in session.

CHAMBERLAIN'S CRUSADE.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION—FUTILE RAGE OF THE MOSES FACTION AGAINST THE PRESS—SUCCESS OF THE MORTON MEN.

Columbia, S. C., April 12, 1876.

The Republican Convention was in session to-day from one to seven o'clock. The early hours were occupied by abusing the members of the press who reported the disgraceful proceedings of the previous day. The correspondents of the Herald and Washington Chronicle were invited to explain to the Convention the source of their information of the reported attack upon Governor Chamberlain, which they did. Elliott, from the Committee on Credentials, reported the delegates led by Patterson, Bowen and Whittemore, all of whom were seated. Chamberlain made a minority report, which was tabled.

Elliott and Cardozo spent the afternoon in attacking and defending their respective sides. The great fight before the Convention was whether Chamberlain and those who have assisted him in giving South Carolina a comparatively decent government should represent the State or whether it should be the Whipper-Moses faction, with their rice field confederates.

A recess was taken until the evening.

THE DELEGATES.

The Convention reassembled at nine P. M., after which the following named delegates were elected to represent the State at Cincinnati:—S. A. Swails, J. H. Rainey, H. G. Worthington, W. J. McKinley, H. C. Corwin, W. B. Nash, A. S. Wallace, Dr. Winsmith, Robert Smalls, L. Cain; at large—J. J. Patterson, R. B. Elliott, Richard H. Gleeves, T. C. Dunn—eight colored and six white men. Judge Carpenter addressed the Convention against the administration of Governor Chamberlain amid intense excitement, but there was no unusual confusion. The delegation is unanimously in favor of Morton.

SERIOUS OIL FIRES.

Parker's Landing, Pa., April 12, 1876.

At ten minutes to nine A. M. a 12,000-barrel oil tank, belonging to Grandin & Neyhart, situated at Bear Creek station, Allegheny Valley Railroad, was struck by lightning, bursting the upper ring of the tank, and throwing the oil over two adjoining tanks of the Union Pipe Company. At half-past two P. M. the three tanks were still burning, involving a loss of about 45,000 barrels of oil, 10,000 of which belonged to Grandin & Neyhart and the remainder to the Union Pipe Company. Should the wind shift to another quarter, an additional tank, holding 20,000 barrels of the Union Pipe Company's oil, will also be consumed. Persons having credit balances in the line will be assessed pro rata, according to the loss sustained. The tanks now burning are valued at $15,000, and the oil lost will amount to $80,000. Should the other tank take fire the total loss on tanks will be $23,000 and of oil $125,000. The Atlantic Pipe Company's 25,000-barrel iron tank, at Beaver Pipe station, was also struck by lightning at half-past four this morning, and after burning four hours was extinguished by the agency of steam. The probable loss is $2,000.

THE FIRE AT ST. JOHNS, QUEBEC.

St. Albans, Vt., April 12, 1876.

A large fire at St. Johns, Canada, this morning, destroyed the three story brick block (owned by E. and D. McDonald, and occupied by Mr. Mosseur as a store, and E. McDonald as a residence), the wooden storehouse adjoining (owned by McDonald), a tenement in the rear and a stable, owned by Mr. Bessonier. Mr. Mosseur saved a portion of his goods in a damaged condition. The total loss is estimated at $70,000; partially insured.

FIRE DAMP EXPLOSION.

Allentown, Pa., April 12, 1876.

A terrible explosion of fire damp occurred in the Nesquehoning mines at eleven o'clock this morning, killing Hugh Coffell, Joseph McGovern and Thomas Shields, and badly wounding Levi Marsden, Richard Bodine, Joseph Norwood, Jacob Meyers and Charles Callan. The latter cannot recover.

FOSTER BLODGET.

Atlanta, Ga., April 12, 1876.

Judge Peoples to-day decided not to discharge Foster Blodget. Bonds are required in $17,000.

DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN IOWA.

Creston, Iowa, April 12, 1876.

A terrific storm of wind, rain and hail passed over this town late on Monday night, and five dwelling houses and a large number of sheds and outhouses were blown down and demolished. The damage will aggregate $7,000 to $10,000. There was no loss of life.

Chicago, April 12, 1876.

A special from McGregor, Iowa, says a perfect torrent of rain fell in that city last night, inundating cellars and flooding the lower stories and doing damage, to the extent of $50,000.

MIDNIGHT WEATHER REPORT.

THE COURTS.

Another Motion to Dismiss the Complaint in the Taylor-Gould Suit.

BADGERING A WITNESS.

Suit by Lyon, of Emma Mine Notoriety.

STOCK SPECULATORS AND THEIR MARGINS.

The Government Suit Against General James Watson Webb.

In the further trial yesterday before Judge Barrett, in Supreme Court, Circuit, of the suit of De Witt C. Taylor vs. Jay Gould and others, growing out of the Black Friday gold conspiracy, the proceedings were unusually lively and piquant, and were, of course, correspondingly enjoyed by the usual large throng of spectators present.

Mr. Albert Speyers was recalled, and in answer to Mr. Sullivan said he could not swear whether the memorandum of plaintiff's sale was signed by him on Friday or Monday.

Mr. Sullivan suggested that the case be given to the jury to decide on the point whether the memorandum was made on Monday or Friday. The case, he said, was a peculiar one, involving large interests, and it was quite within His Honor's discretion to allow the case to go to the jury just then.

Mr. Beach opposed this, saying the Court had no such discretion, and that the proposal was an attempt to evade the statute of frauds on the point as to signature.

Mr. Peckham said it mattered little, after all, whether the memorandum was signed on Monday or Friday. The real point of interest was the fact that it came from Speyers' office.

Three memorandums were here handed to Mr. Speyers by Mr. Sullivan, and he admitted that they were dated September 24, 1869, and were signed by him; but he still believed that he did not sign any of the memorandums of the Black Friday gold transaction (of which these were a portion) until Monday.

Mr. O'Brien was next recalled, and he testified that on Black Friday he sold Mr. Speyers $170,000 at 150 and $100,000 at 160, and between one and two o'clock on the same day received Mr. Speyers' memorandums, which witness produced. The memorandums were dated September 24 (Black Friday), and recorded purchases by Speyers for account of "James Fisk, Jr., and his associates."

Mr. Shearman then took the witness in hand to cross-examine him, and the audience were afforded a rich treat.

"Have you not brought a suit arising out of these transactions?" asked Mr. Shearman.

"Yes," answered the witness; "after I had visited the Twenty-third street bastile to see you, and found the place barred and barricaded; I wanted to interview you but couldn't get in." (Laughter).

"Against whom did you bring suit?"

"Fisk and associates."

"Will you swear that you so instructed your lawyer?"

"I had confidence in my lawyer, Mr. Hill; I left that to him."

"What did you say to him?"

"I don't remember what I said."

"Did you hand the tickets to Mr. Hill and say nothing?"

"I don't remember what I said."

(Question repeated.) "Now, don't be so savage"—(Roars of laughter)—"I told you before, I don't remember."

"Your Honor," said Mr. Shearman, addressing Judge Barrett, "I submit that this is the sixth time he has evaded my question."

"That is no evasion," said Judge Barrett.

"I told you I couldn't remember what I said," said the witness.

"I didn't ask you that," said Mr. Shearman. "Do you mean to say you don't remember whether you said a word?"

"I tell you that I don't remember what instructions I gave him; I have confidence in him."

"I appeal," spoke up sharply Mr. Shearman again, "to Your Honor if this is not the eighth time he has evaded me?" (Roars of laughter.)

"Oh, no; there is no evasion; but he doesn't precisely understand the question," answered the Judge.

After this the witness and the counsel had a lively time over the question whether the witness passed his tickets through the Clearing House on Saturday or Monday.

"But how could you possibly send them in on Saturday, when the bank was closed," persisted Mr. Shearman.

Witness, stretching out his arms toward the counsel, and lowering his voice:—"Softly, softly." (Shouts of laughter.)

"Oh, you are a brilliant witness. A very smart witness; but you would look better if you weren't quite so smart," ejaculated Mr. Shearman. The witness bowed.

Mr. Peckham—A lecture without charge. (Laughter.)

Mr. Shearman then moved to dismiss the complaint on various grounds. At the close of Mr. Shearman's argument on the motion to dismiss the complaint, and after replies by Mr. Sewell and Mr. Peckham, Judge Barrett said he held that there was enough in the case to go to the jury on the question whether Gould, Smith & Martin were acting in concert with Fisk. The Court then adjourned.

THE EMMA MINE LYON.

Some time ago James E. Lyon, of Emma mine notoriety, employed Eldridge & Johnson, attorneys of this city, to commence an action against Isett Kerr & Co., to recover against them some $250,000. Eldridge & Johnson agreed to take for their services as attorneys and counsellors one-fifth of the amount that might be recovered, Lyon agreeing to pay all cash disbursements. The action was commenced and referred to a referee, who, after hearing testimony on both sides, reported in favor of defendants and against Lyon, who in the meantime had gone to London before the referee made his report. Eldridge wrote to his partner, Johnson, who was then in Europe with Lyon, to see Lyon and have him send over to Eldridge £300 sterling to take up the report of the referee, which Eldridge wrote he had no doubt would be in favor of Lyon, and that he wanted to have the money on hand to take up said report. On reading this letter Lyon immediately cabled, through Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., £300 sterling to Eldridge, which he received. The money was not used or paid to take up the report of the referee, which was against the plaintiff. On Lyon's return to New York he went to see Eldridge to get his money, which Eldridge declined to pay, on the ground that Lyon owed him for services. This proceeding was then commenced by Lyon to compel the attorney (Eldridge) to pay over said £300 sterling and interest on the ground that it had been received by Eldridge for a specific purpose, and had not been used by Eldridge for that purpose. Eldridge appeared, interposed an affidavit denying the allegations of Lyon, and claimed that Lyon was indebted to him in a large sum. A reference was made by Judge Lawrence to Mr. D. C. Calvin, the newly appointed Surrogate, who, after having taken a large amount of testimony on both sides, reported to the Court that the £300 had been received by Eldridge as an attorney for a specific purpose and that Lyon did not owe him anything. The report of the referee was confirmed by Judge Donohue, who made an order directing Eldridge, as an attorney, to pay over to Lyon or his attorney within ten days the sum of $2,205 26, being the amount of the £300, with interest and referee's fees, or in default of Eldridge not so doing that a precept issue against him in the usual form for not paying over moneys received by him as an attorney and belonging to his client. Eldridge appealed from this order, without giving any bond or without obtaining from the Court an order staying proceedings. He afterward made a motion asking the Court to stay proceedings until his appeal should be heard at General Term. This motion was argued yesterday before Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court Chambers, who, after hearing Mr. Samuel G. Courtney, counsel for Lyon, against the motion, and Eldridge in his own behalf, refused to stay the proceedings, but granted the favor to Eldridge to deposit with the Clerk of the Court the sum of $2,205 26 as security to Lyon to wait the event of his appeal, and that such deposit be made to-day before three o'clock. In the event of Eldridge not depositing this money, as required by Judge Donohue, the Sheriff, under the order of the Court, must commit Eldridge to jail.

IMPORTANT TO STOCK SPECULATORS.

A case was tried yesterday, before Judge Van Hoesen, in the Court of Common Pleas, presenting features of special interest to those seeking to win the favors of the fickle goddess through stock speculations in Wall street. Mr. William Shepherd, a stock broker was selected by William Lyster as his medium for operating in stocks. Mr. Shepherd bought on account of Mr. Lyster 100 shares of Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad stock. As usual, the stock speculator put up a certain margin in the hands of his broker, and as usual the stock fluctuated, compelling the latter to make demands for further margin. This further margin was not put up, and the result was a sale of the stock, with the further interesting addenda of a law suit. Mr. Lyster, who brought the suit, claimed that he received notice requiring further margin between two and three o'clock in the afternoon, after the Stock Board had adjourned, too late to enable him, even if he had the money in the bank, to make the required margin good. It turned out that in consequence of failing to respond to the demands of his broker the latter disposed of the stock at a lower figure than that stipulated for by Mr. Lyster. The defendant set up a specific agreement that when plaintiff's margin was exhausted he should, on notice, make it good. The plaintiff denied any such agreement, but claims that he was entitled to forty-eight hours' notice. Various witnesses were called to prove the custom in the street in regard to the length of time allowed such notices. There was failure of proof, however, that the allowance of any such length of time was customary. Upon this failure a motion was made to dismiss the complaint, which was granted, the plaintiff leaving the court room a sadder, but wiser man. This however, as will be seen, contains a salutary lesson to stock speculators on the point of keeping their margins good.

JAMES WATSON WEBB'S CASE.

In the case of the United States against General James Watson Webb the defendant was again called to the stand yesterday. He testified that he paid the money in dispute as directed by Wells, the claimant of this money, with the approval of the late Secretary of State, Seward. District Attorney Bliss contended that even if this were so Webb must refund the amount claimed, and which he says he disbursed in the manner described; that nothing but an act of Congress could justify that payment, and that the directions of the then Secretary of State would not excuse Webb, and that if he did even act by such direction he did so to his own wrong. The District Attorney moved that the Court direct a verdict for the government on the ground that the defendant had no approval or authority from the Secretary of State to dispose of the money as Webb alleges he disposed of it, or to relieve him from the obligation to account for it to the United States. Judge Blatchford said he would submit the case to the jury on this point—whether the defendant had the authority, sanction or approval of the Secretary of State at the time to dispose of the money in question as he had. It is probable that a verdict will be reached in the case to-day.

RIGHTS OF AN ADMINISTRATOR.

J. C. Julius Langbein, as administrator under the will of Adam Muller, brought suit against Charles Struppmann to recover $898 32, rents collected off the estate. The plaintiff, as administrator, on December 1, 1874, appointed the defendant as his agent to collect the rents of his estate, and agreed to pay him a commission of five per cent for collection. The defendant collected the rents as such agent and paid them over to the administrator, and received his commissions until February, 1876. He collected the February and March rents, amounting to $898 32, and refused to pay them over on the ground that they belonged to him as one of the tenants in common, he having married one of the daughters of the testator, and his wife having died, leaving him children surviving, by which he claimed an interest in the estate as tenant by the courtesy. He defended on these grounds, claimed he had a greater right than the administrator to collect and receive and keep the rents. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant was estopped from denying he had received the money as agent or collector of the plaintiff, as that was the fact that he had received the money as agent and could not now claim he had received it as a person entitled to an interest in the estate, and that by the terms of the will the plaintiff had the power to collect the rents. There was a long argument on the legal questions involved, and the trial, which occupied two days, was yesterday closed. Judge Alker, of the Marine Court, before whom the case was tried, directed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff for $907 04, and that the exceptions be heard in the first instance at the General Term. Mr. George F. Langbein appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Henry Wehle and Charles Goldzier for the defendant.

TOO HASTY DISPOSSESSION.

The suit of Mrs. Sarah Brown against Daniel R. Lyddy for damages for illegally dispossessing her from the premises No. 67 Monroe street, which has been on trial for three days before Judge Shea and a jury in the Marine Court, was concluded yesterday. Lyddy bought the lot and premises No. 67 Monroe street from the Remsen estate last April. Mrs. Brown held a twenty-one years' lease of the premises, which expired on the 1st of May, 1875, and which provided she should retain possession until she was paid the value of the house standing on the lot. The deed to Lyddy was made subject to this lease. In June, without having paid the value of the house, Lyddy commenced dispossessing proceedings in one of the district courts against Mrs. Brown, and by default in the absence of Mrs. Brown's counsel, Mr. William F. McNamara, from the court room for a few minutes, he obtained a warrant to remove her, and she was removed the same day by a marshal, and took shelter with her family in a school house. After being out six days she took possession of her house again, when Lyddy again sought to eject her under the Forcible Entry act in a suit in the Seventh District Court, when his proceedings were stopped by an injunction from the Supreme Court, from which he appealed to the General Term, and was there defeated. In the present suit it was claimed on behalf of the plaintiff that the warrant was without the force of law, and that the summons upon which it was founded not having been signed by the Justice, the Court never acquired jurisdiction of the matter. The defendant's counsel contended that the warrant could not be impeached in a collateral action. The Judge left the question whether the summons was signed to the jury, and instructed them that they could give damages for injury done to her comfort and feelings in being turned out. The jury gave her a verdict of $1,200. It appeared during the trial that Messrs. Lad and McNamara, Mrs. Brown's counsel, had five suits pending against Lyddy to protect the widow's rights, the suit for damages, suit for the value of the house, a suit in equity to make the value a lien on the property, an injunction suit to stop him interfering with her possession, and a certiorari.

DISCHARGED DEBTORS' TROUBLES.

In Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday Judge Donohue granted a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Otto Alborn. It appeared that Alborn had been arrested and confined in Ludlow Street Jail in a civil suit; that he took the Insolvent act and was discharged by Judge Spier, of the Superior Court; that then, Alborn's creditors petitioned Judge Spier to set aside the discharge, and that Judge Spier granted an order to show cause why the petition should not be set aside, and in the meantime ordered the Sheriff to arrest Alborn and hold him to bail. A. H. Purdy, who appeared for Alborn, insisted that the order of Justice Spier was wholly void and without authority of law. Mr. Elliott F. Sheppard, who appeared for the creditors of Alborn, asked that the case be adjourned to give him time to prepare for the argument. Mr. Purdy opposed this, and after a somewhat heated argument between counsel Judge Donohue adjourned the matter to this morning to allow the Sheriff to make a return to the writ.

FRAUDULENT IMPERSONATION.

A rather curious suit was tried yesterday before Judge J. F. Daly in the Court of Common Pleas. Mr. Herman E. Haeger keeps a storage house on Eighth avenue. In 1873 a man, giving his name as A. G. Monocal, negotiated with him to store the furniture of the house No. 317 East Fifty-first street, stating that the furniture belonged to him, taking a receipt from Mr. Haeger for the furniture. Subsequently this same man took away the goods. Afterward it turned out that the man giving his name as Monocal was an agent of the latter, his name being Henry Martin. Mr. Monocal, to whom Martin had given the receipt, went after his furniture, when to his surprise he found that the goods had been removed in the manner described. He claims that the value of the furniture is $3,000, and has brought suit against Mr. Haeger to recover this amount. Mr. Haeger was sick and unable to attend court, and his counsel was also engaged elsewhere. An inquest was being taken in the case, when the services of Messrs. Jacobs and Sink were obtained on behalf of the defendant, Mr. T. B. Odell appearing for the plaintiff. This put a decidedly different complexion on the case, and the testimony elicited on the cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses was both spicy and interesting. The case was given to the jury at half-past one o'clock, and they not having agreed at five o'clock, were ordered to bring in a sealed verdict this morning.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Henry Conrad, summoned as a juror in the United States Court, was yesterday fined $150 by Judge Wallace for non-attendance.

Delano C. Calvin was yesterday sworn in as Surrogate by County Clerk Walsh, after which he received his certificate and filed his bond with the Clerk. Augustus Schell and James A. Thayer are Mr. Calvin's sureties to the amount of $50,000. He will open the Court to-day.

A verdict for $4,855 for the plaintiff was rendered yesterday in the suit brought by Harriet B. Cresswell against George Reed, tried before Judge Dyckman, holding Supreme Court, Circuit. The suit grew out of an alleged fraudulent transfer of real estate.

An order of Judge Donohue yesterday was filed in the County Clerk's office authorizing the receiver of the Security Savings Bank to offer a reward for the capture of John H. Seil, the absconding bookkeeper and confidential clerk of the bank, and to pay experts to examine his accounts and detectives to hunt him up.

The suit brought by Henry Werthemer against Henry Strauss and Abraham Wolfe was tried yesterday before Judge Lawrence and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $982 01. The suit was similar to that tried on the previous day, in which Nathan and Charles May and Solomon Mueller were the respective plaintiffs.

In the suit brought by Anthony J. Bleecker against the city to recover $15,000 compensation for appraising city property under direction of the Sinking Fund Commissioners, a motion was made yesterday before Chief Justice Daly, at Special Term of the Court of Common Pleas, to amend the answer by setting up an agreement by the plaintiff with the Comptroller, whereby he consented to allow the latter to fix the compensation, and that the Comptroller had fixed it at $3,000. Judge Daly took the papers.

In a suit for divorce on the ground of adultery brought by Helen Phillips against her husband, Richard Phillips, a motion was made yesterday before Chief Justice Daly for alimony and counsel fee. After hearing the opposing affidavits, setting forth that the husband had been far more cruelly treated by his wife than he had ever treated her Judge Daly denied the motion.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday, before Judge Gildersleeve, the case of James B. Cummerford, for forgery, was continued. Mr. Charles Unger testified to the prisoner coming to his office in company with Mitchell when the check with the forged certification was passed. Charles E. Thomas, paying teller of the Ninth National Bank, testified that the indorsement of his name upon the check was a forgery. Several witnesses swore they had known the prisoner for many years, and that his character was good. The accused testified that he had no knowledge that the check was not correct, and that he had not taken any part in negotiating it, but had simply accompanied his partner, Mitchell. The case is not yet concluded.

TOMBS POLICE COURT.

Before Judge Bixby.

DRUGGING SAILORS AND ROBBING THEM.

George Sarsfield, proprietor of a grocery and liquor store at No. 87 Washington street, was yesterday arraigned on a charge of robbing Thomas Jeffers and Bernard Burns, sailors, after having dosed them with drugged ale. The complainants stated that while standing on the corner of Rector and Washington streets the accused came over and accosted them, invited them into the store across the way and asked them to take a drink. They drank ale, one or two glasses, and immediately felt drowsy and went to sleep. When they awoke they missed their money, amounting in all to about $23. Officer McMahon, of the Twenty-seventh precinct, was called in at the time and arrested Sarsfield. The latter yesterday denied his guilt, and protested that the complainants were robbed outside of his premises, if at all. Sarsfield was held in $2,000 to answer.

EX-COLLECTOR BADEAU'S CASE.

The case of Isaac Badeau, ex-Tax Collector, was called for trial in the City Court of Brooklyn, before Judge Neilson, yesterday. The prosecution intimated that they were not quite ready, and Judge Neilson said that as he had tried the case once and it was not usual for judges to hear the same case twice, he would prefer that this trial should take place before some other Judge. Counsel for Mr. Badeau said they had no objection to His Honor trying the case again, and it was set down for Tuesday next, April 18.

It is claimed now that since the last trial some startling facts have been discovered, which will show beyond all question where some of the moneys alleged to have been taken from the tax office have gone to, and that these transactions have taken place without the knowledge or consent of Mr. Badeau. The figures of the expert accountants have also been corrected since that time and the amount of the alleged deficiency greatly reduced. Mr. Barnard gave notice yesterday that he would, under the late decision in the Tweed case, reported in the 60th N. Y., move to confine counsel for the people to one count in the indictment.

ALABAMA CLAIMS.

DECISION OF THE COURT REGARDING "WAR RISK" CASES.

WASHINGTON, April 12, 1876.

In the Court of Commissioners of Alabama claims to-day the opinion of the Court in relation to the cases known as "war risks" was delivered by Judge Jewell. The following is a syllabus of the opinion:—

Insurance companies and insurers cannot recover in this court unless they show two things—first, that they suffered damage or prove losses by reason of destruction of property by the Confederate cruisers Alabama, Florida and the Shenandoah after she left Melbourne; and, second, that their business in insuring against war risks during the rebellion caused them a net loss, both of which being proved they may recover a sum equal to the amount of such net loss in their business if their losses by said cruisers amounted to the aggregate of such loss, but in no case greater than the amount of the net loss on such war risk business. In determining such net loss the amounts paid and received for reinsurance are to be taken into consideration.

Awards in three following cases were made under this decision:—Case 1,089. Commercial Mutual Marine Insurance Company, of New Bedford, Mass., $45,247 12, with interest at four per cent. Case 1,093. Ocean Mutual Insurance Company, of New Bedford, Mass., $17,425 86, with interest at four per cent. Case 1,098. Mutual Marine Insurance Company, of New Bedford, Mass., $44,199 72, with interest at four per cent.

Judgments were also announced in the following cases:—Case 1,108. L. Dinkenspiel et al., of San Francisco, for loss of merchandise on the Crown Point, destroyed by the Florida, May 13, 1863, $2,370. Case 511. George McGibbon & Co., of New Orleans, for loss of merchandise on the Electric Spark, destroyed by the Florida, July 10, 1864, $666 66; Judge Baldwin dissenting. Case 1,141. Ira Montross, of New Bedford, Mass., for loss of personal effects and wages by destruction of the Edward Carey by the Shenandoah, April 1, 1865, $1,730. Case 1,378. John W. Pierce, of New Bedford, Mass., for loss of wages by destruction of the Milo by the Shenandoah, June 22, 1865, $250.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The local politicians are considerably exercised as to the fate of the bill which proposes to extend Comptroller Green's term until the 1st of January. The report of its passage by the Senate yesterday was canvassed with considerable interest by the Aldermen. Tammany members express themselves as much chagrined at this state of affairs. They are bitterly opposed to the present head of the Finance Department.

Surrogate Calvin was yesterday sworn into office before the County Clerk. The bond of the new official was also filed.

The Law Committee of the Board of Aldermen have now before them the allegations as to the making of a fraudulent contract by the Department of Public Works with Mr. B. G. Clarke for furnishing iron water pipes to the city. No action has yet been taken. A meeting of the Board will be held this afternoon.

Comptroller Green has not yet determined as to whether he will issue the necessary bonds for the completion of the Brooklyn Bridge under the resolution recently passed by the Aldermen.

The anti-Custom House republicans will hold a meeting this evening for the purpose of organizing a general committee. It is understood that Mr. E. E. Thorne will be elected chairman of the new committee.

THE DOCK DEPARTMENT.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Dock Commissioners yesterday several unimportant communications from various persons asking for repairs of docks in which they were interested were read by Secretary Lynch, as was the following quarterly financial report:—

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Messrs. Reiwald & Kramer have made an assignment to Herman Zweig for the benefit of their creditors.

The failure of Messrs. H. W. Lockwood & Co., dealers in hides and leather, corner of First avenue and Forty-sixth street, was announced yesterday. The liabilities are supposed to be about $60,000, but the assets could not be ascertained yesterday.

Daniel Drew's creditors held their adjourned first meeting before Register I. T. Williams, No. 4 Warren street, yesterday. The following debts, in addition to those already published in the HERALD, were proven:—John D. Prince, $14,967 65; L. D. Hatch, $13,219 65; David B. Van Emburgh, $9,861 71; Vernon H. Brown, $5,000; Hannah Rundle, $1,900; Franklin H. Carter, $1,125 63. When the subject of electing an assignee was brought up there was considerable disagreement among the creditors. Mr. Isaac H. Bailey was finally chosen, after which the meeting adjourned.

The first meeting of the creditors of the estate of Samuel and Charles S. Perry was held yesterday at the office of Register Edgar Ketchum, Bennett Building. The following claims were proven:—Frederick S. Wells, $40,111; Adeline Perry, $19,760, and National Bank of Newport, $1,303. Mr. L. S. Wells, of No. 316 Broadway, was elected assignee.

The first composition meeting of the creditors of J. R. A. Power, of Newburg, who absconded several years ago and has not been seen since, was held yesterday before Register John W. Little, of No. 4 Warren street. The creditors insisted upon putting Power through an examination regarding his accounts before they took any steps toward accepting a composition. H. Fox, counsel for the bankrupt, promised to produce his client at the next meeting.

At the first composition meeting of the creditors of the Nonotuck Silk Company, held yesterday at the office of Register Fitch, No. 345 Broadway, the composition of thirty-five cents cash and thirty cents in indorsed notes was accepted.

William W. Lecombe, of the Lecombe Manufacturing Company, No. 38 Vesey street, has been adjudged bankrupt by Register Ketchum on his own petition. His liabilities are $30,000. His assets consist of 900 shares of the Lecombe Manufacturing Company and 500 shares Columbia Paper Company, which are worthless, and wearing apparel and ornaments valued at $5,000.

The firm of Tode Brothers, grocers, Nos. 713 and 939 Third avenue, 210 Bowery and 77 Delancey street, who failed a short time ago, are negotiating for a compromise at twenty-five cents on the dollar in indorsed notes at three, six and nine months. Ernest Tode offers fifteen cents, secured at three, six and nine months.

SECURITY SAVINGS BANK.

An application was yesterday made before Judge Donohue, in the Supreme Court, by William M. Banks, receiver of the Security Savings Bank, for an order authorizing him to employ expert accountants and detectives. He wishes to arrest John H. Seil, teller and confidential clerk of the bank, who, it is alleged, has decamped with some $70,000. The affidavit sets forth the facts in the case, which have already appeared. An order to this effect was granted.

CENTENNIAL SAMPLES.

Mr. J. B. Ellam, a son of B. Ellam, saddle, harness and whip manufacturer, of No. 213 Piccadilly, London, arrived in this city by the steamship Germanic on Saturday last, accompanied by two of his brothers, with the view of exhibiting at the Centennial articles manufactured by their firm. To a representative of the HERALD yesterday he complained that he had been, as he believed, imposed upon by our customs authorities in being forced to pay about $35, in gold, as duties upon £20 worth of samples intended for exhibition in the British department of the Centennial Exhibition. Mr. Ellam states that the samples were packed in a large case with some of his wearing apparel; that on the steamer he made the usual declaration in writing showing the facts. On landing at pier No. 57 North River he reports the Custom House officer demanded $35 in gold as duties; that when he offered to bond them the officer refused, and that he finally paid the demanded amount. Mr. Ellam believed that he had been swindled, especially as the samples of other exhibitors passed free of duty.

The reporter called upon Mr. Philips, private secretary to the Collector of the Port, who stated that the officer on the dock had merely done his duty. Colonel Osborn, Deputy Collector, called the reporter's attention to section 4 of the Regulations issued November 1, 1875, which provides that:—

Invoices showing the marks, numbers, character, quantity and foreign market value of articles intended for such exhibition shall be authenticated by the hand and official seal of the Commissioner for the International Exhibition appointed by the government of the country from which such articles are imported, and shall be made in triplicate and forwarded—one copy to the Collector of Customs for the port at which it is intended such articles shall enter the United States, one copy to the Collector of Customs for the port of Philadelphia and one copy to the consignee or agent of the shipper. In case it shall be impracticable to obtain the authentication of a commissioner under official seal, verification by a consular officer of the United States may be accepted instead.

Colonel Osborn states that when the owner of goods has paid the duties there can be no rebate; yet if any large amount were imported under a misconception of the regulations the customs authorities of this port would urge upon Secretary Bristow the propriety of allowing them to be entered here in bond for transportation without payment of duty and sent to the Custom House on the Exhibition grounds.

CENTENNIAL CURIOSITIES.

A collection of immense mirrors intended for exhibition at the Centennial Exposition have been imported on the steamers Rotterdam and August André, of the Antwerp line. They vary in size from 10x28 feet to 15x32 feet, and are the largest ever received in this country. There was also brought out on the André a large quantity of Speillerrion, which is harder than steel, and is used in the manufacture of safes.

REAL ESTATE.

The advertisement of the sale of the property of the insolvent Third Avenue Bank by R. V. Harnett, auctioneer, by order of the receiver, drew a large attendance at the Exchange Salesroom yesterday afternoon. The bidding was not so brisk as was anticipated, and the prices brought for the property, as mentioned below, were small and fair samples of the prices given in the present market. The sales comprised the following pieces of property:—

The bank on the northwest corner of Third avenue and Twenty-sixth street, 109x26x84x25x98.9, for $55,000; No. 969 Fifth avenue, a four story Nova Scotia stone house, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth streets, $34,000; No. 36 Forty-ninth street, 21.6 feet east of Madison avenue, a four story brown stone house, 21.6x55x75, for $21,000; No. 7 East Forty-sixth street, a four story brown stone house, with lease of lot 20x100.5, for $11,250 (ground rent, $1,200 a year); No. 19, same street, house same as above, with lease of lot, 20x100.5, for $10,100 (rent $1,075 a year); No. 21, same street, same lease, for $10,090 (rent $1,000); Nos. 23 and 25, adjoining same, with same ground rent, respectively $10,075 and $10,100; also No. 28 East Forty-seventh street, corner of Madison avenue, ground rent $1,025 per year, for $13,000; No. 156 East Twenty-sixth street, a two story brick stable, was sold for $6,550; a two story frame house, with lot 25x99.11, on 199th street, between Tenth avenue and Boulevard, $3,850; same sized lot, adjoining, $1,130; a frame house, 30x 6, with half an acre of land, at West Mount Vernon, $2,250. The sale of 80 70-100 acres of land at Tarrytown was adjourned to April 26.

R. V. Harnett also sold in foreclosure a house and lot on 115th street, east of Fourth avenue, for $3,200; a house on Forty-fifth street, east of Lexington avenue, with lease of lot 98.9x105, ground rent $490, for $8,200.

The other foreclosure sales resulted as follows:—

A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co. sold in foreclosure, by order of the Court of Common Pleas, F. W. Loew, referee, a house with lease of lot 24x96 on Fourth street, north side, 263 feet east of avenue A, for $6,100, to Ernest Ohl, one of the plaintiffs.

Mr. Bleecker also sold in foreclosure, by order of the Supreme Court, Philo T. Ruggles, referee, No. 90 Ludlow street, between Broome and Delancey streets, a three story brick house, with lot 25x87.6, to Henry Breslin, for $7,850.

V. K. Stevenson, Jr., sold, in a Supreme Court foreclosure sale, A. Thomas, referee, one lot, 25.6x90, on Tenth avenue, 2.56 feet south of Seventy-seventh street, and one lot on Seventy-seventh street, 25x102, 115 feet west of Tenth avenue, together, to B. P. Fairchild, for $3,900.

PANAMA RAILWAY AFFAIRS.

An article in the HERALD yesterday stating that the Sheriff of San Francisco refused to seize any more Pacific Mail Steamship property unless the Panama Railroad would enter into additional bonds of $600,000, drew from an ex-officer of the latter company the information that Panama had already offered to furnish the additional amount of bonds required, and that, therefore, all the processes of law against the steamship company would be duly served according to law.

THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE.

A committee of three members of the Bar Association has been appointed to inquire into the manner in which the Sheriff's office is conducted, with a view of bringing it to a greater state of efficiency than it is at present, as a great loss of time and money to those doing business there is caused by the manner in which it is at present conducted.

A NEW FREE SCHOOL.

A free school for Hebrew children—a branch of the one now being carried on at No. 348 West Fifty-fourth street—will be opened by the Rev. Maurice Cohen at No. 345 West Forty-fourth street next Monday. There is accommodation for seventy-five or eighty scholars. Between the hours of four and six P. M. girls will be taught plain and fancy sewing and in the evening boys will be instructed in Hebrew, German and French.

A MISSING MAN.

A maned Kuppe, son-in-law of Mr. Isaac Butler, of Tompkinsville, S. I., has mysteriously disappeared. He left home about ten days ago, since when nothing has been heard of him. He was steward on a government supply ship, and, it is said, borrowed $25 from the cook before leaving. When he left he said he was going to New York to buy some furniture, and is known to have had $150 with him. He is a German and a man of steady habits. It was at first thought that he might have gone to Europe, but this is now considered unprobable, from the fact that he did not draw out a deposit in the City Bank.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The Stock Market Unsettled and Feverish—A Broker's Day.

GOLD FIRM AT 113 A 113 1-4.

Governments Easy—Investment Shares Steady—Railway Bonds Generally Firm—Foreign Exchange Quiet—Money on Call 2 1-2 Per Cent—A Flurry Abroad.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, April 12—6 P. M.

Speculation to-day ran in the same grooves that it did yesterday, though the pace was not so rapid and the results less important. Such variation as there was tended upward; but, as in the case of

Dr. Fell,
The reason why I cannot tell.

In fact, there was no observable cause except that the droop in stocks for the last week and the belief in lower prices resulting from the absence of business and general stagnation of trade had created an overgrown short interest which opened an opportunity for a sudden turn upward discomfiting to weakly bears and profitable to venturesome bulls. Hence, for the moment, prices are higher in two or three of the speculative stocks, and short-waisted bears, driven to cover their contracts, are prone to exclaim with the apothecary in "Romeo and Juliet:"—

My poverty, but not my will, consents.

Thus, while the cubs came to grief the bigger bears have the opportunity of a better market and a higher scale of prices on which to add to their short sales. Lake Shore was as noticeable for its steadiness to-day as it was for its persistent decline yesterday. The freshet of long stock, which carried disaster with it in its downward course, subsided to-day, and the rise and fall of the flood were reduced to such dimensions that less than a single point marked the fluctuations.

There was even less variation in Western Union, but such as there was pointed in the direction of higher figures, the stock having opened at 66⅛ and sold up to 66¾, closing an eighth off from these quotations. The Twenty-third street party seem to have got an idea that the time has arrived to cover their shorts in this property, as they have been persistent buyers for two or three days past. Whether they have been gifted with the capacity of second sight as to its future course, or whether they are to be classed in the catalogue of those whom "wishing to destroy the gods first make mad" the future will show.

Pacific Mail, as far as activity went, had apparently come to anchor for the day, and, tested by variation in prices, there was not enough to keep a dog watch awake.

The only real excitement of the day hung about Central and Hudson, which declined about one per cent from yesterday's prices under a sudden onslaught. "The inward and spiritual grace" of the operation was only to be guessed at, but the "outward and visible sign" was presented in the person of the Commodore's own broker as an apparent buyer and a well known Board operator as an apparent seller. Nothing appears to be sacred in Wall street, and brokers will trade as readily on the prospect of death as they will in the chances of a dividend. The attack on Central and Hudson was generally accepted as a speculation on Commodore Vanderbilt's prospective decease, the instigators being willing to despatch the Ancient Mariner secundum artem after the manner of a duplicated Fuchs, and afterward feast on such "funeral baked meats" as might be realized from short sales of his favorite properties.

This ghoul-like effort was as disappointing as it was disgraceful, and the false activity quickly aroused as quickly faded away.

Michigan Central quietly settled down a point or so without eliciting any marked attention, and such fluctuations as characterized the rest of the market went by, scarcely observed under the greater attractions offered by the more speculative stocks.

Beyond a general firmer feeling, the natural reaction from the state of coma in which the market has been so long lying, there are no special features worthy of notice other than the list of fluctuations offered below.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

During the past week the financial reports from Europe have been significant. Up to the present hour they indicate great depression in securities which have heretofore been the favorites of the market. At London we note a heavy decline on Turkish, Egyptian, Peruvian and like stocks. At Paris foreign securities were pressed for sale and closed at lower prices. At Berlin there was a very unsettled feeling on the Bourse and International stocks were difficult of sale. At Vienna there was a panicky feeling in home funds, bank and railway shares. Doubtless the agitation of the Eastern question has something to do with the existing weakness; but the great failures that have occurred and the further liquidation which is expected are likewise producing their influence on London credit, and leading up to events which may be felt at a not distant day in our country. It is roughly estimated that the losses in Turkish, Egyptian and Peruvian securities amount to over $500,000,000. Thirty-six thousand pounds of bullion have gone into the Bank of England on balance to-day. Consols advanced to 94 9-16 for money and 94⅝ for account; '67 bonds, 109 a 109⅛; ten-forty bonds, 106¼ a 106⅜; new fives, 105⅜; Erie, 16¼ a 16¾; Erie preferred, 27 a 74½. In Paris rentes declined to 66f. Exchange on London, 25f. 24c. Bar silver has risen to 53⅞d. per ounce.

STATE BONDS.

State bonds were dull. New York coupon bounty loan sold at 104⅝, Missouri sixes of 1877 at 102½ and North Carolina Funding act of 1866 at 11. Sales of District of Columbia 3-65s were made at 69¼.

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY.

The Assistant Treasurer paid out to-day $9,000 gold on account of interest and $12,000 in redemption of 5-20 bonds.

The Treasury balances at the close of business to-day were:—Currency, $5,000,000; coin, $75,500,000; certificates, $31,000,000. Bank notes received for redemption to-day, $500,000; customs receipts, $400,000; revenue receipts, $200,000.

GOOD FRIDAY.

The joint resolution of Congress making Friday next, 14th inst., a legal holiday, applies only to the District of Columbia, and probably also to that day this year only, the object of the resolution being to give the government employés an opportunity of attending the unveiling of the Lincoln monument. The day was selected for this ceremony on account of being the anniversary of the murder of Mr. Lincoln—Good Friday falling this year, as in 1865, on the 14th of April.

The London Stock Exchange will be closed on Friday and on Monday next. Efforts are being made to make a holiday of Good Friday in our own Exchanges.

MEMORANDA.

The tellers appointed to receive and canvass the ballots for the election of the Committee of Purchase and Reorganization of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, report the result as follows:—

Amount of first mortgage six per cent bonds voted	$8,904,900
Amount of seven per cent bonds voted	10,438,000

The following gentlemen are elected as the committee:—A. A. Low, John Castree, C. P. Huntington, A. S. Hatch and Isaac Davenport, Jr.

The following is the statement of Wells, Fargo & Co. of the amount of treasure (gold and silver) received at and shipped from San Francisco for the first quarter of 1876:—

	Receipts.	Shipments.
January	$4,563,174	$4,677,380
February	4,494,735	3,953,861
March	6,728,393	7,908,803
Totals	$15,786,305	$16,540,044

The following shows the earnings of the Michigan Central Railroad during the first week in April:—

1876	$135,099 27
1875	131,002 99
Increase	$4,096 28

A despatch from Washington says that advertisements for the sale of the 5 per cent bonds—in which the Geneva award is invested for the payment of the awards of the Alabama Claims Court—will be issued in a few days. Bonds will be sold for gold only. The department will, however, sell the gold obtained from the disposition of these bonds for currency.

The House has passed the Silver Resumption bill without further amendment. It now goes to the President.

ANOTHER CENTENARIAN GONE.

On Monday Mrs. Hannah Randolph, aged 100 years, died in this city. She will be buried to-day at three o'clock, from the house of Mr. John Atwill, No. 1 Charlton street, the body to be deposited in a vault in St. Luke's church, situated in Hudson street. Mrs. Randolph was credited with being ninety-nine years of age last summer, and her faculties were then clear and remained so nearly until the last. The deceased was a very worthy lady, and it is supposed her death was simply the result of old age. The memory of Mrs. Randolph was remarkably good, and, like most persons who have attained such an advanced age in this country, she was fond of recalling reminiscences of the Revolutionary war. She remembered General Washington, and had repeatedly expressed a desire to live to see the Centennial Exhibition. It is supposed a large crowd will attend the funeral.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE COMEDY OF "TWINS" AT WALLACK'S THEATRE.

A crowded house welcomed the new American comedy of "Twins," by Mr. A. C. Wheeler and Mr. J Steele Mackaye, to the American stage last night. The event was one of universal interest, and the audience was as brilliant and intelligent as a dramatist would wish. A man who writes a play is very much in the condition of one who is tried for murder—he wants an intellectual jury if he is innocent, and a merciful one if he is guilty. Mr. Wheeler, to whom we attribute the actual authorship of this comedy—for we suppose Mr. Mackaye's stage experience was called into the service of Mr. Wheeler's literary skill—had a jury possessed of both generosity and sound judgment. It warmly recognized the strength of the comedy, and was kindly indulgent to its weakness. This feeling was expressed with unusual force at the end of the third act, when, after Mr. Wallack, Mr. Holland, Miss Dyas and Mr. Floyd had been called before the curtain, the applause continued for nearly five minutes, amid cries for "Wheeler!" "Wheeler!" delivered with stentorian energy. Such excitement as this was is not often manifested in a New York theatre, especially in Wallack's, where the audience is renowned for its gentility. The gas was turned down and then turned up by the gas man, who was plainly a secret enemy of Mr. Wheeler, but in vain. The orchestra, led by Mr. Thomas Baker, who was clearly a conspirator of the gas man, struck up an air of Verdi's, with the malignant intention of introducing all the trombones, but this was also unavailing. The applause of the audience drowned the orchestra, and the vanquished fiddlers and drummers surrendered. The house did not want music, but Wheeler. Finally Mr. Lester Wallack came before the curtain and announced that neither Mr. Wheeler nor Mr. Mackaye was in the house, but gracefully said that if they had been they would have been gratified to have made their acknowledgments, &c., &c. Where were they? That question was the sphinxitic enigma to which the house played an unsuccessful Œdipus. We are informed that when "She Stoops to Conquer" was brought out, Oliver Goldsmith roamed about the chalk pits at Fulham, fearful of its fate, afraid to see it decided, and was finally found by his friends in a state of deep despondency, expecting to hear of its failure. Neither Mr. Wheeler nor his collaborateur need have had such apprehensions. "Twins" was received with enthusiastic applause and hearty laughter, and it is to be regretted that both of its authors did not bow their acknowledgments from the boxes—not from the stage, of course, for an author never should be seen out of his place nor should he ever make a speech. His work is expected to speak for him and he—deus ex machina—should permit the actors to tell his story, and permit only a brief glimpse of his sacred person—just enough to assure the spectators of his existence. If Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Mackaye had appeared in person last evening they would have received the heartiest applause ever given to any authors in a New York theatre, and we do not except even Shakespeare or Boucicault.

The central idea of the comedy is capital. The twins so much resemble each other that the friends, the wife and the daughter of Chester Delafield accept Mark Delafield in his stead. This is an improbability at the start; but, if we are to leave improbability out of plays, what would become of the drama? Allowances must always be made for theatrical necessities. The two Dromios are not less improbable than the two Delafields. But another improbability—psychological, because founded on physical facts—exists in the differences of character. One brother, Chester, is so weak a man that he cannot manage his own household, and almost permits his daughter, wife and himself to become the victims of a villain. The other brother, Mark, is "a strong, resolute, practical man," who saves them all in the end. The phenomenon is rare, as every phenomenon must be. But this kind of criticism may be easily dismissed as irrelevant. A probable plot is generally tame. The dramatist, like the poet, must have a certain license, and all that can be justly demanded of him is that he shall not abuse the privilege. We do not think Mr. Wheeler has done this. The creed that the end justifies the means is, with how much truth we do not know, attributed to the Jesuits, and every dramatist is to this extent a Jesuit. The object of a comedy is fun, and it would be ungrateful to complain of the methods by which it is secured.

But the treatment of the idea of this comedy of "Twins" is open to more objection. Mr Wheeler's first act is weak. The purpose of the first and second acts is to exhibit the weakness of Chester Delafield and to display the situation. But the plot is not made sufficiently plain, and the audience is too much mystified. In a play the spectator should never be left in the dark, for his pleasure is derived from a clear perception of the mistakes, perplexities and blindness of the personages of the play. The author must put him in possession of the secret. This Mr. Wheeler has not done. The plot is not easily understood. The whole truth of Richard Wylde's rascality should be explained from the beginning, and in that case the audience would have been spared much tedious explanation in the last act. Nor do we think that the interest of the story in the first part of the play justifies two acts, for all that is needed to be known might be told with more effect in one. The authors betray this radical weakness by the fact that much of the dialogue in the first two acts does not fit the action, but wanders into irrelevant fun, and depends for effect entirely upon its own cleverness. The first really spontaneous burst of applause that any situation received was at the end of the second act, where Chester tears to pieces and throws on the floor the paper which would lose the fortune of his daughter Mary. Here Mr. Wallack made a great hit. The real interest of the play does not begin till the third act. All the rest is prologue, the background of a picture, the neutral tints required to make a contrast with positive colors. But two acts ought not to be surrendered to such a purpose, and for this reason we think that the comedy would be stronger than it is if it were written in three acts only. Mark is the man for whom the spectators truly care. He is the hero, and he is kept too long out of the story.

The play was splendidly mounted. The first scene, by Mr. Matt Morgan, a view of the Sound, with a cottage in the foreground and Long Island in the distance, was so warmly received that the artist had to appear before the curtain. The rest of the scenery was also greatly admired. To the acting the same praise cannot be given. Mr. Wallack, who played both Chester and Mark, was admirable and in the latter character especially strong. His interview with Wylde in the third act was a powerful contrast with the feebleness of character expressed in the preceding parts of the play, and his comedy—cool, ironic and at times full of grim passion—was delightful. Miss Effie Germon charmingly supported Mr. Wallack, and the exquisite way in which she uttered the simple phrase, "O Lord!" in the last act intensely amused the audience. Mr. Holland, as Wolfe, repeated the success he made as Diggory in "She Stoops to Conquer," and gave one of the finest personations of the evening. Mr. Stevenson was also very acceptable, though we cannot say much in praise of the song Mr. G. R. Thomas wrote for him, "O nay!" though it was pleasingly sung. Mr. Gilbert did the best with a part not wholly worthy of his genius. Miss Ada Dyas was a disappointment, and we have never seen this accomplished actress display so little force or make so little of her opportunities. As for Miss Geraldine Maye she was evidently overweighted by the rôle of Mary Delafield. The rest of the performance was even; but though a play may be estimated on its first night, it would be unjust to attempt to then determine the value of the acting. We can only congratulate the authors on the success which attended the first representation of "Twins," and hope that it will have the long run it deserves.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

Mlle. Belocco was at the Park Theatre last night, and laughed heartily at Mr. Rowe's fine comedy of "Brass."

The sixth and last soiree of the New York string quartet takes place at Chickering Hall on Saturday night.

Mr. Robert Fraser, the best clown before the American public since poor Fox's retirement, will be the central figure in "Humpty Dumpty" at the Olympic next week.

Mr. Theodore Thomas gives the last symphony concert at Steinway Hall on Monday next, with Miss Drasdil and Mr. S. B. Mills as the soloists. The programme is a fine one.

The sale of seats for the Belocca season of Italian Opera opens this morning at the Academy. The beautiful Russian prima donna will appear on Monday next in her best rôle, Rosina in "Il Barbière," in which she won her most brilliant success.

"Das Mädel Ohne Geld" (Girl Without Money), a musical farce of the most humorous kind, has attained at the Germania Theatre a popularity second to none of its predecessors. The farce is the work of Jacobson and Berg; the music, very sparkling and brilliant is by Mr. Adolph Neuendorff. One of the most amusing features is the admirable imitation of Wachtel by Mr. Merten. In voice, appearance and general make up it is perfect.

A young New York prima donna has recently made a sensation in Italy on the operatic stage. Her name is Miss Dumsday, and she has been but few years in the land of song under the best masters. Last month she appeared at Carrara, and the leading musical journal, Il Trovatore, of Milan, thus speaks of her effort:—"The beautiful prima donna, Vittoria Dumsday, at her last benefit at the Carrara theatre, sang in "Lucia" and also the waltz from "Dinorah," receiving abundant applause and marks of public favor. Poetical addresses, floral tributes and a splendid crown rewarded her efforts. The Fuesta Teatrale says that after the performance the fair young American artist was escorted to her residence by a band of music and that there was a display of fireworks in her honor. American lyric talent seems to be at a premium in Italy.

A MYSTERY.

A WEALTHY WOMAN STARTS FOR EUROPE, BUT DIES UNKNOWN ON A SOUTHERN STEAMER—WHAT CAUSED DR. HAMMOND TO KILL HIMSELF?

Some time in November last a stranger, giving his name as Dr. Baker, called on C. H. Mallory & Co., shipping agents, and purchased two passage tickets to Port Royal, S. C. One was made out in his name and the other left blank, the name to be supplied later, the stranger merely stating a lady would probably accompany him. He took passage on the vessel, as did also the lady for whom the ticket was purchased, but no one on board was aware of their acquaintance. When the vessel was less than a day at sea the lady took suddenly ill and died. During her sickness Dr. Baker tendered his services, but made no mention of being her friend or acquaintance. On account of the suddenness of her death the captain of the vessel was anxious to keep the body until they arrived at Port Royal, S. C., that an examination might be made, but decomposition set in and a burial at sea was necessary.

On his return to New York the captain made a report of the occurrence and nothing more was thought of it, as no suspicion of foul play in the matter was entertained. The dead woman's luggage was sent back to New York also and remained unclaimed. This circumstance created some surprise and among her effects to ascertain her identity, so as to forward the things to her friends. From papers in her trunks it was learned that she had resided in Rockland, N. Y., and that her name was Jersey or one like that. Letters were sent to a daughter of the deceased, relating the story of her death and requesting her to send for the trunks. She responded in person, accompanied by her husband, and told the following story of her mother's absence:—

In November last, she said, her mother came to New York in company with Dr. Hammond, her father-in-law, who came to see her off to Europe for her health. She was wealthy, and drew from a bank in this city $11,000 with which to travel abroad. Since then they had heard nothing from her and were under the impression she had sailed as she intended until the receipt of the letter from Mallory & Co. announcing her death and asking them to call for her effects.

Mallory & Co. would not deliver over the luggage to the claimants without positive proof of their right to receive it. For the purpose of obtaining what proof was necessary they returned to Rockland and procured proper papers. Yesterday was set for their return to New York with the proofs. They had no sooner reached here than a telegram from Rockland was received announcing the suicide of Dr. Hammond. This event shed a new light on the mysterious actions and sudden death of the lady, and detectives have the matter in hand for thorough investigation. The deceased leaves a large estate, of which her daughter is administratrix.

OBITUARY.

EMIL SCHUMANN.

This gentleman, who accompanied the last American Polar Expedition as an engineer, met a tragic end a short time since at his native place, Dresden. Mr. Schumann for some time back suffered intensely from rheumatism, and was an inmate of the Deaconess Hospital, but being an inveterate smoker he was permitted to practise the habit in his room. It appears that he carried the practice so far as to indulge in it while lying in bed. Becoming sleepy, he laid his lighted cigar on the table and it set fire to the bedclothes. He was rescued, however, from being burned alive, but died shortly after the accident from the effects of the injuries he received.

ST. CECILIA'S GUILD.

The amateur theatrical performance for the benefit of the Guild of St. Cecilia, which was to have taken place at the Union League Theatre on Easter Monday, has been abandoned on account of the illness of one of the intended performers. The ladies having charge of the affair, equal to the occasion, however, have arranged for a reception, at which recitations, music and dancing will afford enjoyment. The reception will take place at No. 23 Gramercy park on Easter Monday evening at eight o'clock. Tickets which were sold for the theatricals are good for the reception.

A CORRECTION.

NEW YORK, April 12, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

SIR—In your paper of this morning Mr. George H. Hamil, of No. 26 Third avenue, who has charge of the funeral of Mr. A. T. Stewart, is reported as the gentleman who had charge of the obsequies of President Lincoln. This is a mistake. The obsequies of Mr. Lincoln, in this city were in charge of P. Relyea & Son. The beautiful catafalque, also, upon which the remains of the "dead President" were conveyed through this city being also made and furnished by them. By inserting this correction you will oblige. Yours, respectfully, P. RELYEA & SON.

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

STEAMER HUNTSVILLE was sold in Savannah April 10, at United States Marshal's sale, for $12,050, to A H Barney, of New York.

SHIP ATLANTIC (Dan), Valeur, from Doboy for Newcastle, E, before reported, had reshipped all her cargo of timber at Bull River, SC, April 3; did not leak, and was pronounced to be in a sound and seaworthy condition, and would probably sail for destination on the 5th.

SHIP LIZZIE MOSES, from Bremerhaven March 22 for North America, was in collision March 25, in the English Channel, with fishing cutter Seaflower. The latter was much damaged.

SHIP FREEMAN CLARK, Dwight, from Departure Bay for Acapulco, put into San Francisco April 4 leaking in topsides; will calk upper works and proceed.

SHIP OCEAN (Nor), from Pensacola for Sheerness, before reported, was again fallen in with, March 8, in lat 36 33, long 37 28, dismasted, decks worked up and houses washed away.

BARK MARY (Br), from Liverpool for Lunenburg, NS, before reported as sunk at Holyhead after collision, had been dismantled March 30, and divers were at work examining the damage.

BARK TERESINA (Ital), Cravini, which sailed from New Orleans April 27, 1875, for Cette, arrived at the latter port, and was there sold as unseaworthy.

BRIG EDWIN ROWE, 231 tons, built at Fair Haven, Ct, in 1864, metalled in 1873, and well found, now in port, has been sold at or about $10,000 to parties in this city for the Curacoa and Spanish Main trade.

SCHR HELEN J HOLWAY, ashore at Fire Island, was got afloat at 7 PM April 10, and reached this port at 3 AM 11th in tow. She is discharging her cargo at the Coast Wrecking Co's stores, Staten Island.

SCHR MADAGASCAR, of Calais, which recently arrived at Portland in a crippled condition, from the effect of the gale of Feb 21, has fitted new fore and main masts, and is nearly ready for sea.

SCHR WM T MERCHANT, at Gloucester April 9 from Grand Bank, took the gale of 4th very severe off Cape Sable, and lost mainmast.

SCHR XIMENA (not Xenia), before reported in collision with schr Juliet, of Bangor, arrived at Newport 11th inst. The X had starboard bow stove in and jibboom carried away. She is from Machias for orders.

SCHR COMMODORE KEARNEY, from Calais for Philadelphia, before reported ashore at Vineyard Haven, was towed off 12th inst by revenue cutter Samuel Dexter, Capt Carson.

SCHR PARAGON, at Lubec 7th from New York, reports April 3, 50 miles NNE from Cape Cod fell in with a quantity of wreck stuff, spars, &c; also part of the quarter of a vessel, with name "A Porter" attached. [Probably part of brig Asa Porter, from St Martins for Boston, wrecked March 26 on Isle of Shoals.

SCHR BELLE HOOPER, from Brunswick, Ga, via Montevideo for Rosario, with her inward cargo of lumber (before reported), collided night of Feb 28 close to the Chico Light with steamer Kenmore, and would have sunk had it not been for the buoyancy of her cargo. She was towed back to Montevideo and beached and arrangements were made for discharging her deck load; the remainder of the cargo would be damaged, as the vessel was full of water.

SCHR CARRIE ALICE, Phillips, from Camden, Me, for Jacksonville, Fla, was on Nantucket Shoals during the gale of April 4, and with much difficulty held her position during the storm. The schooner started a small leak around the foremast on deck which caused the cargo of lime to take fire, but did not spring aleak in her hull, as has been reported. The vessel got into Vineyard Haven 5th, and the Captain expected to open her hatches 10th. Capt Phillips expresses great satisfaction with the new iron centre-board, and owes his safety to its good qualities. He was in company with the schr Shiloh, which vessel went ashore and all hands were lost, and probably would have shared the same fate had his vessel been provided with the old-fashioned centre-board, which could not have been used in rough weather.

Capt Neil, of ship Melrose, from Manila for New York, was tried at St Helena March 2 and acquitted. The 250 bales of hemp landed were warehoused as security for advances made on account of the vessel. The vessel had jibboom, port cathead, &c, carried away by ship British General Feb 23.

BANGOR, Me, April 12—The Penobscot River is free from ice up to two miles below this city. Business on the river bids fair to be very dull this spring. The steamer City of Richmond is expected to be able to reach here on Saturday.

NEWPORT, April 12—Advices from Block Island this afternoon state that schr Mary Augusta, from Hoboken for Somerset, which went ashore at that place last Tuesday night, lies easy, and up to this morning upward of 100 tons of coal had been saved. The wreckers are confident that they will get her off if weather holds good. It is not true that she has been stripped.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12—The tug Newcastle, which was sunk on the 16th ult, off Joe Flogger Shoals, was raised on Sunday last and brought to Marcus Hook last night.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass, April 12—The revenue steamer Samuel Dexter worked on the schooner Juliet several hours yesterday and succeeded in hauling her up the harbor to abreast of Holmes' wharf. She has been a dangerous obstruction to vessels arriving in the night, and is still very much in the way.

LAUNCHED—At Calais April 8, by the Boardman Bros, the schr Wm H Boardman, of 150 tons. The same parties are soon going to work upon a bark of about 1700 tons

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

OFFICE OF LIGHTHOUSE INSPECTOR, FOURTH DISTRICT, PHILADELPHIA, April 12, 1876.

An obstruction buoy (red and black horizontal stripes) has been placed by the wreck of the tug Newcastle, near Cross Ledge Shoal, Delaware Bay, and will be removed when wreck is raised.

G B WHITE, Commander, USN, Lighthouse Inspector, Fourth district.

BUOYS REPLACED.

The buoy on Boon Island Ledge was replaced last Monday, and all the buoys about Portland harbor sent adrift by the late gales have also been replaced.
